

Amplified Sound Ordinance Postponed

By Mike Smith
Staff Writer/Reporter

The city is set to promulgate an ordinance that will allow residents to file complaints for their neighborhood's sound level. After several postponements, the city council has decided to postpone the ordinance until the city council meets in February. The ordinance would allow residents to file complaints with the city council, which would then refer the complaint to the city's sound level committee. The ordinance would also allow residents to file complaints with the city's sound level committee. The ordinance would also allow residents to file complaints with the city's sound level committee.
