Mike McMillan to support Bible Time Release

By Focus Staff

Mike McMillan, the Knox County Board of Education member for the Eighth District, amounced he would be voting for the Bible time release pilot program. The program is one hour each month and requires the child's parent's permission. The pilot program has been started at Sterch Elementary School. Some seventy students are currently enrolled in the program out of these hundred. A flurry of Internet occossition to the program has been generated, largeby by teachers. McMillan has been communicating with people inside his district, including businesspeclie, PTA more and church leaders. "A community includes everyone," "A community includes everyone," McMillan said." I have tried to talk to as mary people as possible and I thirik my colleague Susan Hom was right when she discussed parental
