County Commission to vote on unauthorized school system purchase

By Mike Steely steelym@knoxfocus.com

The Knox County Commission meets this evening at 5 p.m. to take up an agenda they reviewed during their workshop last week. Among the items is an unauthorized $450,000 purchase for renovations to the Karns High School Culinary Arts Department.

While the commission normally does not question expenditures by the school system the agenda item drew some comments and a talk by Superintendent Bob Thomas who took the blame and said the "internal controls were not enough" to catch the The resolution calls for the commission to approve $450,000 in a contract with Shelton General Contractors. Thomas said the agreement was signed prior to his taking office and without any approval by the school's business office. He said that "probably a half a dozen policies were violated." "I apologize it ever got to this point," the superintendent told the work session. He described the initial contract agreement as a "failure to provide oversight of the individual who took on this project."

Payment authorization may be voted on today as questions continue about possible action to be taken by the school system or the county law department against the unauthorized purchase.

The commission may also discuss renting a parking lot at the school system's 5th Avenue Building for $45,045 next year with a 3% increase each year thereafter. Russ Oaks, the system's Chief Operations Officer, told the council's work session that the facility is "landlocked" and needs the three-acre parking lot, which includes a small storage building.

Also up for discussion is a $450,000 school agreement with Mobile Fixture to purchase and install dishwashing machines in school cafeterias with an option for four more years, one year at a time. The idea is to replace the machines that have been leased.

The commission is also being asked, by the sheriff's

Purchase of Halls church questioned at Night Out

steelym@knoxfocus.com

Bob and Ed's 33rd Commissioners Night Out at E.B.'s Eats & Treats in Halls didn't turn out to be the friendly chat that everyone expected. Commissioners at Large Bob Thomas and Ed Brantley have informal monthly meetings around the county to listen and talk to residents and voters. Wednesday's session at the small Halls restaurant quickly turned into a confrontation between a representative of Angelic Ministries, which recently bought the former Salem Baptist Church on Hill Road, and citizens who live around the church building.

Loud voices and accusations flared as Ray Jenkins, an Angelic Ministries board member, began explaining why the inner city ministry bought the rural church. Halls residents charged that the church building could be used to house former prisoners and drug users as a rehabilitation center.

Jenkins firmly denied that although one citizen charged that another Angelic board member had publicly said it. Bob and Ed had invited Jenkins to speak but probably never expected such a confrontation.

Angelic Ministries paid $300,000 for the church and property. Jenkins said they had a $100,000 contribution and borrowed $200,000. He said they hadn't expected the offer to

October 23, 2017 Council to talk about wireless towers, streetscapes and sidewalks

By Mike Steely steelym@knoxfocus.com

When the Knoxville City Council meets Tuesday evening the members will probably give final approval to the Wireless Communication Facilities Plan, setting some regulations on cell towers in various city districts. The second reading is the first item on the agenda.

The city council may also discuss several rezoning changes and numerous items involving streetscapes and sidewalks. The North Central Streetscapes Project may get more than $4.5 million in a contract with Southern Constructors, Inc. and the city and Norfolk and Southern Railroad may be approved to enter into an agreement for $58,499 for a pedestrian crossing on Cedar Lane. The Cedar Lane sidewalk project will eventually run 2,000 feet from near Pratt Street eastward to the Windsor Court Apartments. Jim Hagerman, director of engineering, said that the railroad sidewalk crossing planned for the project is so wheelchairs can cross safely.

Unrelated to the Cedar Lane project the city is looking to accept a FEMA grant to purchase a house and lot at 2400 Cedar Lane from Irene F. Gillaspy as part of the Hazard Mitigation Grant Program. Hagerman told The Focus $71,717.

that flooding is a continual problem and that the abandoned house there will be demolished and the lot could become open land. Just over $89,000 is being requested by the Department of Engineering for the Pleasant Ridge Sidewalk Project for additional funding, bringing the total agreement with Adams Contracting to about $688,000.

More funds may also be added to the West Jackson Avenue Project and Old City Streetscapes bringing the cost to more than $673,000 and increasing contract time.

The 700 Block Gay Street Project may also get a bump in funding of $51,998 with Design and Construction Services and the contract on that would also be extended.

In Lonsdale, as part of the redevelopment project there, the council will consider accepting the transfer of 39 parcels from the Community Development Corporation and enter into an agreement with Sansom Hackney, LLCD and Haslam Lonsdale Project, LLC for the sale of property in the area at fair market value to be redeveloped as a multi-purpose recreation, art and education facility. Bandit Lites and the city may enter an agreement to replace a fire curtain in the Civic Auditorium for

Suffrage monument to honor Febb and Rep. Harry Burn

By Mike Steely steelym@knoxfocus.com

The three women standing together at the entrance to Market Square will be joined by a young legislator and his mother soon.

Work is underway by artist Alan LeQuire on a monument of the young man whose vote ratified the 19th Amendment and gave the women the right to vote. The statue of Rep. Harry Burn includes his mother, Febb, standing with her arm on his shoulder. LeQuire also designed the monument of the three Tennessee women who lead the state's suffrage movement.

Burn, a Republican state house member, had opposed giving women the vote until his mother wrote him pleading for him to vote "Yes." His single vote in the Tennessee House was enough for the state to ratify the 19th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution in 1920.

Wanda Sobieski, President of the Suffrage Coalition, headed the effort to create both monuments and said the new monument will be located on Knox County property at Market and Clinch, across Market Square from the other suffrage statue.

"We hope to dedicate it in April and we want to have an event, a re-enactment of a suffrage parade," she said.

A project to raise $400,000 is well underway with about half the amount donated for the bronze monument. Sobieski said that there's a $65,000 pledge to match that amount from three local people.

