

Tony Norman kicks off re-election campaign

District 3 school board incumbent Tony Norman drew a crowd Wednesday evening in a campaign kickoff event at the Holiday Inn on Cedar Bluff Road. The well-respected former Knox County Commission Chairman and former Knox County Schools biology teacher drew praises from supporters including Law Director Richard (Bud) Armstrong, and Deputy Law Directors David Buuck and Daniel Sanders.

Residents and supporters from his district loudly applauded Norman's address where he spoke of the changes he helped bring about on the board of education. Norman said the school board was divided and in disarray when he was elected. His election and the election of other reformers tipped the scale to public representation and led to the retirement of Superintendent Jim McIntyre.

"The administration did not understand what it meant to be in the classroom. They didn't appreciate the classroom, the teachers or the working teams," Norman said, adding, "I think we've been able to change the direction of this system."

Tony Norman addresses a big turnout at his re-election reception for his 3rd District school board seat.

He asked his supporters to help him continue working for the needed changes for the betterment of students, teachers, employees and the administration. Attendees asked several questions that Norman was quick to answer. "I've got to have a lot of help to do this. The people after me want me gone," he said of the effort to unseat him from the school board.

Early voting for the primary begins February 12. Norman has one primary opponent and whoever wins the March 3 primary will become the new representative for the 3rd District.

Free Remote Area Medical Clinic this week

By Mike Steely

Knoxville and East Tennessee will be the focus of a FREE Medical Clinic Friday through Sunday at the Jacobs Building in Chilhowee Park. Last year's clinic served 1,543 people seeking medical, dental and eye care. This year the clinic will also spay or neuter pets during the three days.

It's an early morning clinic and parking there ends at midnight on the first night. Ticket distribution begins about 3 a.m. and patients are served in numerical order according to their ticket. Clinic doors open at 6 a.m. and the process is repeated each day.

Patients are asked to choose between dental or vision services. More information can be available by calling (865) 579-1530 or going online to www.ramusa.org/clinic-schedule/.

IMG Academy pulls away from Catholic late, wins 71-53

By Steve Williams

Knoxville Catholic took a shot at one of the nation's premier high school basketball teams Saturday afternoon and gave them all they wanted.

IMG Academy got out of town with a 71-53 win, but it wasn't easy for the tall and talented squad from Bradenton, Fla.

"I thought we played toe to toe with one of the best teams in the nation until 2:55 to go," said Catholic Coach Mike Hutchens.

A standing room only crowd of 1,625 watched the battle that saw the Fighting Irish (15-4) overcome a 12-point deficit at halftime and take a 45-43 lead late in the third quarter.

IMG Academy (14-4) retook the lead, but Catholic still had a chance to make it a two-score game with 2:45 remaining, but twice missed the front end of 1-and-1 free throw opportunities.

The 6-10 Moussa Diabiate from Paris, France was a force inside and led IMG with 20 points. Duke commitment Mark Williams, a 7-footer from Virginia Beach, added 14 points and point guard Jaden Springer, a Tennessee signee and crowd favorite, chipped in 11.

Sophomore guard B.J. Edwards, who has offers from UT and Auburn, led Catholic with 17 points. Blue Cain added 12 and 6-9 senior power forward Akeem Odusipe 10 before fouling out with 6:48 left in the game.

Hutchens said "their size and depth" was the difference.

"They're amazing," he added. "That's why they are one of the top 12 teams in the country now and won the national title last year.

IMG Academy's Jaden Springer, a UT signee, misses an acrobatic slam on this play but was still impressive in his team's 71-53 win over Catholic Saturday afternoon. Irishman B.J. Edwards, who has an offer from UT, watches on the play. He led Catholic with 17 points.

"That kind of game is only going to make us better and that game was great for basketball in Knoxville. That's probably the most talent between two teams that's ever been on a high school floor in the City of Knoxville."

IMG Coach Sean McAloon was impressed by Catholic.

"What we did had a lot to do with them," he said. "Their zone was very good and active. We turned the ball over way too much, but that's a credit to them. They did a good job of being super active and we didn't do a very good job of finding guys that were wide open. But we did enough to be able to pull away towards the end."

5G tower plans upset Farragut residents

By Mike Steely

Some Farragut homeowners are finding markings in their lawns and are upset about the planned location of 5G towers there. They stood before the mayor and aldermen Thursday evening to ask for help but found there's little the town can do other than seek help from their state lawmakers.

Although the tower placement was not on the agenda the citizens demanded some type of action during the public forum.

Eleven sites were approved earlier in the month by the Farragut Planning Commission and the towers would be built on public right of way in the town. Some 120 people attended the meeting and heard Town Attorney Tom Hale tell them there's little the town can do to stop the towers.

If the Board of Mayor and Aldermen fail to vote within 61 days then Verizon's application for eleven towers would automatically be approved. Two other companies, AT&T and T-Mobile, may also apply for the small 5G towers.

One resident, Bill Bryant, said his lawn has been marked for a tower but the neighborhood has underground utilities. He called on help from the area's state legislators to protect Farragut homeowners.

Laura Squire told the meeting she feels "violated" with the proliferation of the towers.

"We only have the powers given to us by the state," Attorney Hale said.

"No one understands it, what is a 'right-of-way'?" Squire inquired, encouraging the body to go to the state and see about opting out of the tower placements.

"State law trumps ours," Town Administrator David Smoak said of the difficulty of the town to fight the state and federal regulations.

One resident said the powerful little towers cause cancer and asked that the towers be located in commercial areas only.

