

Tom Spangler for Sheriff Campaign Opens Headquarters

By Christine

Tom Spangler, a candidate for Sheriff of Knox County, has opened his campaign headquarters at the newly renovated 1000 N. Main St. The building, which was formerly the site of the old County Jail, is a historic landmark and has been transformed into a modern office space. Spangler, who is running for Sheriff in the November election, is a former Sheriff of Knox County and has a long history in law enforcement. He is currently the Sheriff of Sevier County and is looking to bring his experience back to Knox County. The headquarters is located in a historic building that has been renovated to provide a professional and modern environment for the campaign. The building features large windows, modern furniture, and a comfortable atmosphere for visitors. Spangler is looking forward to meeting with voters and discussing his vision for Knox County. He is also looking forward to working with the community to improve law enforcement and public safety. The headquarters is open to the public and is a great place to learn more about Spangler's campaign and his vision for Knox County.

Spangler, who is running for Sheriff in the November election, is a former Sheriff of Knox County and has a long history in law enforcement. He is currently the Sheriff of Sevier County and is looking to bring his experience back to Knox County. The headquarters is located in a historic building that has been renovated to provide a professional and modern environment for the campaign. The building features large windows, modern furniture, and a comfortable atmosphere for visitors. Spangler is looking forward to meeting with voters and discussing his vision for Knox County. He is also looking forward to working with the community to improve law enforcement and public safety. The headquarters is open to the public and is a great place to learn more about Spangler's campaign and his vision for Knox County.

Tom Spangler, a candidate for Sheriff of Knox County, has opened his campaign headquarters at the newly renovated 1000 N. Main St. The building, which was formerly the site of the old County Jail, is a historic landmark and has been transformed into a modern office space. Spangler, who is running for Sheriff in the November election, is a former Sheriff of Knox County and has a long history in law enforcement. He is currently the Sheriff of Sevier County and is looking to bring his experience back to Knox County. The headquarters is located in a historic building that has been renovated to provide a professional and modern environment for the campaign. The building features large windows, modern furniture, and a comfortable atmosphere for visitors. Spangler is looking forward to meeting with voters and discussing his vision for Knox County. He is also looking forward to working with the community to improve law enforcement and public safety. The headquarters is open to the public and is a great place to learn more about Spangler's campaign and his vision for Knox County.

MPC talks sidewalks again

By Christine

The Metropolitan Planning Commission (MPC) is back in the news, this time for its decision to approve a $10 million project to improve sidewalks in the downtown area. The project, which is part of the MPC's ongoing efforts to improve the city's infrastructure, will involve the construction of new sidewalks and the repair of existing ones. The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The MPC is a joint venture of the city and the county, and its decisions are subject to approval by the city council and the county commission. The project is a significant investment in the city's infrastructure and is expected to improve the safety and accessibility of the downtown area. The MPC is also looking for ways to fund the project, and is currently exploring various options. The project is a great example of the MPC's commitment to improving the city's infrastructure and making it a more attractive place to live and work.

The Metropolitan Planning Commission (MPC) is back in the news, this time for its decision to approve a $10 million project to improve sidewalks in the downtown area. The project, which is part of the MPC's ongoing efforts to improve the city's infrastructure, will involve the construction of new sidewalks and the repair of existing ones. The project is expected to be completed by the end of the year. The MPC is a joint venture of the city and the county, and its decisions are subject to approval by the city council and the county commission. The project is a significant investment in the city's infrastructure and is expected to improve the safety and accessibility of the downtown area. The MPC is also looking for ways to fund the project, and is currently exploring various options. The project is a great example of the MPC's commitment to improving the city's infrastructure and making it a more attractive place to live and work.

2018's political year update

By Christine

As we look back on the year 2018, it's clear that it was a year of significant political events. From the midterms to the presidential inauguration, there were many moments that defined the year. The midterms were a major event, with voters going to the polls to elect members of Congress. The results were a surprise, with the Democrats winning a majority in the House of Representatives. The presidential inauguration was also a major event, with President Trump taking the oath of office. The year was also marked by several other political events, including the impeachment of President Trump and the passage of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act. The year was a year of change and uncertainty, but it was also a year of progress and achievement. As we look forward to the future, it's clear that there is still much work to be done, but we are optimistic about the future.

As we look back on the year 2018, it's clear that it was a year of significant political events. From the midterms to the presidential inauguration, there were many moments that defined the year. The midterms were a major event, with voters going to the polls to elect members of Congress. The results were a surprise, with the Democrats winning a majority in the House of Representatives. The presidential inauguration was also a major event, with President Trump taking the oath of office. The year was also marked by several other political events, including the impeachment of President Trump and the passage of the Tax Cuts and Jobs Act. The year was a year of change and uncertainty, but it was also a year of progress and achievement. As we look forward to the future, it's clear that there is still much work to be done, but we are optimistic about the future.

School board hears from auditors, decides on lobbyist

By Christine

The School Board of the City of Knoxville is meeting today to hear from the auditors and to decide on a lobbyist. The auditors will present their findings on the school district's financial operations, and the board will decide on a lobbyist to represent the district in the upcoming legislative session. The board is also expected to discuss other matters, including the district's budget and the state of the district's facilities. The board is a key decision-making body for the school district, and its decisions have a significant impact on the district's operations. The board is made up of representatives from the city and the county, and its members are elected by the voters. The board is responsible for setting the district's policy and overseeing the district's operations. The board is also responsible for ensuring that the district's finances are in good order and that its facilities are in good condition. The board is a vital part of the school district's governance, and its decisions are crucial to the district's success.

The School Board of the City of Knoxville is meeting today to hear from the auditors and to decide on a lobbyist. The auditors will present their findings on the school district's financial operations, and the board will decide on a lobbyist to represent the district in the upcoming legislative session. The board is also expected to discuss other matters, including the district's budget and the state of the district's facilities. The board is a key decision-making body for the school district, and its decisions have a significant impact on the district's operations. The board is made up of representatives from the city and the county, and its members are elected by the voters. The board is responsible for setting the district's policy and overseeing the district's operations. The board is also responsible for ensuring that the district's finances are in good order and that its facilities are in good condition. The board is a vital part of the school district's governance, and its decisions are crucial to the district's success.

The School Board of the City of Knoxville is meeting today to hear from the auditors and to decide on a lobbyist. The auditors will present their findings on the school district's financial operations, and the board will decide on a lobbyist to represent the district in the upcoming legislative session. The board is also expected to discuss other matters, including the district's budget and the state of the district's facilities. The board is a key decision-making body for the school district, and its decisions have a significant impact on the district's operations. The board is made up of representatives from the city and the county, and its members are elected by the voters. The board is responsible for setting the district's policy and overseeing the district's operations. The board is also responsible for ensuring that the district's finances are in good order and that its facilities are in good condition. The board is a vital part of the school district's governance, and its decisions are crucial to the district's success.