Early voting as heavy as expected

Early voting for the 2024 U.S. House of Representatives election in Tennessee's 1st district was as heavy as expected, with thousands of voters casting their ballots in person before Election Day. The state's early voting period is currently open through the end of the month. The high turnout is seen as a positive sign for the state's electoral process.

Protesters in Memphis, Tenn., on the day after the election, held signs that read "VOTE EARLY" and "VOTE EARLY" in support of the state's early voting process.
