By Anne Primm

The June 5, 2019 Knox County School Board meeting was called to order by Chair Terry Hill at 5:02 p.m. with all nine districts represented. Fourth District Representative Virginia Babb led the Pledge of Allegiance and the moment of silence. Hill reminded everyone that the deadline for transfers is July 1, 2019.

Chair Terry Hill took the opportunity to recognize the Knox County School Board's 2019 Student Representative, Hannah Selph. Hannah is from Chairperson Hill's own sixth district. Hannah is an academic scholar who was designated as an AP Scholar and member of Mu Alpha Theta, and has been accepted into the University of Tennessee's prestigious Chancellors Honors Program. She also served as a member of the Hardin Valley High school Marching Band, was a Stem Academy Ambassador, was a Tennessee TSA State Official Coach for two years, and volunteered at church, KARM, and at the American Cancer Society. Last but not least, she was nominated for the Hardin Valley

Commission approves Mayor Jacobs' Budget

By Mike Steely steelym@knoxfocus.com

The Knox County Commission passed Mayor Glenn Jacobs' first budget Thursday, an increase over last year's amount, but only after an attempt to restore funds to the Health Department for indigent care.

While the $853 million budget gained final unanimous approval on the way to the vote three commissioners voted unsuccessfully to restore funds for the care of poor people to the previous level.

Jacob proposed cutting the funds to the health department and its indigent care program by about 43%. Commissioner Brad Anders began the budget meeting Thursday afternoon by offering a substitute motion to restore the funds. He said that the county's unappropriated funds could cover the needed money and suggested that over the coming year the program could be defined.

Anders said the restoration of to the current balance would be a "one time"

Citizens and communities debate many issues, but few people are against greenways.

The paved paths provide numerous benefits by connecting neighborhoods, encouraging walking and biking, and supporting new greenways throughout economic development.

In 2009, the Metropolitan Planning Commission (as it was known then) included in a Parks and Recreation Master Plan the approval of an expansion to Knox County's greenway system. It was decided that the public should have a say in determining where, and by how much, the expansion the health and economic benefits should occur.

On Wed., June 5, the first of four community-input presentations about the greenway corridor was held at Karns Elementary School to educate the public about preference for greenway the issue, and to allow citizen feedback. Of the county's four greenway corridors, Beaver Creek West, which would connect Hardin Valley to Powell, was the focus.

The other three corridors are Northshore Drive, Beaver Creek East, and South Knox Co.

John Houghton works for Gresham, Smith and Partners, an architectural/engineering firm consulting on the project for Knox County.

"The county's looking to add the county," said Houghton. "Tonight we're looking at where a new greenway can go in those communities. There's been a lot of demand for additional greenways. They've done some projects (since 2009); this is the next wave of potential projects."

Informational exhibits outlined of greenways, and there were aerial photos of the entire county with the proposed construction in color-coded dots.

Visitors could indicate their expansion in three different ways. One exhibit had 12 photos - six each of locations and features of greenways - and anyone could photos of their choice.

Another exhibit allowed placing revise these routes based on the a sticker on a least-to-greatest (1-5) scale for each of three different greenway benefits: connectivity, quality-of-life, and economic development. Written post-it notes could be placed anywhere on the aerial photos.

Said Shauna Godleveky, Knox Co. Parks Planning and Development Manager: "We have a grant from the Tennessee Department of Transportation; it's a $300,000 grant and it has an 80%-20% match, so 20% comes from the county. It's a project that should be done by the end of the year and it will give us a focus on which greenways we should work on for different reasons, whether it's health, economic impact, alternate transportation opportunities, or connectivity."

According to Godlevsky, the information and input gathered at the four meetings will be finalized at a series of meetings currently scheduled for August.

"We have a team of engineers put an orange sticker on the and landscape architects and from all this information they'll comments, along with some of other data they have gathered, and then they'll come up with a revised plan," she said. "We'll then have another round of public meetings to show the final product. At these meetings they're gonna have cost estimates, and then they'll recommend phasing.

Funding, of course, not only will be critical to the entire project, but will determine the pace of expansion. According to Godlevsky, a single mile of greenway can cost up to $1 million.

"In the near future progress will be slow," said Godlevsky. "We really rely on grants from the TDOT (as well as county funding). They put in heavy requirements on how we have to build and it makes the costs go higher."

But, she says, greenway expansion is worth it.

"Big businesses will come into a city if they have a good greenway system.The value of these greenways, when they're done right, is massive."

Then I have to explain the case. to them that character witnesses are not really a thing in trials. Only in very rare circumstances do witnesses get to simply testify only about Character and Conduct of someone's character.

Typically, to testify during a case, witnesses will have to have actual knowledge about the facts of a case. However, let's discuss the limited circumstances when character witnesses may actually be allowed to testify.

