The Kane County Commission meets this evening at 7 p.m. to take up an issue that has become a major political headache. Approved there is a purchase of 100 additional computers for use at the county high school Computer Arts Department.

While the commission typically deals with questions regarding county government, the purchase of computers falls into some categories and is left to the school system's job. That's why the school board is not the "proper vehicle" for the purchase, according to the school board's own policy.

The board has authorized the superintendent to spend $100,000 on a purchase with the school board's approval. The board has the approval and request for the purchase from the superintendent and approval from the school board and without any approval from the county commission. The approval probably is not a valid one, as the board is not.

According to the Kane County Commission, the board has the authority to spend money on the purchase of computers. The board has the authority to spend money on the purchase of computers. The board has the authority to spend money on the purchase of computers.

Payment authorization may be made by the board or by the superintendent. The board has the authority to spend money on the purchase of computers. The board has the authority to spend money on the purchase of computers.

The commission may also be asked to sign a purchase order for the purchase of computers. The board has the authority to spend money on the purchase of computers. The board has the authority to spend money on the purchase of computers.
