

FREE
Take One!
July 9, 2018

The 'Jane Allen Drive' keeps going

During a short meeting the Knoxville City Council adopted a resolution honoring the late Lynn Redmon, postponed a rezoning on Ferd Hickey Road, authorized a property purchase to expand a greenway, and authorized the mayor to apply for a grant to purchase a police boat and dock.

The thirty-minute session on Tuesday saw Councilman Marshall Stair read the resolution about Redmon, honoring the community leader and political consultant, a persuasive speaker and activist, a leader of the fiberwood community, and a gentleman.

Mayor Madeline Rogers said that Redmon always looked "at the long game" and believed that good and reasonable people may disagree. Redmon's longtime companion, Susan Rickabaugh, spoke briefly and accepted the honors on behalf of Redmon's family. Larry Silverstein said that Redmon was one of the founders of Community Forum.

"He didn't have to yell to make his point," Silverstein said.

The second and final reading to permit 4 units per acre to be built on Ferd Hickey Road east of Piney Grove Road was postponed for two weeks on a request from Councilwoman Seema Singh-Perez. The rezoning, requested by the Planning Commission, would take the property from Agriculture to Planned Residential.

The council also voted approval of an agreement with Volunteer Ministry Center for $110,000 to provide services to the homeless who utilize the Day Resource Center, Dental Clinic and Bush Family Refuge. It also authorized contracts with Och, Inc. to provide long-term disability and life insurance for city employees. The agreement is for three years.

A guardrail project agreement with Roadway Solutions LLC was approved. The city-wide agreement is for $200,000 for the first year and $100,000 each year with an option to renew.

Also authorized was an agreement with CDM Smith, Inc. for $102,623 for the Amherst Road project.

The mayor was authorized to acquire property along Ball Camp Pike from twelve landowners for the Northwest Greenway Connector Project. The $250,000 project would go to acquire right of way acquisition between Victor Ashe Park and the pedestrian bridge on Western Avenue. The project is estimated to take about six months of construction.

Mayor Rogers was also authorized to accept the closed right of way at Minnesota Avenue next to Sam E. Hill School in Lonsdale as part of the Emerald Youth Foundation's plans for a center there.

She was also authorized to apply for a Homeland Security grant of more than $430,000 with a 25% match to buy a police boat, equipment and a dock for use by the police and fire departments.

By Steve Williams

Someday, when you're driving north on Broadway past Historic Fountain City Lake and the duck pond, slow down as you near Fountain City Wrecker Service on the right.

At the next turnoff, notice the street sign: Jane Allen Drive. It used to be Brief Road, but was renamed about a year ago, at the request of Glenn Allen, Jane's loving husband for almost 59 years.

His reason given to the Metropolitan Planning Commission and City of Knoxville for the change:

"To honor and pay tribute to a lady who has served Fountain City and the City of Knoxville for over 55 years," stated Glenn in the application dated June 1, 2017.

He also went on to add that his wife had been selected as Fountain City Woman of the Year (1996) and was given the Knoxville News Sentinel Community Cornerstone Award (2000).

"Mrs. Allen also served on the Board of Zoning Appeals and the Tax Equalization Board for the City of Knoxville under former Mayors Victor Ashe and Bill Haslam," stated Glenn.

That road is still short and brief, but the life of the person it's now named after has been long and physically challenging, yet filled with much caring and giving.

In addition to her work for the mayors, there were times when Jane Allen used to pick up Sarah Moore Greene, well-known Civil-rights pioneer, educator and community leader in Knoxville, and give her a ride home, said Glenn.

"We had a friendship," said Jane. "She was getting up in age and I wanted to make it easier for her."

Some years later, however, weak from chemo treatment she was taking for cancer, Allen fell and broke her neck.

"She can barely walk with a walker," said Glenn this past spring. "I bought a new car to make it easy for her to get in and out."

Now at 84, Allen may not be able to get around on her own like she used to, but her mind is sharp, her personality sweet and charming and she still gets out and goes places with friends as well as Glenn.

St. Paul United Methodist Church may be her favorite destination. It's located on Garden Drive, just a quick, left turn off Jane Allen Drive that many folks use for a short cut.

"About 1964, I asked a neighbor about finding a small church," recalled Jane. "I thought it was important to start having

I thought it was important to start Nancy (her then 4-year-old daughter) in church and I really needed it. I'm so thankful and blessed to have started at St. Paul, where I joined United Methodist Women, became chair for Helping Hands and taught the children in Sunday School.

"My church has been an important, vital part of my life! I wanted to serve and become a member of the women's group and became involved in Missions. I love my church and church family so!"

Jane is still able to continue her "card ministry," which she started years ago. She loves sending birthday and anniversary cards, get-well wishes and announcements of wedding and baby showers. She also sends Christmas and Easter cards to "shut-ins."

Just last Thursday morning, while Glenn was playing golf at Whittle Springs, she was at home in their condo off Cedar Lane, sending out birth announcements of a new addition in her family.

"We've become great-grandparents," she said joyfully.

The Allens' granddaughter and grandson-in-law, Elizabeth and Daniel Reese, had brought their first child into the world at Germantown Hospital near Memphis on June 26. Her name is Nora Jane Reese.

That, of course, brought a smile to Jane Allen's face.

Glenn would return home later in the afternoon and prepare dinner for the two as he usually does.

"When Glenn shared about his street sign project last year, he told how long he had been working on it but didn't think it

"I told him the important part was that he tried. He never cared for meetings and

"What an honor and tribute - not deserved but so appreciated!"

It's fitting too that they picked 'Drive' for the new name. Jane Allen has been through so much but had the drive and

Please continue Jane's story inside.

New Ford F150 $29,500
 Offer Factory Options with Fast Credit Financing 4x4, chrome package
 with full power lifts

RAY
 VARNER

Price includes 1000-buck for Plus tax, tag and title. 48% - 50% - one of us reduces Price money may apply. See dealer for details. From grandfather's "old" word

2026 N Charles G Seewers Blvd. Clinton, TN
865.457.0704
www.rayvarnerford.com