So, what we are looking to for guidance are the Tennessee Rules of Evidence. The first one we will review is Rule 404, which is titled, "Character Evidence Not Admissible to Prove Conduct." It states that, "Evidence of a person's character or trait of character is not admissible for the purpose of proving action in conformity therewith on a particular occasion, except:..."

someone cannot get up and testify and say, "Well, I saw them drunk the last more information about five Fridays, so they must this legal issue and other have been drunk the next legal issues.

Continuing the discussion of character witnesses, lets look at Tennessee Rule of Evidence 608, which is titled, "Evidence of Witness." This rule is very lengthy and can be hard for even lawyers to read, but let me try to compress it down to the basics for you.

If you want to attack a witnesses' credibility by having another witness give their opinion or testify as to the first witnesses' reputation, they can only talk about the first witness' character as it relates to truthfulness or untruthfulness, and nothing else.

So while character witnesses can potentially testify, it is not as common of a thing as you may think.

Martin Daniel immediately stood up for homeowners and citizens by warning the council-people if they did not restore proper notice to the public with regard to property rights, he would redress the problem with legislation in Nashville. Madeline Rogero will cease to be mayor of Knoxville by the end of this year and new members of the city council will be elected this year. One candidate for mayor, Eddie Mannis, has announced his opposition to the Recode proposal in its current form, which Knoxville's longest serving mayor, Victor Ashe, has

The City Council obliged the Rogero administration when it voted to remove the requirement for notice to property owners when a massive rezoning ordinance is being considered by the City of Knoxville. That passed the City Council twice and unanimously.

Eddie Mannis is the only candidate running for mayor of Knoxville who opposes the Recode ordinance; Indya Kincannon and Marshall Stair both support it and Stair is one of the council members who has voted twice to remove the notice requirement. Thank Daniel has always been an effective and useful member of the Tennessee General Assembly, but the people of Knoxville and Knox County owe this outstanding representative a debt of gratitude for refusing to be cowed by a city administration determined to have its way at the expense of the rights of its own citizens. It is difficult for me to imagine anything more un-American than the actions of the city administration and council, but Martin Daniel's own actions are a perfect illustration of an elected official living up to his responsibility to the citizens who voted for him.

"The city of Knoxville, once upon a time, had an Hockey team. The ECHL is now the most successful minor hockey league ever with NHL contract players throughout the league. The Knoxville government did not give the support that other cities did to assist and help support their minor league teams, for example, like a percentage of parking, concession sales and discounted rental fees. Eventually due to this lack of this support, both teams found other cities that DID give concessions to the teams. Sports teams are a pillar of growing cities.

We need an administration that will support and seek to build a strong sports representation for Knoxville. As for funds being used to secure a team, that needs to be evaluated by people that know the sports business. For 8 years I owned the ECHL Knoxville Cherokees. I was the ECHL Expansion Committee Chairman. I understand the "ins and outs" of what a sports franchise needs from my

the idea of the city building and owning a stadium if the development could be guaranteed to directly benefit the immediate neighborhoods where a stadium would be built.

Multiple studies on MLB AA team and an ECHL the economic benefits of subsidized baseball stadiums have shown that these projects have more cultural value than an actual economic impact on a city's finances. Baltimore's Oriole Park cost $225 million to build and $450 million to pay off, which the state of Maryland will do this year after a 30 year bond is fulfilled. Much debate has taken place regarding the economic benefits of Oriole Park. The Maryland Stadium Authority reports that the stadium has cost the state as much money as the stadium has brought to the state each year. Additionally, development around the stadium has not moved forward as envisioned 25 years ago. If the city of Knoxville were to pursue a similar deal with a sports team, the residents of Knoxville should be consulted and assurances would need to be put into place to guarantee a return on the city's investment that directly benefits the residents closest to the students decide on how to best serve the community with the skills and talents they have acquired. Two years of planning and implementing a project with a minimum of 40 service hours that is designed "not so much for them to follow their passion, but to find their calling," said Susan Stanford, CAP Capstone Class and Bible teacher, as she explained the program. The hope is for students to discern what God is calling them to do and to be transformed on their own in the process. "It is affirming and empowering for these students to complete the project. Many times, the projects don't look at all like what they were first decided upon. It's about serving people, using your gifts and your talents to do something and see 'I really made a difference,'" added Stanford. Four Capstone Project Awards are given to seniors each year who displayed a 'bigness.' "We want the project to be bigger than anything the student has done before," she explained.

Cate conducted a free, one-week baseball camp for at-risk kids served by the Wesley House last summer as a rising senior. In preparation, Cate petitioned the city to fix up a local neighborhood field. The day before the camp was to start, Cate knew he had made a difference when he went to the field to paint lines on the dirt and saw the neighborhood kids had discovered the field already and were using it.

