

Cheerleader Ashley Haglund poses for a picture in the hallway of Home.

Halls cheerleaders, Bearden basketball players are among holiday helpers

By Peter Williams

Male cheerleaders and the Bearden boys basketball team have joined forces to help out at a local shelter for the homeless during the holidays.

The two groups worked at the annual Festival of Trees, which benefits the local homeless shelter. The cheerleaders and basketball players were part of a team that helped out at the shelter. They were also part of a team that helped out at the shelter.

The cheerleaders and basketball players were part of a team that helped out at the shelter. They were also part of a team that helped out at the shelter.

Bearden cheerleader Ashley Haglund posed for a picture in the hallway of Home. She is wearing a red shirt and a black wristband. She is also wearing a black headband.

The cheerleaders and basketball players were part of a team that helped out at the shelter. They were also part of a team that helped out at the shelter.

The cheerleaders and basketball players were part of a team that helped out at the shelter. They were also part of a team that helped out at the shelter.

The cheerleaders and basketball players were part of a team that helped out at the shelter. They were also part of a team that helped out at the shelter.

The cheerleaders and basketball players were part of a team that helped out at the shelter. They were also part of a team that helped out at the shelter.

The cheerleaders and basketball players were part of a team that helped out at the shelter. They were also part of a team that helped out at the shelter.

The cheerleaders and basketball players were part of a team that helped out at the shelter. They were also part of a team that helped out at the shelter.