

By Mike Searly
ms@piedmont.com

presented by Mayor Rogero

A smiling Debbie Rogers gave her budget proposal to a large crowd at the proposed 100th Avenue highway that Friday night the theme of the city address Rogers with a presentation of the flag by the Police Department Honor Guard, the Mayor of Asheville for signed documents and the National Anthem performed by guest artist from the Asheville region.

By Mike Searly
ms@piedmont.com

"We still have a lot to accomplish," Mayor said smooth transition" with who ever is elected as the city's new mayor. He says three of the four announced candi-ds presented on the faculty when such a transition and the departments, city courts and the person office.

the growing number of inter-connected greenways and said that a portion or less of the former White Park would

The quarterly meeting of the Police Advisory and Review Committee drew a crowd crowd Wednesday as it met at the Hager Entertainment Group headquarters on Mount Airy. Committee member Dennis Brington, attending his last full meeting, was recognized for his service.

The committee, appointed to oversee the city police department and headed by Executive Director Christine Daughn, its shared with the public the cases it reviewed during the first quarter of this year and gave an overview of its duties. The meeting was highlighted by an address from city council member Lawrence Cooper, head of the police department.

Small guides, the meeting through a video presentation detailing the history of audio and video recording the Hager team officers. She said that camera equipment was added in 2009 and now the police use on the fourth generation of cameras and recording.

"It is to protect you and us," she said, adding that about 300 recordings are saved each month and uploaded here and when the recordings are created. Each recording is saved for three years. The also