Gavin Lyell broke new ground also by making an impact on teen fathers through developing a Capstone Project called "Journeys: Missions for Young Men." He wrote the curriculum for an eightweek program for teen dads with classes teaching parenting, CPR, and child health, financial planning, and job planning. The program included mentoring, support groups, legal advice, and involved charity work, and spiritual guidance. "If you do a Google search on teen pregnancy, nine out of ten times you will discover than any programs out there are geared toward teen moms. Society seems to forget that there had to be a teen father as well," said Lyell.

responders to fill the gap. A masculine diaper bag filled with child-care items and Lyell's 'Journeys' curriculum provide the much needed information for teen fathers. They are handed out by first responders, some of whom, Lyell learned, were teen dads themselves.

Lyell chose to create this program because one out of three children live without their biological fathers according to the U.S. Census Bureau. Statistics show that children of absent and especially teen fathers are more likely to become at risk individuals and later continue the cycle of teen fatherhood with their children. Through his mom's stories as a juvenile prison principal, and meeting one of the men fifteen years after leaving the prison, he was inspired to make a difference in the lives of teen fathers. Congressman Robert Crosser of Ohio

Pages from the Past

By Ray Hill rayhill865@gmail.com

For so many of us, members of Congress from other states are of little interest, yet so many of those faceless individuals have compelling stories and remain in the House of Representatives for decades, accruing seniority and power. Robert Crosser served in Congress for thirty-eight years and it would likely have been longer still had he not held fast to his own beliefs and bucked a president of his own political party by opposing the draft in wartime. The son of poor Scottish immigrants, Robert Crosser was born in Lanarkshire, Scotland and came to the United States when he was seven years old. Eventually, Crosser attended Kenyon College in Gambier, Ohio where he worked his way through school as a dormitory janitor; he also played right tackle on the football team.

When Robert Crosser announced for Congress in 1912, the Republican Party was split asunder by a bitter fight between incumbent President William Howard Taft and his predecessor, Theodore Roosevelt. Roosevelt refused to accept the results of the Republican National Convention, which renominated Taft. Roosevelt bolted and ran on a third-party ticket, which aided the campaign of the Democratic candidate, Woodrow Wilson, the governor of New Crosser was running for Congressman-At-Large, meaning if elected, he would represent the entire state in the House of Representatives. Crosser ran as a supporter of Wilson as well as the working man even though he had been taught the law by William Howard Taft. Earning a reputation as "Fighting Bob" for his game campaign, Crosser made it quite clear he was the friend of the laboring man and organized labor. Robert Crosser spoke all over Ohio, discussing the tariff and denouncing the "trusts" of great corporate wealth. Much to the surprise of virtually everyone, Robert Crosser became the first person ever to be elected as Congressman-At-Large from Ohio. Crosser ran for reelection from the Twenty-First District of Ohio in 1914 and was popular enough that he defeated the incumbent, Robert J. Bulkley, in the primary. Bulkley had enjoyed the support of Newton D. Baker, the mayor of Cleveland and the congressman's defeat was considered a setback for the city machine. It was also a tribute to Congressman-At-Large Robert Crosser's own personal popularity in his home city. The Cincinnati

Enquirer noted Bulkley had been the "personal choice" of Mayor Baker while Crosser was affiliated with the "ultra-radical element" of Cleveland. Newton Baker had wanted Crosser to run in Ohio's Twenty-Second Congressional District, so as not to oppose Congressman Robert J. Bulkley, but Crosser, proving to be as stubborn as many a Scotchman, refused and insisted upon running in the Twenty-First. Crosser won the general election and was reelected in 1916.

