

www.knoxfocus.com

Now offering online auction services Fountain City Auction

(865)604-3468 fountaincityauction.com

October 8, 2018

ne: 865-686-9970 | Fax: 865-686-9966 | PO Box 18377, Knoxville, TN 37928 | Located at 4109 Central Avenue Pike, Knoxville, Tennessee 37912

Panthers turn a tough week into a proud night was in the news last week - and wasn't good news

Friday night the Panthers were n the spotlight - and they shined from the TSSAA on Wednesday. Oct. 3, with notification that its football team would have to forfeit its six wins this season for using an ineligible player.

Three of those wins - now losses - were against Region 3-5A opponents and could end up costing the Panthers a berth in the post-season playoffs. But Powell senior Duece

Shreve said a possible playoff run wasn't the only thing on the Panthers' minds when they took the field at West Friday night Basically coming into the

for something a lot bigger than FAMILY There was not a big celebration after Powell's vin at West Fri day night. Head Coach Matt Lowe pulled his players in quick ly and closed with a prayer. Lowe's younge daughter, Linni. can be seen stay ing dose to her d. Please see game story on Powell's 36-21 win over West and other high school sports coverage in Sports & Recre ation, Section C. Photo by Tracy Heard.

David Crocker, founder of "Inasmuch," instructs volunteers at Good Shepherd Episcopal Church how to package the food being prepa

Fountain City Episcopal church's labor of love for the hungry

One recent Saturday morning more than 40 people went to the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd for a special event. They were volunteering to help Operation Inasmuch, Inc., to assemble 20,000 pasta and tomato sauce packets for Second Har-

Rev. Dorrie Pratt welcomed the volunteers with a prayer and David Crocker, founder of Operation Inasmuch, spoke to the crowd and instructed them how to measure, package and seal the meals. Pratt's prayer included the message that "sending it out to those in need so they all know they in the name of Jesus."

"We work with churches, other organiza tions, companies and schools to package 300,000 to 400,000 meals each year," Crocker told The Focus. Each package being prepared by the volunteers can feed up to six people

Assembly of the food packages began at 9 a.m. and volunteers continued to arrive to help throughout the morning. Casey Col-lins, a Good Shepherd member, organized the event. Ruth Anne Hanahan reached out to The Focus to attend the event.

John Daugherty, executive director of Inasmuch, said the food, packets, and

He added that Inasmuch provided the cales to weight the food and the plastic bag sealer. The process begins with the volunteers using hand cleaner, putting on bling on both sides of each table.

After her prayer Rev. Pratt watched Crocker give the instructions to the vol-unteers and then she put on gloves and a hairnet and joined in the assembly pro-plastic gloves and hairnets, and assem-

"We do international and domestic meals and have supplied food to 50 orphanages

Vice Chair Susan Horn conducts school board meeting

Chairperson Terry Hill was trav elling on Wednesday night leav ing the vice chairperson, Susan Horn, to preside over Wednes-day night's Knox County School Board meeting. Mike McMillan 8th District representative, was also absent

Horn began by making an announcement regarding the upcoming Tennessee State Board of Education (TSBA) meeting November 1-4, 2018 in Nash ville, Tennessee. Some members of the Knox County School Board will be attending this meeting.

Next Horn asked for any chang-es to the agenda. When none were requested, 3rd District Representative Tony Norman moved to approve the agenda. The agenda was subsequently approved.

Superintendent reported that on Monday morn-ing, October 1, 2018, he attended the introduction of the Knoxville Health Department's Healthy Habits Child Health Week at Sam E. Hill Elementary School This was an assembly for both pre-schoolers and kindergar-teners. The discussion hinged around nutrition, physical exer-cise, hand washing, and dental hygiene. Superintendent Thomas commented on the exemplary behavior of the students in the assembly. Thomas also con-gratulated Bryan Schultz, a sci-ence teacher at the L&M Stem Academy, for being chosen one

