ed Norman's address where he spoke of the changes he helped bring about on the board of education. Norman said the school board was divided and in disarray when he was elected. His election and the election of other reformers tipped the scale to public representation and led to the retirement of Superintendent Jim McIntyre. "The administration did not understand what it meant to be in the classroom. They didn't appreciate the classroom, the teachers or the working teams." Norman said, adding, "I think we've been able to change the direction of this system."

Free Remote

Area

He asked his supporters to questions that Norman was help him continue working for quick to answer. The got to tion. Attendees asked several him from the school board.

the needed changes for the bet-have a lot of help to do this. The terment of students, teachers, people afterme want me gone." employees and the administra- he said of the effort to unseat

Early voting for the primary begins February 12. Norman has one primary opponent and whoever wins the March 3 primary will become the new representative for the 3rd District.

towers would be built on public right of way in the town. Some 120 people attended the meet ing and heard Town Attorney Tom Hale tell them there's little the town can do to stop the towers. If the Board of Mayor and Aldermen fail to vote within 61 earlier in the month by the Farragut Planning Commission and the days then Verizon's application for eleven towers would automatically be approved. Two other companies, AT&T and T-Mobile, may also apply for the small 5G towers. One resident Bill Bryant said his lawn has been marked for a tower but the neighborhood has underground utilities. He called on help from the area's state legislators to protect Farragut home owners Laura Squire told the meeting she feels "violated" with the proliferation of the towers.

"We only have the powers given to us by the state," Attorney Hale said.

"No one understands it, what is a 'right-of-way?" Squire inquired,

By Steve Williams

IMG Academy pulls away from Catholic late, wins 71-53 Knoxville Catholic took a shot at one of the nation's premier high school basketball teams Sat-

Medical Clinic this