Robert Crosser's political independence cost him dearly in 1918 when he voted against the wartime draft, as did his colleague from Cleveland, William Gordon. The refusal of Congressmen Crosser and Gordon to support the wartime draft infuriated the most important daily newspaper in Cleveland: the Cleveland Plain Dealer, which promptly editorialized, calling for the defeat of Robert Crosser and William Gordon at the polls. "One unmistakable duty confronts the voters of Cleveland this year," the Plain Dealer thundered. "It The irrepressible Robert is to defeat William Gordon and Robert Crosser in their effort for re-election nomination and defeated to Congress." The Plain the GOP incumbent Harry Dealer did not quite call the two errant congressmen German sympathizers, but certainly insisted they to return to Congress four were hurting America's war more times, the last being effort. "From the beginning in 1944. Robert Crosser of America's controversy kept a stranglehold on the Jersey. Crosser's views Barbara Crosser married was seventy-eight year- who said, "I never knew a done about everything in on the wartime draft never their power to hamper their own government," the Plain Dealer editorial said. been their intentions, the effect of their actions has been to assist the Kaiser in his outrages against America and to impede the progress of the United States government in retaliation." The Plain Dealer said it should be the "duty and pleasure" of every Democrat to defeat Crosser and Gordon in their respective primaries; failing that, the "loyal" voters could defeat the congressmen in the general election. When asked why he wished to run for Congress, Robert Crosser gave a concise and logical reason for his political ambitions. "I sought a seat in Congress because I believe the best place for a man who has a philosophy of things is in the lawmaking bodies where he may speak openly, and freely advocate principles believed by him to be right." solidly behind both President Wilson and the war, the Cleveland Plain Dealer's campaign against Congressmen Crosser and Gordon, with the support of the Cuyahoga county machine, was successful. Both Robert Crosser and William Gordon lost their respective primaries. Crosser was succeeded in Congress by Democrat John J. Babka, but the former congressman ran again in 1920. It proved to be a banner year for Republicans with Ohio U.S. senator Warren G. Harding at the top of the ticket. Both Babka and Crosser lost to the Republican candidate. Crosser ran again in 1922, won the Democratic Gahn. Like Crosser, Harry Gahn did not give up easily and would attempt changed and he voted against similar proposals under presidents Franklin "Whatever have D. Roosevelt and Harry Truman. Nor was Bob Crosser done feuding with the Cuyahoga Democratic machine. Crippled by severe arthritis. Robert Crosser was confined to а wheelchair after sometime in the early 1940s. As he aged and became more infirm, opponents inside his Congressional district tried to run him out of office, a notion he strenuously resisted. Crosser once again ran afoul of the local Democratic party machine in 1948 when he refused to approve the nomination of a particular local to be the Postmaster of Cleveland. That refusal brought him serious opposition in the form of Emil A. Bartunek, the personally popular Executive Secretary to Cleveland mayor Thomas A. Burke. Two years previously, Bartunek, then a state senator, had pressed Crosser hard. Once again, With most Americans Bartunek ran hard against Congressman Crosser, but lost the primary by just over 3,000 votes. Undeterred, the machine ran Bartunek again in the 1950 Democratic primary with the same result.

last reelection campaign, to be worried, especially in the House was coming Robert Crosser, like many another aging incumbent, bristled at the notion age and infirmity had diminished his ability to serve his constituents. Referring to his wheelchair, Congressman Crosser joked, "All I need is a little axel grease and I can outrun the young fellows." If pressed further, Crosser would angrily bark, "I'm as active as the best of my colleagues!" Congressman Robert employed Crosser his daughter Barbara from 1929 until he left Congress in 1955. Two of Crosser's four children, Justine and James, died quite young. Justine left a husband and two very young daughters when she Republican nominee inside tribute came from Speaker Charles Sweeney, who had been married to her older sister Justine. Barbara Crosser Sweeney helped to raise her late sister's two daughters and legally adopted them in 2005 when she was ninety-four years old. While Crosser's son and namesake, Robert, Jr. was also employed in his Congressional office, it was Barbara Sweeney who was his closest aide. Mrs. Sweeney wrote press releases, news columns, and ran her father's reelection campaigns, which became more difficult, at least physically when Crosser was confined to a wheelchair. In 1954, Congressman Crosser was facing several opponents inside the Democratic primary, including Stephen M. Young, who had served four terms as Ohio's Congressman-At-Large in 1932, 1934, 1940, and 1948, as well as John Holly, a leader in the local African-American community. Mary K. Sotak, a local city councilwoman, was running against Crosser, as was Charles A. Vanik, a local municipal judge who had been a member of the Cleveland school board and an Ohio state senator before the World War. Vanik had run against Crosser in 1946 and lost decisively and the

with his opposition divided. Crosser announced his daughter Barbara would once again return to Cleveland to run his reelection campaign and serve as his surrogate in the district while he remained in Washington, D. C. "She knows my views so well she can do a better job than any other person."

Over time, the population of a Congressional district changes. Ohio's Twenty-First District in 1954 was almost evenly divided between blacks and whites, with the white folks largely being Democrats and the African-American population still largely supporting the Republican The eventual Party. old Francis E. Young, a former state representative who had helped to found Cleveland's local chapter of the NAACP and had been active in the postal workers' union. Local allegiances were also beginning to change, as evidenced by the candidacy of John Holly inside the Democratic primary. Holly was the founder and head of the Negro Future Outlook League in Cleveland. Eventually, the district would become a majority black district and elect Louis Stokes to Congress. Congressman Crosser confidently expected to be renominated in the Democratic primary and was surprised to be upset by Charles Vanik by just over 500 votes. The weather on Election Day was terrible and many voters were complacent and many of Crosser's supporters did not bother to go to the polls. Robert Crosser was reputed to be bitter at his defeat and clearly did not wish to retire. In late November of 1954, Crosser made the announcement he would run for Clerk of the House, a statement which was greeted by a deafening silence. Nothing more was heard about Crosser's candidacy to become Clerk of the House.

to an end, colleagues began paying tribute to his service. John Shelley, a California Democrat, praised Crosser for what the Ohioan had done for railroad workers. "The Railway Labor Act of 1934 and Railroad retirement acts of 1934 and 1935 were something more than enlightened legislation for the special benefit of railroad labor," Shelley said. "In writing those measures and securing their enactment, Bob Crosser blazed the trail for much of the great social welfare legislation which came into being in succeeding years of Franklin D. Roosevelt's administration."