"We're also selling bricks, engraved with a name, to go around the base of the statue for $100," she said, adding that there is a form on the website for the bricks. Larger donations, from $1,000 from individuals, $2,500 from community groups or $5,000 from businesses, would get a name on plaques at the base of the monument.

Sobieski said that the papers of Rep. Burn have been digitized and preserved in the McClung Collection. Suffrage Coalition is a non-profit organization and a special project of the East Tennessee Foundation

Preservation conference coming to Alex Haley Farm

By Mike Steely steelym@knoxfocus.com

What connection could the Alex Haley Farm near Clinton have to do with the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Wall in Washington, D. C.?

The answer is Maya Lin, who designed not only the wall but also the Riggio-Lynch Chapel at the late author's home. This chapel will be visited during a tour of the Haley Farm as part of the East Tennessee Preservation Alliance's day-long conference on Friday, Knox Heritage's Kim Trent said that Heritage is proud to partner once again with the ETPA and many businesses, organizations and individuals to bring the conference to our region.

Established by a grant from the National Trust for Historic Preservation the East Tennessee group creates meaningful connections in our region and nurtures and saves historic places. The board is made up of people from 16 counties and ETPA raises awareness of endangered historic properties.

The conference draws preservationists, architects, planners, tourist professionals, government and community leaders, economic developers, real estate professionals and others interested in historic preservation.

The event begins with breakfast snacks and coffee and a welcome from Clinton's mayor. The day concludes with the East Tennessee Preservation Awards Reception in the Riggio-Lynch Chapel and reservations for that event are required.

Since 1994 the Alex Haley Farm, now called the CDF Haley Farm, has been owned and managed by the Children's Defense Fund. The 157-acre farm includes a 5,000 volume library used by child advocates, spiritual leaders, educators, civil rights leaders, authors, illustrators, publishers, scholars, teachers, librarians and students.

External Auditor terms may be changed

By Mike Steely steelym@knoxfocus.com

It's obvious that the Knox County Audit Committee is pleased with Pugh CPAs as the county's Eternal Auditor. In a week members discussed a way to keep the company beyond the current contract.

While the county code allows only two four-year contracts with the same company discussion turned to possibly changing the code to either an open ended contract or allowing a contracted auditor to serve as long as 12 or 20 years.

Audit committee member Jim Morrison was asked to look into what other counties do about terms of auditors and reported that no other jurisdiction sets a "mandatory rotation."

Finance Director Chris Caldwell suggested a motion by the committee to ask the full county commission to change the ballot next year. He said that the county could ask for a Request for Qualifications and select a company with no limit on how long the agreement would last but bids would be sought every four or five years.

Commissioner Schoonmaker suggested a limit of 10 to 12 year terms split in three four-year agreements.

That would permit Pugh CPA to again submit a bid and be considered beyond their current

"Our hands are tied," said Chairman David Shields, speaking of the current term limits

Larry Elmore of Pugh told The Focus his company is in the 6th year as auditor, two years into its meeting of the committee last code and have the issue on the second four-year agreement. didn't disagree with them. However, her obsession caused these young folks to think about death and the things about it. I could see them considering the topic as their eyes held far away stares that took them back to times when death directly affected them.

pause to muse over the ending of life here on earth. Over the years, I've had too many personal interactions with death. I was there when my mother and brother passed. I was with Amy just after her mother died. High school friends died in their teens; other friends have died in later years. The one thing in common with all these passings is that they were difficult. In fact, I'm sure that death has always been much easier for the dying than for the living.

Age brings on more thoughts about death. We who have fewer days left than we've already lived think about the end of things. That doesn't mean we fret about it, but we do have it on our minds more often than when we were teens. In fact, back then we considered ourselves invincible. Our antics proved dangerous and moronic. Yet, we survived foolish stunts, even though some of them were severe and the worst we ended up with were a few stitches or a broken bone.

Some of us lost parents, and others ached with the passings of grandparents. The jarring quake of death hit hardest when one of our own died. Car wrecks took good friends on their ways to pick up dates for the prom; drownings in nearby lakes shook us to our cores. The worst of all were the deaths of young people after wars with cancer. Leukemia claimed the lives of two friends before we'd reached fourth grade. The viewing of a dead child haunted us for years. When a lifelong friend who was a gifted athlete died not long after graduation from high school, young teens struggled to find a reason for such a loss. These days, my generation spends too much time making trips to funeral homes or cemeteries. We are at that age when friends and family pass much too frequently. Visitations look much like a class reunion. All of us shake our heads in disbelief that another friend is gone. After a few minutes, the awkwardness of expressing condolences and shock eases as we share stories with others about the person who has died. Before long, we're laughing and chat-In those early years, ting maybe a bit too loudly.

Thinking about death and all the things that it brings and takes away can sometimes lead to nothing more than depression. That's when a belief in something stronger than ourselves is in control. Tennessee and the League of Nations IV

