

special session on pension suit

Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs has called a special session of the county commission to mandate a discussion about the "settlement" he approved for the pension board/law department lawsuit. The settlement did not get enough votes to be placed on the commission's regular agenda last week (see "Pension 'settlement' defeated by commission" inside) and this special meeting seems to be an attempt to nullify the results of Monday's vote.

In a notice to his fellow commissioners Chairman Hugh Hystrom posted Thursday that the mayor has the option of calling a special session and the chairman is mandated to notify members. Hystrom set the session for Thursday.

Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs watches the county commission defeat a proposal he made during Monday's work session.

school board meeting short and sweet

By Anne Pilson

Chairwoman Terry Hill called Wednesday's meeting to order at 5:00 p.m. The flag was presented by the Central High School FJROTC which was followed by the Pledge of Allegiance. All nine members of the school board were present.

Chairwoman Hill began the meeting by congratulating Second District Representative Jennifer Owen for receiving an Outstanding Community Advocate Award from the University of Tennessee's Theory and Practice in Teacher Education Department.

Chairwoman Hill called on Commissioner Larson Jay to share information about how he and First District Representative Dorey Satterfield have been named co-chairs of the Joint Education Committee in a
