

By Pete Gavenda

Regulations that were ten years in the making were discussed on Jan. 29 when a handful of interested persons gathered at the city's public works service center to hear Knoxville County Metropolitan Planning Commission (MPC) staff member Thomas Brachio discuss recently adopted subdivision regulations.

The regulations, which were adopted by the MPC Oct. 12, 2017 will become effective Feb. 1 of this year. Brachio said his organization had worked on the regulations off and on for ten years. He added that the section on sidewalks delayed the process a year.

Some of the changes consisted of clarification in Lonsdale Principal Wendy Howard (right) presents Zandhia Dubson with a check for $4,117 for the Zandhia Dubson Fund. The money was raised by Lonsdale students to honor Zandria.

Lonsdale honors

Knitting Mill on City agenda

By Mike Steady
steadymike@knoxnews.com

Knoxville City Council may restore a piece of vacant land from residents to Public Parks and Recreation in order to become part of the proposed Emerald Youth complex in Lowville.

The resolution to change the zoning is before the city council's Tuesday meeting on Second Reading.

Also on second and final reading is the request of Gary Hood for changes along Central Avenue Five north of Call-