

Sam Houston lecture today

Sam Houston State University is hosting a lecture by Governor Bill Lee on Tuesday, Oct. 15, at 7 p.m. in the Sam Houston Ballroom. The lecture is free and open to the public. The governor will discuss his vision for the state and his plans for the future. The lecture is part of the university's annual "Sam Houston Lecture Series."

Governor Bill Lee visits South-Doyle to discuss vocational programs

Governor Bill Lee visited South-Doyle High School on Monday, Oct. 14, to discuss vocational programs. The governor met with school officials and students to learn more about the school's vocational programs and how they can be improved. The governor praised the school's efforts to provide students with hands-on learning experiences and to prepare them for the workforce.

New special education teachers may get $7,000 bonus

Two women, one older and one younger, standing together. The younger woman is likely a special education teacher and the older woman is likely a school administrator or parent.

The state is offering a $7,000 bonus to new special education teachers. This bonus is intended to attract more people to the profession and to help them get started. The bonus will be paid to teachers who have completed their first year of teaching in a special education classroom. The bonus is part of a larger effort to improve the state's special education system.

Securus $250,000 payment to sheriff department on commission agenda

Securus is set to make a $250,000 payment to the sheriff's department. This payment is part of a larger agreement between the two entities. The payment is intended to help the sheriff's department with its operations and to improve the state's security. The payment is one of several measures that are being taken to address the state's security needs.
