3 (SELAILIM WILLOVIOCOP COLLI

Mayor.

the county.

several things during the League of Women Voters candidate forum at that were submitted by the audience and the one about the possibility of raising property taxes saw Haney come down with a firm "maybe." Haney said that for 25 years the county has not raised taxes and is now in debt. "If you want these things you've got to pay for them," she said, adding that

Republican Glenn Jacobs and Democrat Linda Haney agreed on Pellissippi State College Friday night.

But the forum at the Magnolia Avenue campus also heard some large disagreements from the two people who want to be the next Knox County

Moderator Ted Hall read questions

it would have been "totally logical to raise taxes slowly" over the past years. Jacobs said there's no need to raise taxes because of "organic growth" in cussion.

"I do. That's the sheriff's decision."

using local law enforcement to help find illegal aliens has been tried other places and it didn't work.

East Knoxville audience when he

Linda Haney looks over some notes prior the LWV forum Friday evening as her opponent, Glenn Jacobs, and WVLT's Ted Hall prepare for the public dis-

Streetscape Project

Construction gets underway next month on $4.18 million first phase

The community is invited to ask questions and learn more about the project at an open house, 5:30 - 7 p.m. Monday, July 23, at the John T.

611 Winona St. City Engineering and Redevelopment staff will be there Monday to talk with stakeholders one on one. Also at this open house will be Vaughn and Melton, which is provid-

O'Connor Senior Center.

sidewalks and bike lanes. Work will begin on the north side of Magnolia Avenue at Jessamine Street, and it will progress eastward to Myrtle Street. Then, the work will shift to the south side of Magnolia and move westward back to Jessamine. One lane of traffic in each direction will be maintained on Magnolia Avenue throughout the project, and pedestrian access through the work zone - and access to businesses - will be maintained at all times. A groundbreaking ceremony is scheduled for