Perhaps the most fitting man in or out of public life that I thought had a higher sense of justice, a greater devotion to public service and trying to serve his day and generation well and make this country better while he lived and leave it better for those who came after than Bob Crosser." In his own farewell speech to Congress, Robert Crosser said as he looked back over his own career, he was proud he had stuck with his own beliefs, irrespective of the political consequences. "We often hear sentimental balderdash about dying for one's faith," Crosser said. The old congressman then softly quoted from a poem by Ernest Crosby, which began: "So he died for his faith. That is fine.

LEADING THE WAY! STUDENT-ATHLETES OF THE YEAR

The Knoxville Focus' annual feature recognizing local TSSAA member high schools' female and male Student-Athletes of the Year continues in today's issue with its second week of honorees.

Each high school chooses a girl and boy who stood out in academics and athletics during the school year and athletic directors were requested to send in the information.

In the spotlight this week are honorees from First Baptist Academy, Fulton, Grace Christian Academy, Powell and South-Doyle.

The feature will continue through the month of June.

By Steve Williams

Kelsey Hollifield and Eli Neal were good athletes at First Baptist Academy in Powell during the 2018-19 school year, but they did so much more outside of sports, according to Athletic Director Jay Scarbro.

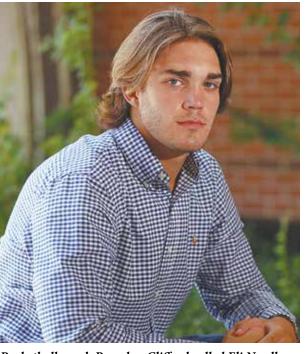

Hollifield, Class of 2019 and FBA's female Student-Athlete of the Year, played volleyball and was a twotime All-District basketball honoree in Division II-A District 1.

"Kelsey is loved by all of her peers," said Scarbro. "She is very kind and compassionate to everyone at them down. He is a hard school. Along with playing sports, she has been involved in other clubs and organizations on campus while also going on mission trips with the school." Neal, FBA's male honoree, played baseball and basketball and ran cross country his junior year.

"Eli is involved in a lot of things on our campus," noted Scarbro. "He does tech support for our campus chapel services and school drama plays. He participates in many school and church youth activities.

Nordhorn is not afraid of being hit by a baseball. In his high school career at Grace Christian Academy, he was hit by a pitch 60 times - a state record.

Gentry McReynolds made the news in 2010 when she took first place among fourth graders in a storytelling competition during Harvest Day at Grace Christian Academy.

And almost nine years later, the headlines keep coming for Gentry, who was selected GCA's female Student-Athlete of the Year for 2018-19.

In May, McReynolds signed to play volleyball and basketball at Johnson University. The multitalented athlete also played softball for Grace Christian this spring.

"Gentry has a strong work ethic, which is precisely why she has signed to play two sports at the next level," said GCA Head Girls Basketball Coach Kendell McGill. "She believes in doing things the right way for the right reasons the first time around, and encourages those around her to follow suit."

Melanie Morris, Head Volleyball Coach, added: "Gentry has touched many lives with her leadership and work ethic.

I have learned just as much from her as I hope she has from me. She is the type of athlete who goes above and beyond on and off the court. A true leader, fighter and competitor. It has been a true honor to be her coach for the short time I had the opportunity. Johnson University is blessed to have her!"

Softball Coach Dewayne Hunt wishes McReynolds had started playing with the Lady Rams on the diamond sooner.

"Gentry is a great young lady to be around," he said. "She brings a smile and energy to our softball team. She is a great athlete that I would have enjoyed seeing grow more if she had played since a freshman. She has been a great addition to our team in her senior year. I look forward to seeing what Gentry can accomplish at the next level."

The versatile McReynolds also was crowned Homecoming Queen last fall and was very involved in the GCA Theatre Department.

PAGE C3 Former players return to Powell Middle to work hoops camp

By Ken Lay

For nearly two decades Darin Courtney has hosted the Powell Pride Fellowship of Christian Athletes Boys Basketball Camp at Powell Middle School.

There, he teaches basketball fundamentals to youth basketball players and he has guests who give their testimonies of their faith.

Courtney, who recently retired from coaching the Panthers after a 17-year run that ended with a TMSAA State Tournament appearance in 2019, has always had help from assistant coaches and the girls basketball coaches at Powell over the years.

But he's also enlisted the help of his former players. Many are in college when they come home to work the camp.

But they can't wait to come home to give their old coach a hand.

Westin Reynolds, who plays at Walters State Community College, returned home for a second consecutive summer to teach young players the game he loves.

This year, he and Courtney were joined by new head coach Steve Waugh (who coached the Lady Panthers last season) and first-time counselors Josh Woods and Jake Majors.