Mike Mitchell said that state Senator Richard Briggs is asking for a resolution for the town to opt out. He called the 5G towers a "massive overkill" of data capacity and added, "There's no need for those in a residential neighborhood."

He said the state legislators don't understand the impact that residential towers on right-of-ways will have on Farragut. Mitchell said the towers will reduce home values as much as 21 percent.

Several other homeowners spoke against the location of the 5G towers. It was noted that the Former Mayor Rogero to receive $3,001 per month retirement

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Among the twenty-four consent items on the Knoxville City Council's agenda Tuesday evening is a pension of $3,001.44 to former mayor Madeline A. Rogero. Rogero served as mayor for eight years, with former Mayor Bill Haslam's administration before that and also served as a Knox County Commissioner.

The council may also agree to appoint Councilwoman Lynn Fugate to fill out the unexpired term of resigning Councilwoman Stephanie Welch on the City Pension Board.

The city council will also consider a $4.4 million contract with Rogers Group Inc. for road resurfacing this year.

The property at 1615 East Fifth Avenue, currently zoned for Park and Open Space, may be rezoned to Planned Residential with 24 units per acre. The ordinance involves closing of part of Myrtle Street adjacent to the current apartments and using that land for expansion by Volunteer Ministries for additional apartments for the homeless. It does not include the two lots to the east which will remain part of the Caswell Park open spaces.

A decision by the Board of Zoning Appeals by Jennifer Arthur is on the agenda. She is appealing a decision that approved four variances for property as 931 Langford Avenue. A lot at 2350 Robinson Road will be considered for a zoning change from Agricultural to single family residential.

Three items ask for closing of roads or alleys on West Cliff Drive, Maryville Pike, and Sevier Avenue.

Travel, school activities reported to Audit Committee

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

The Internal Auditor's Office of Knox County presented its findings on county travel expenses and policies to the audit committee Tuesday. Zac Fullerton told the committee that overall the county has an adequate control over processing employee and elected officials' travel expenses but offered examples of abuse and suggestions on improvements. Fullerton's report included incidents of claiming unreasonable mileage, self-authorized travel, lodging and meals exceeding allowable amounts or being reported for deductions even when free. He also noted instances of overpayment of travel expenses, and missing or incomplete authorizations or summaries associated with prepayment.

He urged the finance department to return incomplete forms to the employee to be completed; perform tests for claimed mileage, and update the Travel Policy with cost saving measures. Fullerton wants to remind department heads that travel cards are available and should be used for larger expenses, and require employees to indicate if meals are part of the travel.

He said that the finance department handles more than 1,200 payment requests per month from outside vendors and county employees.

The audit committee also heard a report on school activity funds from Ted Hotz of Pugh CPA. He said the audit looked at the county's 88 schools and found fewer violations than last year. He said that, combined, the schools have more than $10 million in their accounts from school activities and fund raising.

Issues were found with the high turnover of in-school bookkeepers, the segregation of duties, tracking cash receipts, and disbursement of funds. He also reported on purchase orders, ticket sales, fund raising, travel policies and unclaimed accounts.

The Austin East High School Marching Roadrunners Band provided music and enthusiasm during the Martin Luther King Jr. celebration's King Day memorial parade last week. This year's parade included participants from multicultural community groups, churches, the Oak Ridge Environmental Peace Alliance Puppets, Great Smoky Mountains National Park and National Parks Conservation Association, Kerbela Temple No. 78 go-karts, and floats and vehicles decorated with the parade theme of "Let Freedom Ring." Grand marshals of this year's parade were Vice Mayor Gwen McKenzie and her husband, former County Commissioner Sam McKenzie. Photo by Mike Steely.

Final vote on TVA Tower move?

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

When the Knox County Commission meets tonight the members may finally decide on Mayor Glenn Jacobs' push to lease the TVA East Tower and move the school administration offices there.

After a lengthy discussion during Tuesday evening's work session Commissioner Randy Smith moved to approve the deal and Brad Anders seconded the motion, but Carson Dailey moved to move the vote to tonight's meeting with no recommendation. The motion passed unanimously.

The meeting, from 5 p.m. until after 9 p.m., also saw a discussion on adopting a County Greenway Corridor Study, to better connect several walking paths, and a lengthy discussion on sidewalk construction standards for new subdivisions. Both were postponed for tonight's regular meeting.

A presentation of a possible electronic roll call system, suggested by Commissioner Charles Busler, stretched more than the 10 minutes proposed and several commission members were unable to log onto the new system during the work session.

Although a site has not yet been selected for a new northwest elementary school the school board is requesting over $1 million to hire The Lewis Group Architects Inc. to design the new facility. While the commission routinely approves school requests, the lack of a location brought some discussion.

There are 12 zoning items on the Knox County Commission's agenda tonight and one may see some very organized opposition.

A proposed apartment complex on Beverly Road and New Beverly Baptist Church Road passed the Knoxville-Knox County Planning, 13-0. But opposition led by area residents hopes to stop it at commission by urging residents to attend the 7 p.m. meeting and even providing a bus from Northside Christian Church to haul neighbors to the meeting.

The multi-family unit development on the 80-acre tract was recently approved by the planners for 210 units. Attorney Charles Taylor may speak for the opposition. Developer Randy Guignard has been trying to develop the sloped property and finally won planner's approval.

The developer has agreed to improve traffic there and move the units away from the road. If approved the project would need to come back later for a final concept plan. Opponents say that runoff water in White's Creek already floods the area.

The Fairmont-Emoriland Neighborhood Association is also asking for a large turnout and notes the property is zoned industrial, general residential and floodway.

