His experience as a chimney was mentioned Tuesday as Little House kicked off the campaign to become Tennessee's next mayor. A large crowd attended the event where Mayor highlighted six things he hopes to do when he leads the city.

Mayor discussed the three new seats to military veterans and many of those were "Hawks" and sought out the candidates for transportation and state police and other agencies.

Many of the officials at the ceremony offered most heartfelt announcements and Tuesday's event was held in the morning to serve the needs of all citizens, emphasizing the city through education and self-improvement, being people focused, and supporting and safe neighborhoods.

"Joining hearts together" is the campaign's slogan and he added, "We can't just leave it to those who are in power for the best" in education, health, and other areas.

He said that the police and the departments should get the support they need and deserve and added, "I can't do this alone."

Mary Hickman turns 92 with family and friends at Litton's

By Amy Rose

Mary Grady Hickman celebrated her 92nd birthday at a business gathering on Saturday, January 20. Thanksgiving was going for an informal birthday dinner with longtime friends, state Representative Dave Wright and wife, Pat. Mary brought her famous Hummingbird Cake to share with her friends after their meal.

"Mary is so generous and generous that you can hardly do anything for her without her trying to repay the kindness," Pat Wright said. "She said, 'So when she told us that she was going to have a cake for us to enjoy after dinner Dave told her that would be just fine.'"

When they arrived at her favorite restaurant, Litton's, the back room was filled with family, church, and community friends all of whom enjoyed a slice of her cake after a good meal.

Mary Grady Hickman shared fond memories of her childhood and her time in the community. Granddaughter of the late G. Grady, who once served Little Rock, Mary, she talked
