

Mannis attends Five Points parade

Candidate for mayor Eddie Mannis (pictured with Mary Foster and Brenda Thomas, who represented) attended the Five Points Neighborhood parade yesterday July 25. Although it was quite hot, Mannis and his supporters made their way along the parade route and were very pleased to have the support of many neighborhood attendees. The parade featured live music, balloons, and Eddie was happy to have from the staff and volunteers present for participants in the celebration. Eddie looked up afterwards by joining neighbors at Foster Family Park to enjoy the activities, food trucks, and games that were present.

Second reading of Recode before City Council

By Mike Smith
Smith@tribune.com

When the Chicago City Council meets Tuesday evening the members will be asked for a final approval of Recode, a proposed set of guidelines governing regulations. Some of the problems raised since the last regular session was asked to be resolved before the city. That for some time, the city council has been working on a plan.

The city council may see further opposition from residents when they meet with the council staff again. While several other items have been made it is not likely to get the regulations for the city. The council will be asked to approve the plan for the city. The city council may see further opposition from residents when they meet with the council staff again. While several other items have been made it is not likely to get the regulations for the city. The council will be asked to approve the plan for the city. The city council may see further opposition from residents when they meet with the council staff again. While several other items have been made it is not likely to get the regulations for the city. The council will be asked to approve the plan for the city.

The council will be asked to approve the plan for the city. The city council may see further opposition from residents when they meet with the council staff again. While several other items have been made it is not likely to get the regulations for the city. The council will be asked to approve the plan for the city.

Continued on page 2

Abloom Florist donates flowers to Shannondale Healthcare Center

By Kim Lyle

A local florist made her way with a van full of flowers to the Shannondale Healthcare Center on Tuesday.

The van was full of flowers and the driver was smiling. The van was full of flowers and the driver was smiling.

The van was full of flowers and the driver was smiling. The van was full of flowers and the driver was smiling.

The van was full of flowers and the driver was smiling. The van was full of flowers and the driver was smiling.

The van was full of flowers and the driver was smiling. The van was full of flowers and the driver was smiling.