Commissioner Michele Carringer represents the area and told The Focus that the steeply sloped property is in the county but runs along a city road. She said its slope, next to the railroad and with the hillside, is better suited for one dwelling per acre.

Carringer said the planning committee accepted the entire 80 acres in considering how many units were permitted.

"We get water there on the road even in the slightest rain," she said.

"This man has never developed anything," Carringer said.

Publisher's Position

Will the Knox County Commission Serve We the People or Special Interests?

By Steve Hunley,
Publisher
publisher@knoxfocus.com

This evening the Knox County Commission will vote on the TVA Tower lease. Another commission vote will be held later on whether to sell the Andrew Johnson Building and move the Knox County School System into the TVA East Tower. County Mayor Glenn Jacobs thought it would be easier to get his way if two votes were held.

This TVA tower deal has been sixteen years in the making and is one of the most complex deals in the history of Knox County. Tens of millions of taxpayer dollars are at risk and this deal has over 23 legal contracts. This idea started in 2004 with then County Mayor Mike Ragsdale proclaimed how great it would be to put the Andrew Johnson Building back on the tax rolls. Now current County Mayor Glenn Jacobs is all in and is pressuring county commissioners to make this happen.

Mayor Jacobs has even threatened to impose a Plan B should commission not do what he says. Selling the Andrew Johnson Building for a fraction of its value has enraged taxpayers and they have called their commissioners and made it clear this is a bad deal and they want no part of it. Jacobs' Plan B is Knox County leasing the TVA Tower and, instead of moving the school system there, Jacobs says he will move all of Knox County government there from the City-County Building. Mayor Jacobs forgets he cannot do anything unless county commission votes to do it. Why does he keep forgetting this? Jacobs is not a king. He doesn't have a vote.

For some reason Jacobs really wants this TVA Tower deal. When he was a candidate for county mayor Jacobs told anyone who would listen to him that his big plan was to buy East Towne Mall and move Knox County government there. That is a plan that actually makes good sense for taxpayers. Why the flip flop? Now Jacobs is trying to kill that idea forever and has pushed all cards in on the TVA Tower deal. Why is Jacobs so intent on a deal that is so bad for the taxpayers?

This vote tonight will be a test of who county commissioners actually serve. Do they serve the taxpayers or special interests? If they serve the taxpayers they will vote this very bad deal down.

The sale of the Andrew Johnson Building for a fraction of its actual value would be giving away a very valuable and unique building for nothing in return for the county taxpayers. The taxpayers lose money they will never recover. This is a new low. Not only do the taxpayers have to give a PILOT (Payment in Lieu of Taxes) and maybe also a TIF (Tax Increment Financing) for loss to the taxpayer. The low bidder buys a building we, the taxpayers, paid $25.6 million dollars for in principal and interest and own outright and then Knox County "sells" the Andrew Johnson to the highest bidder for $6 million dollars.

How does that make any sense? That is madness. That is a loss of paid-for equity of $19.6 million dollars and then the taxpayers are to lease the vacant TVA Tower for maybe up to 40 years? You and I will take a hit of 77% paid in equity and then will pay a PILOT and maybe a TIF so the Andrew Johnson Building can be on the tax rolls? The requested PILOT is for 25 years. How will this generate any taxes in our lifetimes?

The low bidder for the Andrew Johnson Building is BNA Associates of Nashville. They want a PILOT before they break ground on renovations to the Andrew Johnson Building should this proposed "deal" pass both the Knox County Board of Education and the Knox County Commission. The market rate of the Andrew Johnson Building is between $17 million and $19 million dollars based on comparable real estate comparisons in that market area of downtown. It is appraised at the property assessor's office at $13.6 million dollars. Who thought it was a good deal to sell the Andrew Johnson building for $6 million dollars? Mayor Jacobs says it is a good deal. What you need to grasp is there is "accountant" accounting and "politician" accounting. They vary by many millions of dollars. You need to pay attention to these things. It is your money.

Boy Howdy, you should see the "politician" accounting on this pursuit of selling the Andrew Johnson Building to put it on the tax rolls. The Knoxville Focus has received multiple pro forma cost projections for this deal from Knox County Finance Director Chris Caldwell. You would need Pappy O'Daniel's "Brain Trust" to unravel this mess. The numbers don't add up and they have been changing on a weekly basis.

Imagine if you were to sell your house that you own outright at a 77% discount and then sign a 40-year lease at a "really good lease rate" to move to another house so you could escape some maintenance costs and some ADU (American Disabilities Act) upgrades? The actual truth is the elevator needs to be replaced in the Andrew Johnson Building because of an ADU agreement with the federal government.

Wouldn't it be much smarter to simply fix the elevator and stay in the Andrew Johnson Building we already own and save the taxpayers millions of dollars? Your county commissioner will make that decision today. If they vote down the TVA Tower deal we could keep the Andrew Johnson Building. The Andrew Johnson Building is your house. You literally own it. How do you feel about this real estate deal? It is your money. Do you see a financial return in your lifetime?

In an earlier commission workshop Commissioner Michele Carringer asked, "If the TVA Tower is such a great building why has it been vacant for 15 years?" No one in the Jacobs' Brain Trust has been able to answer that question.

Isn't it also so very odd that the most current matchmaker of this sweetheart TVA Tower deal is Mike Arms, the president of the political consulting firm Tennessee Strategies? Arms was a former Knox County Commissioner and former chief of staff to the former Knox County Mayor Mike Ragsdale, who is also co-owner of Tennessee Strategies. This alone should raise a number of questions for the taxpayers and members of county commission.