Pages from the Past

By Ray Hill rayhill865@gmail.com

United States senator, John Knight Shields, had surprised tens of thousands of his constituents and infuriated many members of his own Democratic Party when he had voted to add reservations to the Treaty of Versailles in the Senate. The treaty was the culmination of months of torturous negotiations between the heads of several governments representing those countries that had fought with the allies against the German Empire and the Central Powers. President Woodrow Wilson had personally represented the United States at the Paris Peace Conference, which began on December 13, 1918. The Treaty of Versailles was the instrument through which the allied powers accepted the surrender of the German government, along with those countries that fought on the side of Germany. Wilson was one of the "Big Four" of the Paris Peace Conference, which included the Prime Minister of Great Britain, David Lloyd George; Georges Clemenceau, the Prime Minister of France

ference gave birth to; it was the birthplace of the League of Nations, something President Woodrow Wilson fervently believed would banish war from the face of the earth. The fight over the treaty and the fate the League of Nations was fought inside the United States Senate. Tennessee was represented by John Knight Shields, an East Tennessean, and Kenneth D. McKellar of Memphis. Senator McKellar had first been elected in 1916, but he had served in Congress since 1911 and was an ardent admirer of President Wilson. McKellar was the first U.S. senator from Tennessee to win his office through direct election by the people. Senator Shields had been in the United States Senate since 1913 and was the last man to be elected to the Senate by the state legislature. Shields had first faced the voters in 1918 and had been challenged inside the Democratic primary by Governor Tom C. Rye. The governor was able, a good speaker and personally popular. Rye also strongly backed the administration of Woodrow Wilson. President Wilson frankly admitted to Senator McKellar he did not like John Knight Shields and had intended to write a letter for publication in Tennessee during the senatorial primary stating Shields was no friend to him or his administration. Both Shields and McKellar immediately realized such a letter would cost the senator the primary election. McKellar eventually pleaded with Wilson

Tennessee's senior not to write and send the letter. While the President made no commitment, he did not send any letter and John Knight Shields had beaten Governor Rye for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate. Once Shields had bee reelected, McKellar asked Shields to go to the White House to thank the President. McKellar was astonished when Shields snapped he would see Wilson in Hell first. John Knight Shields was the only Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee who voted with the Republicans to add reservations to the treaty, a position that ignited a fiery response from many Tennesseans.

Amid calls for his resignation from the U.S. Senate, Senator Shields calmly said he was following his convictions and no amount of pressure from Tennessee would change his mind. When Senator Gilbert Hitchcock of Nebraska, the Minority Leader of the Senate and ranking Democratic member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, issued a report urging immediate ratification of the treaty, he was joined by every Democrat on the committee save for John Knight Shields. To those Democrats in Tennessee who were enraged by his failure to back the position of President Woodrow Wilson, who was adamantly opposed to any reservation being attached to the treaty, Senator Shields replied the of America's participation in Treaty of Versailles was not > a partisan matter. Lodge of Massachusetts, the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Republican, moved to postpone voting on amendments to the treaty for one week, the committee divided along partisan lines. John Knight Shields managed to outrage his fellow Democrats even further when he was absent from the committee meeting. One hotly contested amendment to the treaty and possible American participation in the League of Nations was sponsored by Republican Hiram Johnson of California. A progressive Republican, Johnson was highly wary of foreign entanglements; later he would become one of the leading isolationists in the U.S. Senate. The substance of Senator Johnson's amendment equalized the voting power of the United States with that of Great Britain in the League of Nations. A newspaper poll showed 48 senators favoring the Johnson amendment, with 47 opposed. To the horror of President Wilson's supporters, John Knight Shields could be the deciding vote. The Nashville Tennessean wailed, "A careful poll of the situation by the leaders tonight shows that

Senator Shields will probably hold in his hands the fate of the League covenant and the treaty." Despite Shields having voted for the Johnson amendment in committee, both sides were hoping to get his vote when the full Senate finally voted.

The Livingston Enterprise complained in an editorial, "So great is the disapproval of his constituency over Senator Shields' attitude on the peace treaty that a movement has been started to demand his resignation. Had the people of Tennessee known what his attitude would be when he was a candidate for reelection, it would not now be necessary to take this

The Nashville Tennessean When Henry Cabot League to Enforce Peace for a meeting. The letter sent by Senator Shields declining the invitation was less brusque than matterof-fact. Shields wrote that, "While I do not underrate the wisdom or patriotism of the members of the Knox County branch of the League to Enforce Peace..." that he had reached his own conclusion after careful study. Shields acknowledged he was faced with casting his own vote in the Senate and had "no disposition to evade or pass it to others." Shields said he was "always glad to have the counsel of my constituents and to discuss with them public questions, but of course in the end I must act upon my own judgment." John Knight Shields took to the floor of the United States Senate to say that he would not support the proposed amendments to the treaty referred to as the "Shantung amendments." Those amendments dealt with the rights of Shantung in China and Shields dismissed them as of little importance to Americans. "The United States is not interested in it," Shields said. Senator Shields said adopting the Shantung amendments would be a violation of America's traditional policy not to interfere in the affairs of other nations. Shields came to the climax of his speech when he said, "I am unwilling to support a treaty which, by the remotest implication or possible construction, authorizes a super-government or a council of foreign nations to interfere with and control our internal affairs and domestic relations of any character, sacred rights, cherished by all nations and now secured to them by both national and international laws.

Senator John Knight Shields of Tennessee, circa 1915

"I will not consent to the British Empire having six votes in the League of Nations to the one vote of the United States," John Knight Shields barked. "I have too much pride was similarly appalled when in my country and too Senator Shields "curtly much respect for its flag to political equality at home or abroad with a colony or subordinate division of that empire."

When the Shantung amendment came to the Senate floor for a vote, John Knight Shields joined Kenneth McKellar in voting against it. Three Democrats joined thirty-two Republicans in supporting it. Fourteen Republicans banded together with fortyone Democrats to oppose it. The amendment lost 55 - 35.

For Tennessee Democrats who were furious with John Knight Shields for his apostasy against the Wilson administration and the League of Nations, the worst was yet to come. Wilson, in an effort to win over the American people, had made a cross-country speaking tour on behalf of the League. While in Pueblo, Colorado, Wilson had suffered a debilitating stoke. The stroke was severe and the President's train hurried back to Washington, D. C. and the White House. Edith Bolling Wilson, the President's wife, and his physician, Dr. Cary Grayson, successfully kept Wilson's conditions from the American public

died. In truth, the stricken President could not perform his duties. Much of the business to be transacted by the White House simply came to a halt.

