

Internal Review

By Mike Stealy
stealy@timesfree.com

"As far as the Committee, we have seven board members, five did not concur and two concur with the findings," said the executive director of the Police Advisory and Review Committee Thursday.

The finding by FAPC is unusual in that the group doesn't support the report of Knoxville City Police's Internal Review implicating an off-duty city officer who held a woman at gunpoint for five minutes in a Jefferson County encounter. Director Clarence Vaughn II read the vote aloud during the meeting.

Police Chief David Rauch told the Press that ruling means the

to family, community

By Mike Stealy
stealy@timesfree.com

The city lost an icon, a leader and beloved senior citizen July 30 when Fountain City's Alvin Glenn Fry passed away at 93.

Alvin Fry was a Navy veteran of both WWII and the Korean War. He was an active member of the Fountain City Lions Club, Knoxville Rotary Club and owner and operator of Fountain City Loans for more than 35 years but had other service stations in the area and served the community for more than 60 years. Fry was a member of the First Baptist Church of Fountain City, a member of Hester's Temple and was a 32nd degree Mason.

Many people considered Alvin