

PHOTO BY BOB LANG

5th District school board member and candidate Amber Rountree addresses a large crowd at the South Knox Alliance candidate forum last week at Dogwood Elementary School.

Despite being the final speaker of the evening, Amber Rountree radiated enthusiasm as she discussed her accomplishments and her vision for Knox County Schools.

Amber Rountree, who currently represents the 6th District and is serving a second term as vice chair of the Knox County Board of Education, returned to Dogwood Elementary for the candidate forum. As the school board member representing the Community district, she has implemented comprehensive reasoning which allows students to attend the schools closest to them. "I feel that neighborhood support is so important to our kids," she emphasized.

Rountree talked about the benefit of the community school program such as Dogwood. "This model brings services, partnerships and mentors to our school, which has contributed to our students' success."

Another recent success she mentioned has been happy to select Superintendent Rob Thomas, a selection which she says has brought an increased positive school culture and morale. She is also proud of the work accomplished by the educational disparity in educational outcome last year of which she was a member.

Rountree believes that there is still much to be done and said she has great plans for the future of Knox County Schools and the schools in South Knoxville. A top priority that she has is to continue to expand the program here at Dogwood. "I want to see this extremely successful early literacy program continue to expand throughout Knox County."

Candidates for county commission at large seats present were Ronnie Roshelle, Larry Smith, Justin Biggs and Teri Griffin. Daniel Gaskie was represented by Danny Whitton and Lauren Jay was represented by Scott Broyles. The candidates were asked to Continue on page 2

Questions answered at mayoral candidate debate

By Mike Stealy
stealmike@knoxnews.com

Campaign supporters and interested citizens packed the auditorium at Jewett Television's mayor debate Thursday.

With John Becker

that money is "better in your pocket than in some politician's hands."

Thomas said "No" and said that the county needs to "use business sense" and look at programs that could be reduced and save

Jacobs agreed some departments could be consolidated and said he "lives in the county and don't want it."

Thomas said he "can't imagine that" and noted that a move to metro-type system, safety, teachers pay and the need for drug education at an earlier age.

The candidates were also asked about neighborhood safety, pay raises for teachers, major employers in the county, TIP and

Early voting starts Wednesday

By Mike Stealy
stealmike@knoxnews.com

Early voting in Knox County begins Wednesday and the races for sheriff and county mayor seem to be driving the turnout. There are lots of other offices on the ballot, everything from commission races to non-partisan school board races.

All in all whatever party primary you vote for, the ballot is going to be a bit longer than you might expect. Early voting runs until April 25 with