John D. Erwin, the Nashville Tennessean's Washington correspondent, wrote in his column "Under the Big Dome", a discussion by members of the Senate's Foreign Relations Committee. The senators were concerned about President Wilson's condition. Henry Cabot Lodge wanted to ask the President to convey certain information about the "Shantung controversy" to committee members. One Democratic senator complained it was "not in good taste" to ask such things "while the President is ill." refused" an invitation from to approve any treaty that Senator Williams proposed the Knoxville chapter of the concedes precedence to postponing the matter until Great Britain or reduces it the President was well "and is able to attend to his duties in the usual manner." Senator Albert B. Fall of New Mexico snapped, "If you entertain such an opinion, why do you not make a motion for a recess of the Senate until the President has recovered?" It was then Senator John Knight Shields, a former Justice of the Tennessee State Supreme Court, wondered, "Does not this raise the question of the President's disability under the Constitution?" Oddly, according to John D. Erwin, Senator Shields' comment was ignored by the rest of the committee at the time. Democratic senators were dismayed and angry that Shields would be the first member of the United States Senate to suggest Woodrow Wilson might be incapacitated and could not function as President of the United States. Erwin thought Shields' comment was ignored by the Republican senators because of the "impropriety of the attitude of the Tennessee Senator and refused to follow his lead." It was only a matter of time before Republicans would be asking the same thing and send a two man delegation to the White House to see just how ill Woodrow Wilson might be. Yet John Knight Shields was able to hold his own in the debates. Referring to the provision of the treaty which he contended gave Great Britain six votes in the League of Nations as compared to only one for the United States, Senator Shields snapped, "The American people will never approve a thing so unpatriotic and so degrading and humiliating." Shields offered an amendment to the treaty of his own, a substitute for the Johnson amendment, which stated any federal or imperial government may "collectively have only one membership, one delegate and one vote in the council . . . three delegates and one vote in the assembly." As the Senate wound its way through the complexity of numerous amendments, the Nashville Tennessean lamented, "Shields Continues to Side With Republican Opponents of the League." Doubtless some Democrats were relieved when John Knight Shields was confined to his apartment in Washington's Shoreham Hotel with a severe cold. Evidently, Shields became ill while laboring over a speech he intended to give in the Senate. Shields had completed his speech, which he promptly had delivered to the office of the public printer, requesting 50,000 copies be made. Senator Shields intended to mail copies of his speech to people in Tennessee.

Clearly, John Knight Shields did not intend for the newspapers to have the last word on the League of Nations fight.

Congressman Duncan, Public Servant

"May I help you?" I asked.

"Hello. Jim Duncan, Mr. Duncan's son," he said while extending his hand.

I was working that summer an intern the late

Congressman John J. Duncan's Knoxville office. After classes ended for this college freshman, I walked from the University of Tennessee (UT) campus to the Federal Building on Main Street in downtown Knoxville. In the fall, I became a full-time student again. It was 1973, and I had just celebrated my nineteenth birthday. Over Christmas break, I received a call. I was amused that Jim Duncan and Zane Daniel were both on the line asking me to come and work in their sometimes tell about the dogs our family had that were named Daniel & Duncan. I was very active in our church and enjoyed being the organist. By Ralphine Major Over time, I realized that I could not give both the job and school one hundred percent, and I did not want either to suffer. Though I left the job, I took their friendship with me. I kept in touch with Daniel & Duncan over the decades that followed. I graduated college and took a job with the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA). Jimmy sent me a copy of the reference letter he wrote for me, and I still treasure it.

I always thought Jimmy would follow his father into Congress. After all, they had the same traits.

They worked hard; they were dedicated; and they had a deep concern and compassion for the constituents they represented. Both of them were down to earth; they used common sense; and they were of high integrity and good character.

It seemed quite fitting that I reconnected with Linda DeMarcus Acuff at the Grainger County Tomato Fesival this year on the eve of Jimmy's announcement not to seek re-election. Linda worked with me in the office at Daniel & Duncan. I admire Jimmy's decision. He and his family have sacrificed much as he has served this district the last 30 years. We are fortunate to have had him represent East Tennessee in Washington. He has meant a lot to our family over the years.

I know Jimmy to be a great family man and a Lady Spartans continue volleyball dominance with fifth title

By Ken Lay

MURFREESBORO --- Webb School of Knoxville has been a regular at the Division II-A State Volleyball Tournament and on Thursday morning, the Lady Spartans son their fifth consecutive State Champion-

Webb culminated its 2017 stay in the Midstate with a 25-11, 25-10, 25-14 victory over Harding Academy at Middle Tennessee State University's Murphy Center.

The Lady Spartans (33-7) made their sixth straight appearance in the championship match and they wasted little time putting the Lady Lions away.

Harding (32-16) opened an early 3-2 lead early in the opening set but the Lady Lions, who have now lost three consecutive championship matches to Webb, didn't hold the upper hand for long.

After a side-out, Lady Spartans freshman outside hitter Jordan Sandberg served up two consecutive points, including an ace, to give the, now, fivetime defending state champions a 5-3 lead. Webb held a 6-4 lead when senior setter Nicklin Hames scored eight consecutive points a 14-4 advantage. From there, Webb would cruise to win the opening game.

Hames, who played for the Lady Spartans as an eighth grader five years ago, was on Webb's first championship

Biddle's hat trick boosts Seymour to state tournament

By Ken Lay

Seymour High School's girls soccer team is headed to the state tournament for the second time in school history.

The Lady Eagles punched their ticket to Murfreesboro by outlasting Central 3-2 in a Section 1-AA match Saturday at Dan Y. Boring Stadium.