On Monday the people of Knox County will learn who their commissioners really serve. Do they serve the people? Or unseen forces seeking to make money off the taxpayers? We hope and pray our commissioners honor their oaths of office on Monday and vote this bad deal down. This vote will show which county commissioners work for We the People and which county commissioners work for special interests.

Police shootings on PARC agenda

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

The quarterly meeting of the Police Advisory & Review Committee this week will deal with two officer involved shootings. Director Clarence Vaughn II told The Focus that the Merchant Drive shooting death of Tom "Philly" Pheap may not be heard until it is released by the internal affairs unit and probably will reach the committee for its next meeting in April.

Vaughn said that two other officer involved shootings, one from 2018 and one in 2019, will be reviewed. He said the first shooting involved several officers who responded to an incident at 4901 Lowe Street where, after gunfire was exchanged, the suspect was found after an apparent suicide.

The 2019 shooting involved a female police trainee and was ruled a justifiable homicide. She was investigating a parked car and noticed the person had a weapon in the car. Instead of responding to the officer the person drive away quickly and the officer fired one shot, killing the suspect.

The January 30 PARC meeting is at 6 p.m. in the Haslam-Samson Ministry Complex at 1740 Texas Avenue in Lonsdale.

On the agenda is the presentation of the annual report including the number of cases received in 2019, and an overview of crime in the city. The quarterly meeting will also have speakers and an open public forum.

The committee was established in 1998 to provide an independent review of Internal Affairs Unit cases and make recommendations to the Chief of Police.

40 women, ages 55-96, who are members of the "Angels" Sunday School Class at Wallace Memorial Baptist Church in Knoxville, Tennessee. Most of the ladies are in their eighties, and some are even in their nineties. Many are on walkers. But, this group does not let age or health issues hamper their efforts to put into practice the words found in Ephesians 4:32 (KJV): "And be ye kind one to another..." The "Angels" class also volunteers to help staff the church office, and they buy sweat suits for nursing homes. They work with Under the Bridge Ministry, Backpack Ministry, and Appalachia Outreach. They help send children to camp who otherwise could not go. The class does work in the community at Western Heights Baptist Center, and makes handmade articles for mission trips. One lady even made 600 scarves for every child at Norwood School for Christmas! These ladies still find time to help each other deal with health issues, such as driving members to physical therapy. Those unable to attend church serve on the prayer committee because they can do that in their own home.

Whether helping individually, with other class members, or with the class as a whole, the "Angels" are a shining example. Quietly and without any fanfare, these Christian ladies devote their time and talents to serving others. Truly, the work they do is serving others as the hands and feet of Jesus.

Commissioners meet with state legislators

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

"All politics is local" is the saying but Knox County Commissioners know that a lot that happens in Nashville directly affects what goes on here.

Recently the commissioners had a lunch meeting at Crown Plaza with our area's elected state senators and representatives to express concerns over recent, pending and proposed legislation. Chairman Hugh Nystrom led the discussion by saying mental health funding and tax administration changes are needed.

Commissioner John Schoonmaker, who heads the commission's legislative committee, outlined several concerns. He asked for the abolition or a reduction of the amount the state withholds from the county to calculate those taxes to be returned to the county.

He suggested the amount the Knox County Register of Deeds returns locally be increased from 2.4% to 5%. He also asked that the "single article" sales tax locally be increased from $1,600 to $3,200

Schoonmaker also encouraged the legislators to develop a funding program for housing and health care for state prisoners being held in county jails.

The meeting also saw a discussion on prohibiting smoking on the grounds of a playgrounds owned or operated by city or county governments.

Also discussed was "kinship care" and how the state could possibly help fund relatives who have custody of grandchildren. It was estimated that $9,000 per year is the cost of holding children in state custody and one suggestion is to use some of the state's surplus for that purpose.

The lack of state laws limiting vaping was also discussed as was more financial support for veteran services.

Following the commission session the Knox County Board of Education shared their concerns with the legislators.

Dog or Man Training is Necessary

Clips of dogs performing cute or amazing tricks or loving their owners always catch my attention on Facebook or Twitter. I'm more inclined to watch something like that instead of something from the world of sports or some "goofy" thing a person has decided to do. Most of us love our pets; only a few evil humans mistreat animals, and woe unto them if others discover their cruelty.

I have decided that husbands are much like family dogs. We are interested primarily in eating and sleeping. We also lovingly accept a pat on the head or a back-scratching every so often. Those aren't the only ways in which we are similar to dogs. Ask any wife and she'll tell you how much marriage is like pet ownership.

By Joe Rector
joerector@comcast.net

Our wives accept us warts and all, and the Lord knows we men are covered in them. Deciding to marry a man must be like adopting a pet. A woman brings the man home from his home pound, usually an apartment that more resembles a pig sty. Immediately, the training begins.

The first order of business is housebreaking a husband. One of the hardest tricks for a male to learn is raising and lowering the toilet seat. Many men declare that he will raise the lid when he uses the facility, but it should be women's responsibilities to lower it. Spouses remind their feral husbands that they don't have to sit down. With a great deal of effort, some patience, and even a little anger, the wives eventually convince their mates to lower the seat.

She also tries to teach the man to stand close enough to the commode to prevent anything from running down the front of the porcelain. Yes, it's disgusting, but all must remember that training beasts is a, sometimes, dirty business. One of the quickest ways to break this habit involves handing the man of the house a rag and some cleaner so that he can spruce up the places that he has dirtied. In no time at all, he is a good boy who obeys. Only occasionally will the husband regress.

