Liberal conservative Democrats vote to support House and Obama

WASHINGTON — A group of liberal conservative Democrats in the House of Representatives has voted to support the Obama administration's budget proposal. The group, known as the Blue Dog coalition, consists of 40 members of the House. They are the only Democrats in the House who support the Obama administration's budget proposal. The group's support is crucial for the Obama administration's budget proposal to pass. The Obama administration's budget proposal is a 10-year budget plan that includes a 15% increase in the top marginal tax rate, a 2% increase in the top marginal estate tax rate, and a 2% increase in the top marginal gift tax rate. The Obama administration's budget proposal also includes a 2% increase in the top marginal income tax rate for households with income over $250,000.