The host Lady Bobcats (11-5-3) entered Saturday's game against the Lady Eagles on the heels of making some history of their own. Central, which stunned Catholic Thursday night with a 1-0 victory in the Region 2-A Championship game, was looking to make its first-ever trip to the state's grand high school soccer stage.

But Seymour and junior forward Abbie Biddle had other ideas. Biddle helped her side clinch a berth in the Class AA State Tournament as she had a hat trick. She broke a 2-2 tie when she scored the game's final goal in the 71st minute when she took a pass from Anna Pendleton and buried the ball in the back of the net on a hot day in Fountain City.

"This is what we've been working for all year. This is what we've been conditioning for," Biddle Saturday's victory wasn't easy but it was just another challenge that the Lady Eagles conquered.

"I'm thankful for what we've learned this year and I'm thankful for the trials that we faced," Biddle said. "Just seeing us get the chance to go to state is

"There's been a lot that we've had to learn from and I'm thankful for what we've learned from some of the games and the losses that we took."

Seymour (14-4) took a 1-0 lead when Biddle tallied in the eighth minute of the match. The Lady Eagles, the Region 1-AA runnersup, never trailed in the game but Central responded to every punch that Seymour threw.

Fulton rides passing game to 41-14 win over West

By Steve Williams

Fulton football fans were treated to an air show Friday night.

Junior quarterback Xavier Malone and a pack of talented receivers propelled the Falcons to a 41-14 win over West, a Region 3-5A foe known for its defense.

The air strike produced 328 yards in the first half alone.

Malone, listed at 6-3, 207 pounds, finished with 28 completions in 39 attempts for 369 yards and three touchdowns before reserves mopped up in the final six minutes at Bob Black

Senior Coryean Davis led the receiving corps with 11 catches for 157 yards and one touchdown. Senior teammate Joey Smith contributed eight receptions for 79 yards. Do-it-all junior Jashaun Fenderson had only three snags for 53 yards, but two of them were good for TDs.

The victory lifted Fulton to 5-0 in the region and 8-1 overall and set up a title showdown at home this Friday night against Oak Ridge (5-0, 7-2). The Wildcats tuned up for the big game with a 42-7 win at Powell.

Catholic falls as Portland avenges loss in championship match

By Ken Lay

MURFREESBORO ---Catholic High School went to the Class AA State Volleyball Tournament last week with hopes of defending its 2016 state championship and all went well --- at least until the 2017 title match.

The Lady Irish breezed through the preliminary rounds of the tournament with relative ease and didn't drop a match en route to making their fourth consecutive title match appear-

But that all changed

Thursday afternoon when first two games. Catholic dropped a 25-17, 25-18, 11-25, 25-23 decision to Portland in the Class

The Lady Irish (27-13) had beaten the Lady Pirates in four sets Wednesday and Portland came out early and announced that it was looking for revenge as the Lady Pirates (47-6) scored the first six points of the opening set.

From there, Catholic battled to hang in the match as Portland posted relatively easy victories in each of the

"We had a tough road to get to the finals. Every team that we played was in the Final Four last year," Lady Irish coach Brent Carter said. "Portland came out and played a great game. Our swings weren't as good as they were [Wednesday], but a lot of the credit for that goes to Portland.

"You have to give kudos to them for what they did and how they played. They played three great sets. We weren't even in the game during those first two sets. We didn't have a chance."

The Lady Irish, who mounted late comeback attempts to make the first two sets look a little more respectable, stormed out and took a 17-4 lead on back-to-back service aces by senior Meredith Bonee. They would cruise to vic-

The Lady Panthers were

"I couldn't get that third set over fast enough," he said. "They're a great team out before Emily Rogers, a and they can hurt you from sophomore, served up the all over the floor.

"We weren't happy with the way that we played against them yesterday and we had a talk about that. I knew that we were going to have to play our best game if we were going to beat

The fourth and deciding set was a see-saw affair and the Lady Panthers and Lady Irish were knotted in a 23-23 deadlock before Portland finally put things way by scoring a point on a sidechampionship point.

Portland's Marlayna Bullington received Most Valuable Player honors after she finished the championship match with 19 kills, 24 digs and six aces.

Junior Olivia Cunningham led the Lady Irish with 19 kills, 18 digs and an assist. Senior Olivia Kozemko added 22 assists and six digs. Bonee finished the match with five aces, seven kills, two blocks and 12

Seymour took a 2-1 lead on Biddle's second goal, which came with just under five minutes remaining in the opening Blaydes said that his team was fatigued.

"We got tired," he said. "We came off the field [at halftime] tired. We condition them and we condition them hard. We use the North Carolina conditioning program.

Lady Bobcats down Catholic to win first region title

By Ken Lay

For the first time in school history, the Central Lady Bobcats have claimed a regional soccer championship. Central claimed the Region 2-AA Tournament Title with a 1-0 victory over Catholic Thursday night at Blaine Stadium.

It was the third meeting of the 2017 season for the two District 4-AA rivals. And on Thursday night, the third time was the charm for the Lady Bobcats. The Lady Irish routed Central (11-4-3) during the regular season. Catholic notched a 3-2 victory over the Lady 'Cats in the District 4-AA Tournament Championship Match.

"This is a game that I feel like we kind of stole," Central coach Bill Mize said. "They pretty much controlled the first half.

"We played better in the second half and we got a goal. After we got the goal, we just had to hang on."

The Lady Bobcats got the lone marker of the match when sophomore Braelyn Bruce launched a shot from 25 yards out. That shot landed in the back of the Lady Irish net.

The Lady Bobcats opened Region 2-AAA Tournament play Tuesday night when they played District 3-AA Champion Gibbs to a 0-0 draw. Central advanced face Catholic by virtue of a 3-1 victory in a penalty kicks shootout.