Another trick for men to master is picking their "stuff" up. That includes clothing strewn about the house, empty plates, and half-consumed drinks. Additionally, all the items that a man drags into the house from the garage or workshop must be picked up. Wives begin by gently reminding their loves that they should clean up their messes. Some men are as stubborn as dogs. In those cases, women resort to harsher tones of voice to convey the message. In extreme instances, the master must lead the male to the mess and make him clean it up or smacking him on the nose with a rolled-up newspaper.

Dogs have a way of embarrassing their owners with inappropriate actions. They will walk into a crowded room, plop on the floor, raise their legs and begin cleaning themselves. Men exhibit the similar unacceptable acts. Too many wives have entered a room where a husband is sitting, and they begin to feel ill. The men might burp or pass gas. They also display the terrible habit of scratching themselves. Some dads will have their offspring to come over and "pull my finger."

Wives react quickly and severely to such acts. They scream, point their fingers in intimidating ways, or, worst of all, look upon the offending spouse with a "stink eye." Men beat a hasty retreat when the last thing occurs, and they sneak around the corner every so often to see if they are no longer in trouble.

Husbands are good things to have around the house. We complete several chores, provide a bit of income, and, on rare occasions, perform some act of kindness that make wives remember why they married the guys. I suppose women will have to continue to train us men and realize that we sometimes falter in our behaviors. Unlike a dog who has become too unruly to train, men can't be left at the pound. Even if we find ourselves in the "doghouse," we continue to hope that wives will love us in spite of our lack of training.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth, II

Pages from the Past

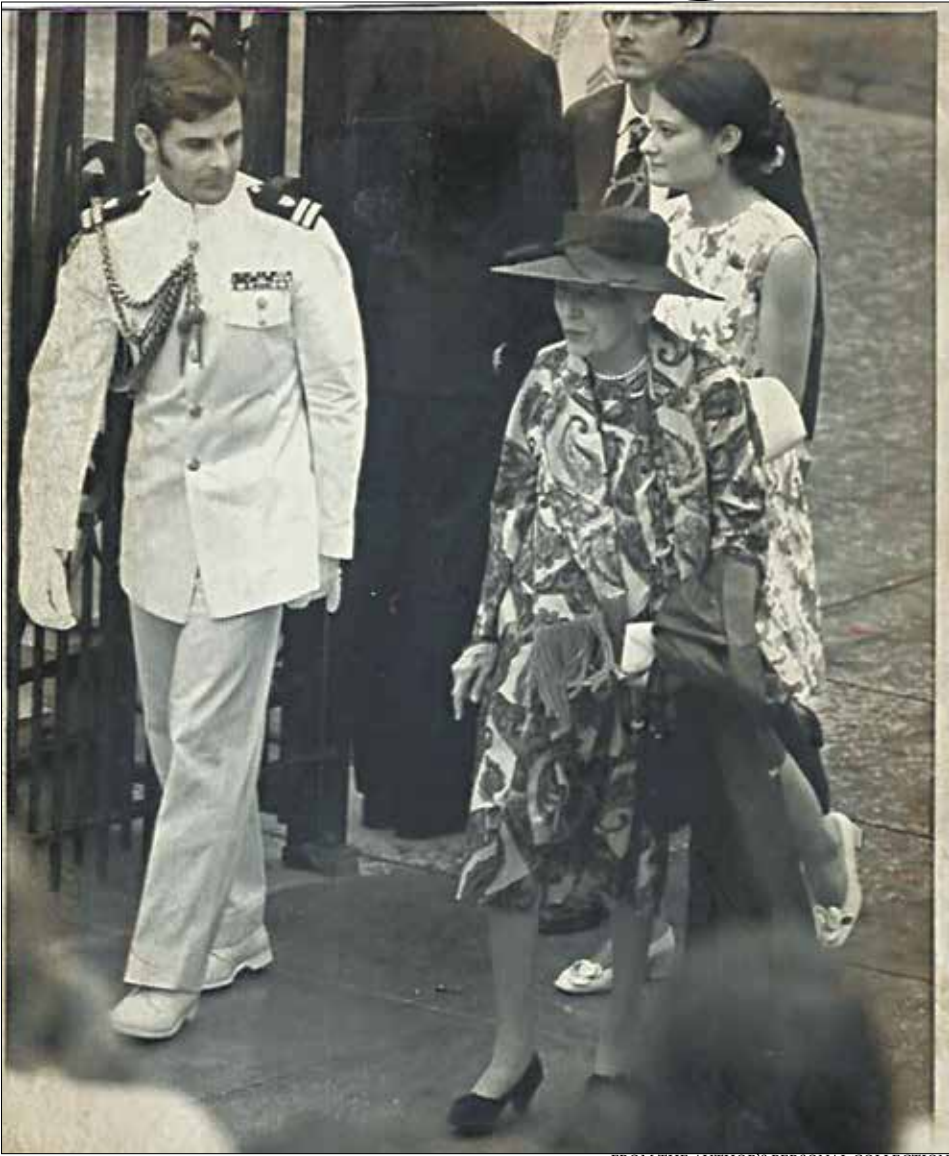

By Ray Hill
rayhill865@gmail.com

“If you haven’t got anything nice to say about anyone, come sit here by me” – pillow in the home of Alice Roosevelt Longworth.

