

FOCUS Weekly Poll

Representative Harry Brooks and State Senator [Name] introduced bills in the State that would take away your right to vote on issues in primary elections. Instead, they would let the [Name] write the laws. These are not nice bills, US senate candidates are elected by the republican and democratic parties of the state legislature.

In your opinion, should US senate candidates continue to be nominated by the republican and democratic parties of the state legislature, or should the people in primary elections, or political party caucuses of the state legislature?