Lily Resmondo, Ashton Blair and Kyleigh Haught scored shootout goals for Central against the Lady Eagles, who finished their 2017 campaign with a 13-1-4 record. Senior Aspen Satterfield had the shootout marker for Gibbs, who won a district championship for the first time in school history.

Grace, CAK win first-round state soccer games

By Ken Lay

Grace Christian Academy's girls soccer team began its 2017 Division II-A State Tournament run Wednesday night at home. The Lady Rams needed penalty kicks to advance past Battle Ground Academy at the Jerry Disney Family Sports Complex.

The Lady Rams and the Lady Wildcats played to a 0-0 tie through 80 minutes of regulation, 20 minutes of extra time and 10 minutes of sudden death overtime and could settle nothing as Grace goalkeeper Bryanah Hack and BGA netminder Anna Quinn French stopped every shot fired in their respective directions.

The Lady Rams and Lady Wildcats had chances to get on the board but the goalkeepers took center stage until the game went to penalty kicks after the match was declared a draw. Grace Christian moved on to Saturday's quarterfinal round when it faced Evangelical Christian School in Cordova (results were not available at press time). The penalty kicks shootout naturally provided a bit of drama as Lady Rams senior Sara Houff attempted the first shot and missed. Grace would eventually claim a 6-5 win and advance. The Lady Wildcats took a 1-0 lead in the shootout when Lindsey Souter scored.

The two teams then matched PK goals until BGA's Emma Smith missed. With the Lady Wildcats leading 4-3, Grace's Lauren Nastasi

Battle Ground's Alyssa White missed, leaving the door open for Grace's Emma Moore to win the shootout and she didn't disappoint the home fans as she buried the ball into the back of the net. "It was just amazing," Moore said of the game-winner. "I didn't know that it was going to be me or nothing. But it was. "[French] was a really good keeper and we're just so excited." GCA coach Donnie

Green said that he was also pleased.

"This is the first time in our nine years of girls soccer that we've ever gotten to this point," Green said after watching his squad advance. "We've never had to go to a shootout.

"I'm just so proud of these girls. They've worked so hard. We went to the state in Division I last year. But in Division II, things are so much tougher and before the game, we talked about that. I stepped up our non-league schedule." In Wednesday's other area state tournament game in Knoxville: Christian Academy of Knoxville advanced with a 5-1 victory over Donelson Christian Academy. The Lady Warriors also advanced to Saturday's quarterfinal with a trip to this week's semifinals in Murfreesboro hanging in the balance. CAK played St. George's in Collierville but results of that match were not available at press time.

Prep forecast:

Expect 'thunder and lightning' at Farragut

By Steve Williams

Farragut High running back Isaiah Gibbs had to be a workhorse in the Admirals' win over archrival Bearden in Week 9.

"It's kind of hard being without my partner in crime, Kyle (Carter)," said Gibbs after carrying the ball 22 times for 184 yards in the 31-14 victory over the Bulldogs. "I had to just suck it up. They gave me breaks on defense and I carried the load."

Carter was sidelined, nursing a hamstring.

After the game, Gibbs said he would be looking forward to seeing Kyle come back after Farragut's Week 10 open date.

"He wants to be out there real bad and I want him out there too, because we're like thunder and lightning," said Isaiah. "We feed off each other every game. He's going to be back come the Hardin Valley game."

That'll be in the MyVLT Rivalry Thursday game as the Hawks host the Admirals in a Region 1-6A matchup and the regular season finale.

So which are you Isaiah, thunder or lightning?

"I'm lightning because I'm a little more of a shiftier guy," said the 5-9, 160pound Gibbs, making a zigzagging motion with his hand to describe his streaks across the field. "Kyle is the thunder. He's probably the hardest runner I know."

Carter is 5-10 and 190 pounds. Both backs are juniors.

Farragut (4-1, 8-1) comes in holding a share of first place in the region.

ONE WIN AWAY: Halls defeated Sevier County

20-13 Friday in a battle for first place in Region 2-5A. The Red Devils can wrap up the region championship at home this week with a victory over winless "We found a way to win and finish the game,"

said JD Overton, Halls

head coach. "We had too many missed field goals and missed opportunities in the red zone. But we found a way to score at the end to win. Our defense played exceptional with the exception of two long pass plays." Isaac Cook was a defensive standout for the Red Devils with three sacks, one forced fumble and one fumble recovery. Hunter Huff had eight tackles and blocked a field goal. Offensively, quarterback Caden Tollett carried the ball 33 times for 206 yards, one TD and a 2-point conversion. He also passed for 54 yards. Cooper Cook rushed for 159 yards on 21 carries and also had an interception on defense.

TITLE GAME: Austin-East rallied for a 41-24 win at Northview Academy Friday to set up this week's Region 2-3A title showdown at Alcoa.

PREPS OF THE PAST: Forty years ago, on Oct. 21, 1977 - Tim Huettel of Holston pretty much did it all in the Warriors' 21-0 win over Scott County at Huntsville. Huettel, with 165 yards rushing, had touchdown runs of 25, 30 and 35 yards and another called back because of a penalty. Defensively, he intercepted two passes and made 10 tackles. He also kicked all three PATs.

UNSUNG HEROES

Their efforts are recognized and appreciated by coaches, teammates

By Steve Williams

Star players on winning teams get most of the headlines and deservedly so. But there are others who contribute to a team's success during games

These are the unsung heroes.

He may be a player who has never had his name in the headlines. He may be a starter or a super sub. He's the type of player whose efforts are recognized and appreciated by his coaches and teammates, although he's not a "star player."

Head coaches of six local football teams that are having winning seasons recently submitted the names and deeds of such players.