Alice Roosevelt Longworth, eldest child of former President Theodore Roosevelt, had been in the public eye since the assassination of William McKinley in 1901. Banned from the White House during the administration of Theodore Roosevelt’s chosen successor, William Howard Taft, due to her public comments about First Lady Helen Taft, Alice found herself in the same position during Woodrow Wilson’s reign as president. Theodore Roosevelt had a particular dislike for Wilson and when the President refused to allow him to raise a division and fight in France during the First World War, TR’s dislike boiled to a red-hot hatred. Roosevelt campaigned hard for Republican candidates in 1918 and President Wilson made a crucial mistake in telling the American people the election of a GOP Congress would be a repudiation of him and his administration. Nobody was more gleeful than Theodore Roosevelt when the Republicans won a majority in Congress that year. Alice Roosevelt Longworth regularly attended committee meetings, sessions of both the House and Senate, and threw intimate dinners where she lobbied against American entry into the League of Nations. Dinner at the home of Alice Longworth was a prized invitation and the food was excellent, although apparently she had the same menu for each dinner. The dinners began with a cream of crab soup that guests never forgot decades later. Salad, vegetables, some kind of potato, all followed by a cream Brule that made the same kind of impression as did the cream of crab soup. Virtually everyone who knew Alice Roosevelt Longworth personally attested to the fact she was one of the most stimulating and erudite conversationalists he or she had ever met.

Therein lay much of the dominion Mrs. Longworth exercised over Washington’s elite society. Conversely, Alice was extraordinarily shy before people she did not know. Her one-time friend, Cissy Patterson, publisher of the Washington Herald, as well as an old rival for the affections of both Nick Longworth and Bill Borah, once chided her enemy in her newspaper as being unable to utter in public. Mrs. Longworth’s husband, Nicholas, was a Republican congressman from Ohio, moving up the ladder inside the U. S. House of Representatives. A convivial man with a love of music, women, and liquor, Nick Longworth was enormously popular with his fellow congressmen, Democrats and Republicans alike. Longworth was especially good friends with his counterpart on the Democratic side of the aisle, John Nance Garner of Texas. Garner certainly enjoyed taking a drink himself and instituted what he referred to as the “Board of Education” in a Capitol hideaway office where he poured drinks for a favored few each day. The Longworth marriage was not what it once had been and while Nick and Alice loved each other, the congressman continued drinking and kept mistresses, a fact known to Alice. For her part, Alice did not seem as upset about her husband’s lady friends than she did his drinking. Alice Roosevelt Longworth never tolerated drunks and her husband overindulged on numerous occasions. As to affairs, Alice had embarked on her own with Senator William E. Borah of Idaho. Bill Borah was an impressive man, a constitutional expert, a highly regarded lawyer, and a brilliant orator, one of the few members of the Senate thought to be able to change the votes of his colleagues with one of his powerful speeches. Borah was an isolationist and profoundly opposed to American participation in the League of Nations. Along with California senator Hiram W. Johnson, Borah had trailed Woodrow Wilson across the county during the President’s ill-fated speaking tour to change the minds of the American people and pressure the U. S. Senate into ratifying the Treaty of Versailles. Wilson suffered a serious stroke on his speaking tour which left him highly disabled, a fact that was successfully kept from the public by his physician and First Lady Edith Bolling Wilson. Alice dismissed Wilson as a “weh-blooded schoolmaster.” Like Senator Borah, Alice Roosevelt Longworth was deeply opposed to the United States joining the League of Nations. She used her social prominence and dinner parties to further opposition to the Treaty of Versailles. Alice also became pregnant at age forty. No one knows if Nick Longworth knew about his wife’s affair with Senator Borah; nor does anyone know if he knew that the daughter Alice bore was that of Bill Borah. Nick seemed not to suspect as he positively doted on the daughter Alice named Paulina. Certainly Alice’s affair with the senator was hardly news to many denizens of Washington. Some wags referred to Alice as “Aurora Borah Alice” while others snickered she should name her daughter “De-Borah.” Yet Mrs. Longworth was one of those rare and exceptional people who simply did not give a continental what others thought of her and while Paulina’s true paternity was suspected by many, Nick Longworth either did not know or did not care. For the remainder of his life, Nicholas Longworth took his daughter with him everywhere he could, as often as he could. Paulina could be found playing with the typewriters in his office, especially after he became Speaker of the House in 1925. Paulina was deprived of her beloved father when the ailing Speaker had gone to the home of friends in South Carolina where he eventually died of pneumonia in 1931. While Nicholas Longworth had been wealthy, evidently he did not leave Alice set for life. Mrs. Longworth wrote an autobiography, “Crowded Hours”, that sold well and was encouraged to write a newspaper column like that of her cousin Eleanor, who was then First Lady. To augment her income, Alice cheerfully appeared in paid advertisements for cigarettes (which she loved), as well as Pond’s cold cream. Eleanor was an inviting target for Alice’s malevolent wit and the First Lady had heard about her cousin’s impersonation of her. Eleanor Roosevelt asked Alice to perform the impersonation, which included Alice protruding her front teeth. Alice gave Eleanor a demonstration of the impersonation, which had been seen many times by much of Washington’s society, and while the First Lady managed a little laugh, it was utterly devastating. Eleanor readily granted Alice’s intelligence but observed her cousin’s life appeared “to be one long pursuit of pleasure and excitement and rather little real happiness.” Alice’s tart tongue usually found its target and she sniffed Franklin Roosevelt was “one-thirds mush and two-thirds Eleanor.” Eleanor did have the satisfaction of knowing her newspaper column, which expanded to radio, was much more popular and widely read than Alice’s; the problem with Mrs. Longworth’s column was it exhibited none of her vibrant personality and mordant wit. Eventually, Alice discontinued her column while Eleanor’s lasted until her death. Still, Alice continued to be invited to the White House by Eleanor until Franklin Roosevelt could stand it no longer. Alice, being a Republican, heartily denounced FDR and the New Deal lustily every four years. Still, Alice did not spare some of those in her own party and was credited with the statement that haunted Wendell Willkie, the 1940 GOP presidential nominee, throughout his campaign. When an acquaintance marveled at Willkie’s surprise win at the Republican National Convention in Philadelphia and speculated his candidacy had been boosted by the “grassroots”, Alice retorted, “Yes, the grassroots of 10,000 country clubs.” It was Alice Longworth who said of Calvin Coolidge, “He looks as if he’s been weaned on a pickle.” Alice’s opinion of Warren G. Harding was even lower, saying the president was “just a slob.” Thomas E. Dewey, the 1944 Republican presidential nominee was the victim of another supposed Alice Longworth bon mot. Allegedly, Alice was thought to have said Dewey “looks like the little man on the wedding cake.” For the rest of her life, Alice Longworth denied she had ever said any such thing.

