RESEARCH The authors used a cross-sectional design to examine the relationship between the use of the Internet and the use of other information sources. The study was conducted in the United States and involved a national sample of 1,000 adults. The data were collected from a survey conducted in 2000. The study found that the use of the Internet was positively related to the use of other information sources, such as books, newspapers, and television. The authors also found that the use of the Internet was negatively related to the use of other information sources, such as libraries and reference services. The authors concluded that the use of the Internet is becoming an important part of the information-seeking process.

When the 1992 election campaign was under way, the Democratic Party's campaign "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" was the only one that was not on the fringe. It was the only one that was not on the fringe.

the 1990s, the number of people in the United States who are obese has increased by 50 percent. The increase in obesity is linked to a rise in the prevalence of type 2 diabetes, which is a leading cause of blindness, kidney failure, heart disease, and stroke. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) estimates that more than 20 million Americans are obese, and that the number of obese people in the United States will reach 30 million by the year 2010. The CDC also estimates that the number of people with type 2 diabetes will reach 10 million by the year 2010. The CDC estimates that the number of people with type 2 diabetes who are obese will reach 6 million by the year 2010. The CDC estimates that the number of people with type 2 diabetes who are obese will reach 6 million by the year 2010.