J'CORYAN ANDERSON, Fulton junior linebacker. "J'Coryan is a high character guy. He is such a versatile and talented player for us. He has already played six different positions for us this year as well as all special teams. He finds ways to help us out every time we go out to compete. He is on virtually every special team We are fortunate to have him on our team." - Coach Rob Black.

JAIOHN FOSTER, Austin-East defensive back. "Jaiohn is a utility knife for us on defense. He plays safety, corner and even our nickel back. He does everything we ask of him to the best of his ability, a kid that is trustworthy and gaining confidence more and more. This is his first year playing football and he is making a great impact on our team." - Coach Jeff Phillips.

JONATHAN ATCHLEY, The King's Academy senior offensive tackle and defensive end. "A two-time captain, Jonathan was one of the main leaders this past offseason for winter, spring and summer weights and conditioning." - Coach Matt Lowe.

years here and he has played here for four years. He continues to improve on a daily basis and is a leader on the team. He has a motor and goes 100 percent every play in games and practices. His attitude is always positive, win or lose." - Coach Rodney Ellison.

EMERY WEBB, Grace Christian Academy senior free safety. "Emery is the quarterback of the defense that always makes sure everyone is lined up correctly. He is always in position to make plays and is the glue that holds our defense together." - Coach Rusty

The news got even better for the Cherokees on their second drive. Facing a third and 16 from the Central 45, Nate Adbeyo took the handoff, changed direction, and eventually was pushed out of bounds at the 15 for a first down. On the very next play, Young broke multiple tackles and broke the plane for another score.

Midway through the second quarter the Central (4-5, 2-3 in Region 2-5A) offense finally got going. It was a 71-yard drive capped with a 12-yard touchdown run through the middle of the Cherokees defense by Devone Moss. With 6:55 to go in the half, it was a 14-7

Central was driving for the tying score when a bad snap went over the head of quarterback Eli Sharp. The loose ball was fallen on by linebacker Quantre Miles at the South-Doyle 45.

In the closing seconds of the first half Luke Lynn drilled a 35-yard field goal, giving South-Doyle a 17-7 advantage at the break.

In the third quarter the Cherokees defense stood up, forcing Sharp into a rushed lateral pitch, which was recovered by Austin Shuler at the Central 41. The ensuing drive would lead to a 34-yard field goal by Lynn, and with 6:52 left in the third quarter, it was 20-7 South-Doyle.

The Bobcats tried to physical defense and our respond on their next drive, After forcing Central into offensive line did a great job but the Cherokees blitzed. and his pass was intercepted by Seandre Scott at the Cherokees 27, and returned

A personal foul penalty backed South-Doyle (4-5, 4-2 in Region 2-5A) up to their own 5-yard line. That drive didn't result in points, but did allow the Cherokees to bleed the third quarter clock. In the fourth, South-Doyle's defense forced yet another turnover. Wesley Holt fell on the football after a bad exchange at the Central 28. It was their fourth takeaway of the night. Adebayo punched it in from five yards out with 4:30 left in the game to make it 27-7, and that would be the final score.

Last season South-Doyle got healthy and peaked in the final weeks of the season. They took that momentum all the way to the state semifinals in Class 5A. Duncan hopes for another long stay in the postseason this year.

"We have played the majority of the season with ten starting positions out up until three weeks ago," said Duncan. "We are healthy now and playing the way I thought we were capable of playing. I believe that if we can remain healthy and stay focused we have a chance to make a similar run."

On Friday South-Doyle finishes the regular season at Powell. Central takes on Gibbs in a game that could decide their postseason

Fulton restored order by driving 80 yards in nine plays. Determined running by Williamson produced back-to-back gains of 20 and 25 yards. Fenderson capped the march by hauling in an 11-yard pass from Malone to make it 27-7 with 7:14 to go in third quarter.

West failed to answer and Fenderson's 50-yard punt return made it 34-7.

Robquan Thomas intercepted Everson's ensuing first down pass and returned it to the West 13. The Falcons, however, couldn't cash this time as low snaps and a personal foul penalty backed them up. Demarcus Nelson intercepted Malone's third-andgoal pass from the 23.

Thomas weaved his way for a 55-yard touchdown run to complete Fulton's scoring with 7:30 left in the game.

The Doctor is in a weekly column by Dr. Jim Ferguson

Wonder

With all that is wrong in the world today I sometimes lose sight of the beauty and the majesty of creation. A friend and a reader of my stories noted a sense of pessimism in my Focus musings. I will admit that I am a glass-half-empty kind of guy. And though I don't dwell on the past, I focus too much on the future when I should concentrate on the present. Fortunately, my wife is a glass-half-full gal who balances my masculine yang with her grounded and feminine yin.

I told my friend that it's hard for a conservative like me to ignore the Washington swamp and our feckless leaders. Though I believe in the ultimate triumph of good over evil, it saddens me to think it may not happen in my lifetime or in America. My worldly concerns are the dissolution of morality, the disintegration of traditional institutions like the Democrat and Republican parties; even the NFL is falling apart. Babylon has existed in the Hollywood swamp for decades, so the recent exposé in tinsel town and its unraveling comes at no surprise to me. What astounds me is that so many can be manipulated by clueless movie stars and by the utterly corrupt media.

Too often too many walk with senses tuned to the latest fake news cycle instead of the greater reality around us, when wonder is just outside the door. I often encourage my grandson Oakley to walk with me in the woods. I tell him, "Come on Oaks, let's go; we might see something." And of course we usually do when we "look." I'm a stargazer and when the air is cold and clear wondrous things can be seen if you look up at the night sky instead of gazing down at your smart phone or at the idiot box. However, my eyes and telescope could not have seen the wondrous event recently recorded by scientists and the Hubble space telescope. Apparently, two neutron stars ended their cosmic dance and collided with each other 130,000,000 light years away in the distant past. The light from that cataclysmic explosion is just now reaching us. Astronomers and astrophysicists are studying this so-called "kilonova" and have measured gravity waves as predicted by Einstein.