Woods had aspirations of walking on to play college basketball, but he plays intramural hoops. Like his friend, he enjoys giving back to the game and to the Powell Community.

"It was big for me to get this spot because I actually know a couple of these kids.

"I like coming in here and helping them."

Like Majors, Woods is a fan of the NBA. He pulls for the Los Angeles Lakers. He wore a Black Mamba T-shirt at Thursday's camp sessions as a tribute to the now-retired Kobe Bryant, who held that nickname for much of his professional career.

"My room is all purple and it's a tribute to the Lakers and Kobe," Woods said.

He had one more game to coach.

Radcliffe, who guided the Bulldogs to the 2019 Class AAA State Championship on Friday, May 24 in Murfreesboro, was chosen to coach the East All-Stars in the Tennessee High School Soccer Coaches Association's East-West All-Star Game on Saturday, June 1 at the Field of Dreams at Hendersonville High School.

It was the second time that Radcliffe coached in the game in three years. He coached in 2017 and the teams played to a 1-1 draw when the West scored a late equalizer.

He guided the East to a 5-1 victory in 2019 and many of the players on his roster were familiar faces to him.

"We smoked them," Radcliffe said. "When I saw the West's roster, I thought we were really going to get beat. Their roster was really stacked. You had players from Station Camp (which won State Championships in 2017 and 2018 before falling to Bearden in the title match last month."

Knoxville had 10 players on this year's roster. They included Bearden's Collin Lewis, Finn Harris, Everett Hauser and Tanner Whited. Farragut was represented by Pablo Herrera and Dillon Bihlmeyer.

Webb School of Knoxville had two players, Will Miller and Cam Fowler, make the squad. Catholic's Adam Curley also played in the game along with Christian Academy of Knoxville's Sam Klauer.

"I had some great players. It was great to get the chance to coach those guys," Radcliffe said. "But I didn't really have to coach all that much.

"It was great to get the chance to watch those boys play up close. I was a lot of fun and there was no pressure on me.'

Radcliffe did admit that he wanted to win.

"I coached in 2017, the year after I won the state championship [as a coach] the first time and we tied because they got a goal late," Radcliffe said. "So it was great to go down there and get a win."

Radcliffe won the 2016 Class AAA State Championship as a player with the Bulldogs in 2006.

In the all-star game, Fowler scored two goals and was named Most Valuable Player.

"He's a heck of a player," Radcliffe said.

Harris, Lewis and Bihlmeyer also tallied markers for the East.

The school announced last week that it promoted defensive coordinator Mike Potter to head coach.

Potter, a 1987 Fulton High School graduate, becomes the second head football coach in school history as he replaces Wes Jones, who had been with the Hawks since the program began in 2008.

Jones left to take an assistant coach's job at Science Hill in Johnson City. Jones resigned in May and made the move to Northeast Tennessee to be closer to his family.

HVA principal Rob Speas, who recently replaced Sallee Reynolds, hired from within.

"I'm just blessed to get this opportunity," said Potter, who served as an assistant coach at his alma mater between 1994-2008. "We have great kids and Wes laid a very solid foundation.

"I'm just looking forward to building on that. We have a great administration and it's always good to know that those people have your back."

The Hawks went 6-5 and made the playoffs in 2018 and Potter knows that life in Region 1-6A, with the likes of Bearden, Farragut, Science Hill, Kingsport Dobyns-Bennett Morristown West and Jefferson

KFOA's annual Media Day and golf tourney is July 12

By Steve Williams

The Knoxville Football Officials Association's 13th annual Media Day is about a month away and will be held Friday, July 12 at the Three Ridges Golf Course pavilion.

Longtime KFOA supervisor Harold Denton calls it the "unofficial start" of the high school football season. Players and coaches from close to 40 area high schools are expected to be on hand for interviews that will get underway bright and early.

The KFOA's 37th annual Scholarship Golf Tournament also will be held that day and Denton says, "We are looking for golfers to play."

In the past 36 years, the KFOA has awarded scholarships that have paid $142,000 in tuition at various colleges and universities to 81 scholar-athletes from 25 different area high schools. By the way, Denton says the KFOA Scholarship Fund is a 501 c3 group and donations are tax deductible.

in the tourney, there are other ways to help this fund raiser, too.

"You can participate as a donor, prize gather, volunteer, etc.," noted Denton. "Please let me know where you can help. If you have a sponsor in mind, please advise me, I can send them a registration form."

Denton can be contacted at 7140 Government Farm Road, Knoxville, TN, 37920-7522, or by calling 865-256-1948.

TSSAA NEWS: The Board of Control voted last week in Murfreesboro to change the Girls' Soccer / Soccer post-season overtime voted to remove the two five-minute sudden victory periods. The post-season tie-breaker procedure will now be the following:

"Teams play two, full 10-minute overtime periods. These periods are not sudden victory. If, at the conclusion of the two full 10-minute overtime periods, a tie still exists, the tie shall be broken by the penalty kick procedure in the NFHS Soccer Rules Book."