According to one of Mrs. Longworth’s biographers, two women who thought it would be clever went around Washington, D. C. quoting the remark and crediting Alice. The fact it spread so far and quickly is tribute to Alice’s usual wit. When Republican senator Joe McCarthy encountered Alice, he met his match. Putting his arm around her, something she genuinely disliked, he tried to make a joke, saying he considered Mrs. Longworth his date and would therefore call her “Alice.” Mrs. Longworth snapped, “No, Senator McCarthy, you are not going to call me Alice. The truckman, the trash man and the policemen may call me Alice, but you may not.” Alice Roosevelt Longworth remained an isolationist, serving on the Board of America First, until the United States entered World War II with the bombing of Pearl Harbor. With the death of Franklin Roosevelt and the presidency of Harry Truman, Alice’s company was still much sought after and invitations to her home still highly prized, but Eleanor’s comment about happiness seemed prescient as Paulina descended into depression. Paulina had married well, but her husband, Alexander Strum, while remarkably talented and intelligent, had a very serious drinking problem. Strum died at age twenty-eight from viral hepatitis after having produced a daughter, Joanna, with Paulina. Five years after Alex Strum’s death in 1951, Paulina Longworth Strum died from a combination of sleeping pills and alcohol. Alice was faced with raising her ten year-old granddaughter. Whatever failings she had as a mother, Alice made up for as a grandmother. Joanna remained the person whose company Alice craved the most until the end of her life. Fortunately, Joanna proved to be as happy an adult as her mother had been unhappy. The year before Paulina’s death, Alice Longworth had suffered a fall and broken her hip; a year later she was diagnosed with breast cancer and underwent a mastectomy. In 1970, cancer was found in her other breast and once again she had a mastectomy. Alice referred to herself as “Washington’s only topless octogenarian.” Alice Longworth, or “Mrs. L” as she was popularly known by those who knew her, remained a fixture of Washington society and was preeminent amongst the Capitol’s “cave dwellers.” Alice had long liked Richard Nixon and supported him in his 1960 campaign against John F. Kennedy, but even she was not immune to the Kennedy charm. While Alice was sorry Nixon lost the election, she admitted until she met the Kennedy clan she did not realize “how amusing and attractive Democrats could be.” Despite her affection for the Kennedy family, Alice Roosevelt Longworth was one of the very few people knowledgeable about politics who did not believe Richard Nixon’s career was over, even after losing the 1962 gubernatorial race in California. Alice also abandoned her own political party briefly when she voted for Lyndon Johnson over Barry Goldwater in 1964. Yet Alice scalded LBJ when he complained about her habit of wearing broad brimmed hats, saying it prevented him from kissing her. “That, Mr. Johnson, is why I wear them,” Alice replied. Well into her eighties, Alice explained, “The secret to eternal youth is arrested development.” Alice was well able to turn her humor on herself and as she aged, she joked she was a “withered Twiggy”, a reference to the popular and extremely thin British model. Yet even well into her eighties, her temper was capable of flashing. When her black chauffeur, Richard Turner, was driving her in her ancient limousine and pulled out in front of a taxi driver who bellowed, “What do you think you’re doing, you black bastard?” It was Alice who replied, snarling, “He’s taking me to my destination, you white son-of-a-bitch!” Alice Roosevelt Longworth delighted in attending social events in Richard Nixon’s White House and made her final visit to what had once been her home in 1976 during Gerald Ford’s presidency for a bicentennial dinner attended by Queen Elizabeth of Great Britain. Mrs. L. died at age ninety-six on February 20, 1980. Washington’s “other monument” had finally fallen.

Cain Family Chiropractic emphasizes wellness, spinal health

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

You can say that Cain Family Chiropractic is a family-oriented office and you'd be absolutely, 100% correct. Drs. Sarah and Matt Cain, who have a growing family of three children, focus their practice on family care. They specialize in family wellness and spinal health.

Both doctors have advanced training in several techniques and populations including expectant mothers and children. Chiropractic benefits may range from help with ADD/ADHD to menstrual problems to migraines. They can also help patients with strength, endurance, wellness, balance, sleep, digestion and so much more.

"The nervous system controls everything and therefore there may benefit any area of the body with chiropractic care," said Sarah. "I've suffered with migraines since I was a young girl and it wasn't until I saw a chiropractor that I started to get to the root of the problem."

Matt's interest in chiropractic started with an injury in high school.