Some might ask, what does it matter that scientists confirmed general relativity by measuring these gravity waves? What is the relevance of seeing farther and extending man's perceptual horizons? Actually, I believe it's far more important than reality TV or useless Congressional hearings which only afford a stage for Senate dinosaurs to grandstand, while the Rocket Man threatens the world and the mullahs in Iran build their bomb. The Jewish theologian, philosopher and rabbi, Abraham Joshua Heschel once said, "Never once in my life did I ask God for success or wisdom or power or fame. I asked for wonder, and he gave it to me."

I saw the first Christmas decorations this week in a Bearden shop window. Folks, that's just not right; we haven't even had Halloween or Thanksgiving yet! Nonetheless, these decorations and the recent scientific revelations caused me to think of perhaps my favorite Christmas song. It's called "I Wonder as I Wander (...out under the sky") by John Jacob Niles. If you are unfamiliar with this song and it's haunting melody and spiritual reflections, go to You-Tube and tune your heart, mind and soul to wonder.

The universe is unimaginably vast and wondrous. We see distant stars and galaxies by the electromagnetic radiation they produce which reaches us across space and time as light. This radiation travels at the speed of 186,000 miles a second. Contrast that with the fastest transmission of a human nerve impulse which travels at 100 meters/sec or about one football field/second. The light from our own sun takes eight minutes to reach the earth, and the light from the next nearest star takes four years to reach our eyes and telescopes. It may be hard to get your mind around, but we actually see what stars looked like in the past when their light rays began their journey. By observing and measuring distant celestial objects, scientists look backwards toward the dawn of the universe estimated to be 13.8 billion years ago or 13.8 billion light years "distant."

I learned last week that

scope is not only seeing farther, but seeing more. New estimates of the size of the universe boggle my mind. Our Milky Way galaxy has several hundred billion stars. (And we also know that many stars have planets circling them.) For some time we thought there were 100 billion other galaxies in the known universe. The latest estimate is that there are more than a trillion other galaxies! If you take an average of 100 billion stars per galaxy then there are 10²² stars in the universe, that's a ten followed by twenty-two zeros. There are more stars than there are grains of sand on all the beaches of the world.

I once wrote a paper about the location of heaven. No, I've never visited there or heard voices revealing heaven's coordinates. My ruminations were just a science based thought experiment. People are curious by nature, and for all of recorded time, people have wondered about death and if anything comes next. Actually, as I consider the vastness of space and the multidimensional wonders of creation's space-time, I don't worry about that "far country." I just trust that it will be OK for me and others. Even before Jesus, Socrates thought so.

In the sixth century BC, Jerusalem and God's Temple were destroyed by the Babylonians, and the Jews were carried off into slavery. Some thought the exile would quickly end. However, the ancient prophet Jeremiah told the conquered Hebrews that they should not focus on the future, but live in the present moment. Jeremiah told the exiles to plant gardens and vineyards, to raise families and trust in the Lord. They did and restora-

OUR VETERANS NEXT DOOR

Two Soldiers Made Her Grandmother Cry

By Randall Baxter

So one day five or six years ago, I was at work, minding my own business and the phone rang.

"Mr. Baxter," said the female voice on the phone. "I have been listening to your radio show, and I have a story I want to tell.

"I want to tell you about my uncle. I was three years old and I remember two soldiers knocked at my Grandmother's door. She let them in and before they had left my grandmother was crying.

"All I know is my uncle was just a boy out of high school. He did not want to be a poor, Kentucky /Tennessee farmer like his parents. He did not have the resources or desire to attend a university, or any nearby college like Lincoln Memorial. So he joined the military in 1950. And now these two soldiers were making my Grandmother cry. I never knew what happened to him. Only that he died in Korea. Can you find out what happened to him for me?"

I had never received such a challenge, and I was intrigued enough to see what I could find out.

I got his Discharge papers and his service history. I researched his Division and his units and this is all I could find out.

His Division was retreating down a mountain road with Chinese soldiers hot on the trail. There were also Chinese soldiers in front of them with machine gun nests positioned around curves in the road. The US trucks were hauling soldiers. When a truck came around a curve, the Chinese would rake the truck with gun fire. Many of the drivers were just kids themselves, and many panicked and stopped their trucks, exposing the soldiers in the back to the raking fire. The soldiers in the back of the trucks would leap out and dive for cover. The Chinese would stop firing and many of the drivers would skedaddle on down the road, leaving their helpless cargo. Hundreds were captured, and marched in the freezing air, north to the Yalu River. No real food, and only the clothes on their backs. Upon arrival to the POW camp they were divided into groups and placed into huts. Fed only sorghum and suet for weeks.

A large number of American and Allied POWs died in captivity. The North Koreans and Red Chinese did not feed or care for our soldiers. Many starved or died from dysentery and pneumonia. A surviving POW said he knew our Kentucky soldier. He had been one of the soldiers who died near the border by the Yalu River from that same starvation and/or disease and the freezing weather. Chairman Mao and the grandfather of the current leader in North Korea were in charge of this disaster. To this day, the USA is not allowed to go to the camps and recover the bodies of our soldiers who died there. Our soldier is buried there with his dog tags in his mouth, waiting to come home to his little border town on the Tn/Ky line.

Maybe it was best that those two soldiers reported him missing in action. Maybe it was best his Mother did not know of his plight. Now you know.

You can now go to my website and register to hear some of my shows. All you have to do is sign in and listen.