In other action, the Board approved Berean Christian School's request to continue their Co-op with Gibbs High School to allow two student athletes the opportunity to finish out their high school careers on the current softball and baseball teams.

The Board denied Concord Christian School's request for an exception to the Cooperative Program Rule to allow them to Co-op with another school in football, even though they have had a football team within the last five years.

NEW GCA COACH: Mark In addition to playing White is Grace Christian Academy's new varsity boys' basketball coach, Athletic Director Gene Baker announced in May.

> White, who replaces Brandon Clifford, has over 25 years coaching experience and 23 at the collegiate level, having most recently served as head coach at Tallahassee Community College since 2015.

"Mark White checks all the boxes in our list of requirements for the next High. head basketball coach at Grace," said Baker. "First and foremost he is a man of devout faith who fits our mission to lead, build, and equip our students in a saving knowledge of Jesus procedure. The Board Christ.'

Coach White is excited about this new season of his coaching career with the Rams and connecting not only instructionally but relationally with players and students.

"I'm so excited to get to be part of the kids' lives at GCA," he said. "It's all about the kids and I want each kid to love being a student athlete at GCA. Coach Clifford has done a great job of building a championship program and I am looking forward to continuing it."

GCA won the Division II-A state title under Clifford in 2018.

PERCUSSION CAMP: Rush's Music and Halls High have joined forces to present an exciting Yamaha Sounds of Summer Percussion Camp Thursday and Friday of this week (June 13-14).

Featuring nationally known percussion artists working with local educators, Sounds of Summer provides intensive, hands-on instruction to young percussionists from grades 7 to 12. The camp covers drum line fundamentals, basic and advanced techniques, sectional playing, ensemble performance and leadership skills.

The camp will take place at Halls

LEADING THE WAY! Scott and Deering are South-Doyle honorees

By Steve Williams

Farrell Scott, South-Doyle High's male Student-Athlete of the Year, stood out in the classroom as well as on the football field.

Scott was team captain and a two-year starter for the Cherokees.

A 5-10, 190-pound linebacker, he registered 12 tackles in a Week 5 win over Sevier County last season and that was just one of his season highlights on the field. The following week, he hauled in an 11-yard pass over the middle to help set up a touchdown that gave South-Doyle an eight-point lead in the fourth quarter of a comeback win over Carter.

Farrell also was a member of South-Doyle's Award given out at graduabowling team and was selected to receive the Careacter Star Athlete award.

South-Doyle's Phoebe Deering will continue her outstanding soccer career at Maryville College. South-Doyle's Farrell Scott has been accepted into UT's Honors and Scholars Program.

Scott was the recipient of the Retired NFL Players Scholarship and the Salutatorian in the Class of 2019. He had a grade point average of 4.36 along with an ACT score of 34.

Scott also was the winner of the Cherokee tion and has been accepted into the University of Tennessee's Honors and Scholars Program for this coming fall.

South-Doyle's female Student-Athlete of the Year is Phoebe Deering and she too is in the Class of 2019.

Deering was on the Lady Cherokees' soccer team and earned the Offensive Player of the Year award in District 4-AA. She also was a first team All-Region 2-AA selection.

Phoebe will continue her playing career at Maryville College.

Verbicide

As my readers know, I am a stickler for words. After all, words are the only tools beyond body language we have to communicate our thoughts and feelings. Mr. Webster advertises nearly a half million words in his on-line English dictionary, and I doubt this includes all the legalese, medicalese and other technical terms. Interestingly, the average person's lexicon (vocabulary) is 10-50,000 words.

English is a living language where words come and go. Your grandmother might have used the word frowsy to describe a "slovenly or uncared-for appearance." Twenty-five years ago the word mouse described a scurrying rodent in your basement. Now the definition includes an electronic device which moves the cursor on your computer screen.

In grade school, once called grammar school, I learned the past tense of the verb wake. Now "hipsters" use the slang term woke to describe someone who is "actively attentive to issues of racial and social injustice." I cringe in disgust when I hear such guttural and divisive verbiage.

More recently, the slang intransitive verb dox has surfaced in web commentary and is now being used and legitimized by TV commentators. To dox someone is to make public their private identity and information "as a form of punishment or revenge." This was recently done to a private user of Facebook who posted a doctored video of Nancy Pelosi. Facebook released the man's private identity and information to the media, apparently as punishment for his parody of Pelosi.

In grade school I often stood Safety Patrol watch at street intersections. Now, the term intersectionality is often heard as the rally cry of the progressive alt-left. Mr. Webster defines intersectionality as "the complex, cumulative way in which the effects of multiple forms of discrimination (racism, sexism and classism) combine, overlap, or intersect, especially in the experiences of marginalized individuals or groups." Apparently, everyone is a victim - unless you're a white, Anglo-Saxon, Protestant male citizen of the United States who is actually a perpetrator of injustice.

