

BOB LANGRISH/STAFF PHOTOGRAPHER

Councilmember Randy Smith, at left, stands under an umbrella as the building that houses the Norwood Library is dedicated to the late Lynn Redmon. Dozens of office holders, citizens and friends turned out Wednesday morning for the dedication.

Community leader Lynn Redmon memorialized

By Mike Stealy
stealmike@knoxnews.com

Lynn Redmon, a Norwood and Knoxville community leader, passed away and respected for being a spokesman for neighborhood causes, a political consultant, and an all-around nice gentleman.

and county officials, neighborhood leaders, former officials, and friends of Redmon. On hand for the ceremony were Redmon's wife, Ann, worked for 30 years at the library and he called Redmon a "guiding star" that helped him get elected. He noted that

"His efforts made the community and the county better," Smith said. Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs spoke briefly

Rogers, Commissioners Doreen Gill, Carson Dailey, Michele Carringer, Brad Anders and Larson Jay, and a representative of Con-