I love figures of speech. Sometimes the best way to describe something is to compare it to something else with a simile. An example is "green as grass," which works for everyone who is not redgreen color blind. Another figure of speech is the metaphor, where "a word or phrase is applied to an object or action which is not literally applicable." A brilliant example was used by historian and professor Victor Davis Hansen in his May 29, 2019 essay in American Greatness. Hansen described Trump as the Democrat Party's Moby Dick, and their hatred of the president has turned them into the delusional and destructive Captain Ahab.

It's hard to comprehend the irrational verbiage streaming from the Democrat presidential candidates. Incidentally, it is the Democrat party not the "democratic" party. The 2016 suppression of presidential candidate Crazie Bernie by the DNC in favor of HRC proved this. Again, I'm a stickler for words.

As an American, how can I take seriously people who refuse to secure our country's borders and then shelter illegal aliens from codified law in sanctuary cities? I use both reason and emotion to make decisions. Compassion influenced me to make a half dozen mission trips to Guatemala. But logic must dictate when using the metaphorical analogy of a twenty person life raft and a hundred survivors of a shipwreck. All will perish if the life raft (USA) sinks trying to save all one hundred survivors.

Homelessness, lawlessness, drugs, disease and poor sanitation are the results of Democrat management of large cities like Pelosi's San Francisco, Los Angeles, Chicago, Seattle and many more. The mantra of Democrat presidential candidates is to promise a cure with a basic income for everyone, free college, forgiveness of college debts and Medicare for all, including illegal aliens. I might ask, why would anyone go to school or work if you were to be given money, lodging and food for no effort?

The Democrat candidates advocate a Green New Deal which will bankrupt our country and do nothing to deter China and India's pollution. Progressives/Democrats want to get rid of the Electoral College which gives Tennesseans a say in presidential elections. (Without the Electoral College, presidents will be elected by the most populous states of California, New York, Texas and, perish the thought, Florida.)

Democrats even advocate pro-choice after birth, but whose choice? Certainly not the baby's. One candidate even wants to eliminate circumcision! All of this is under foolishness and pandering. These socialist philosophies are the Siren's song. As Margaret Thatcher one said of socialist utopia, it works "until you run out of other people's money."

Actually, like many people, I've quit listening to the major news media because of verbicide, the deliberate distortion of words. We even have a term for this distortion, Fake News. We used to be able to read newspapers like the New York Times or listen to Walter Cronkite and receive news of the day's events. At least I thought so, but maybe I've been deceived all along. Actually, the first recorded example of fake news was from 1300 BC when Ramses the Great instructed his chroniclers to tell the Egyptian people that his army vanguished the enemy, when, in fact, they did not.

No longer do we have news; we have political spin and commentary. As a free market guy, I'm somewhat ashamed to admit that I object to CNN on airport televisions, even though they purchase the right to project their bilge. But is my liberal tolerance of their illiberal intolerance in some way enabling their continued existence? And CNN has the cable "news" market cornered in the rest of the world. It's no wonder that Trump and America are held in such low esteem.

I have found that it is impossible to get the "unvarnished truth" as Cas Walker once proclaimed in his newspaper the Watchdog. I recommend that you seek the truth widely and apply reason to anything that you hear. I may have become a skeptic, but perhaps I have just lived long enough to be less gullible.

NOTICE OF SALE CONCERNING

June 10, 2019

COUNTY PROPERTY Knox County has entered into a contract to sel the parcels of surplus real property below, acquired by Knox County in previous tax sales, via online public auction and negotiated sale. Each parcel number is associated with a property description on file at Knox County Procurement.

Each of these properties will be sold by Knox County (pending approval of County Commission) absent a bid received from another party within ten (10) days of the publication of this notice which increases the price to be paid for the property by 10% or more. Any such increased bids must be submitted to the Knox County Procurement Division, 1000 North Central Street, Suite 100, Knoxville, Tennessee 37917 in writing in a sealed envelope identified on the outside referencing a supplemental offer and the parcel number/address of the property by Friday, June 24, 2019 at 4:00 p.m. Rebids must be signed and include the bidder's contact information with mailing address, phone number, and current email address. Bidders acknowledge by submission of their bid that they are current in their respective Federal, State, County, and City taxes. Bids from bidders who are found to be delinquent will not be considered.

In the case of any increased bids, the original purchaser and any party making an increased bid will be able to appear and make a final offer at a live rebid auction. The rebid auction will take place at 10:00 a.m., Thursday, July 11, 2019 at Powel Auction & Realty, 6729 Pleasant Ridge Road, Knoxville, TN 37921. Knox County maintains the right of refusal on any additional bids based upon best and highest land use. For more information, contact Joe Williamson, Property Coordinator, at (865) 215-5790 or joe.williamson@knoxcounty.org. Note: 5% buyer's premium added to all final bids/rebids to establish total contract sales price.