"It's all about your brain and your body and those connections. If those connections (nerves) are sending signals properly, your body functions as it should. But when there is a problem with that connection, the body may not function properly. Chiropractors help improve those connections and therefore, your body does what it is supposed to and healing occurs," Sarah told The Focus.

Sarah had a thriving office in Ohio when Matt decided he wanted to pursue his doctorate in chiropractic. This led them to sell their original practice and move to Spartanburg, South Carolina. When Matt graduated, they decided that they wanted to live in an area that could also be a playground. Knoxville became their choice.

"Our dream is that this office becomes a lighthouse, a beacon, for lifetime healthy choices," Matt told a gathering of well wishers prior to cutting the ribbon and officially opening the office this month.

Sarah enjoys time with her family, a great run, a good book and being outside in the sunshine. He enjoys watching sports, playing basketball and golf, hiking, biking, skiing and teaching their kids new things.

Different Types of Judges, I

When we think about appearing or going to court in the US, and specifically in Tennessee, we typically think about appearing before a judge. However, there are a wide range of actual titles given to the individuals who may be deciding your case. Even though that person may not be officially called a, "judge," let's be honest, they will be passing judgment upon you.

Although this list is probably not exhaustive, here are some of the different judges you might find yourself in front of.

SUPREME COURT JUSTICE There are Supreme Court Justices on both the federal and state level. These are the most important judges there are. If a case gets heard by them, then it has been appealed at least twice. Also, the Supreme Court gets to choose which cases it wishes to hear, and which cases it does not want to hear. There are five Tennessee Supreme Court Justices and nine federal Supreme Court Justices. Unlike in a trial court, multiple judges hear the cases simultaneously and then they vote as to how they wish to rule and issue a written decision stating what their ruling is.

APPELLATE JUDGE If the decision of a trial judge gets appealed, the first court to hear the appeal

By Jedidiah McKeethan
attorneyknoxville@gmail.com is the Court of Appeals. This is usually a panel of three judges. Unlike the Supreme Court, they must hear cases appealed. In Tennessee, some appellate judges will hear only criminal cases, and some will hear only civil cases.

JUDGES Everyone knows what a judge is. The person hearing and deciding their case, right? There are many different types of judges. There are circuit court judges, general sessions judges, and juvenile judges, to name a few. Judges in Tennessee must run for office and be elected, while federal judges are appointed to their positions.

CHANCELLOR Chancellors preside over Chancery Court and are similar to judges in their level of authority, however, they hear different types of cases. There is not a ton of difference between chancellors and judges as to what they are doing day to day. Typically, they are both hearing cases and making decisions on a daily basis. Chancellors are also elected to their positions.

Federal Communications Commission's regulation allowing the placement of cell towers was made 22 years ago.

Mayor Ron Williams told the Focus Friday morning that a resolution is being created and will be on the next meeting's agenda. He said that resolution, when passed, will go to state Representative Jason Zachary and Senator Briggs. He also said that Farragut is one of the few jurisdictions that require utilities to come before the city planning commission for approval.

"We are currently looking to see what other jurisdictions have done," he said.

"We are keeping an eye on litigation in the 9th circuit court of appeals (case no. 19-70147). It is our best opportunity to see the FCC be required to update its radio frequency exposure standards," said Vice Mayor Povlin.

"At last night's forum, the citizens requested that we support a resolution to support some local control over 5G implementation. Given the wrinkle of the due date for final bills I'm not sure how we will proceed," Povlin wrote in an email to The Focus Friday.

"The most important thing for us, as a Town, is to work through some language that has a chance of passing legal muster both at the state level and the federal level and then pass a resolution supporting that language for the state General Assembly to consider passing. The FCC passed rule 18-133 in September 2018 that also preempts local control over the implementation of 5G support structures."

CAK names basketball scorers' table in memory of Dan R. Perryman

By Bill Howard

As of Tuesday, Jan. 21, the scorer's table in the basketball gym at Christian Academy of Knoxville has a name. It was named for a CAK teacher and administrator universally admired, even loved.

Between the girls' and boys' games that night, when CAK was hosting The King's Academy, the scorer's table was named in honor of the late Dan R. Perryman. Perryman, who worked in Christian education for some 40 years, arrived at CAK in 2012 to teach history. He then served as both assistant principal of the high school, and, for the last 18 months, interim Head of School. Mr. Perryman died this past New Year's Eve after a brief illness. He was 63.

Ried Estes is CAK's athletic director and coaches girls' soccer. "It doesn't sound like a long time (his time at CAK), but the impact he made...he was first and foremost an outstanding educator," Estes said. "He made a difference in students' lives. He was a loving man...always affirming our work, making us confident in what we did. Everything was gonna be ok."

Perryman was an avid sports fan among many other interests, and volunteered to work the game clock for basketball games as soon as he arrived. "Even as the Head of School he would continue to work our score clock," Estes said.

"He had a special place in the athletic department because he kept the clock for us every home game," said Abby Williams, assistant athletic director and girls' basketball coach.

Central to Perryman's life was his faith. By all accounts he was a profoundly religious man. He was an ordained minister, and served in a variety of roles in Christian education across the U.S. His bachelor's degree came from Pillsbury Baptist Bible College in Minnesota.

"He was a godly man," said Rich Fulford, who succeeded Perryman as Head of School. "What I'll remember most probably is walking in his office every day."

Craney wants to build on the 'family' foundation

By Steve Williams

Nick Craney was on his way to football workouts on Friday, Jan. 17, when Central High principal Andrew Brown and Athletic Director J.D. Lambert let him know he was their choice to be the Bobcats' new head coach.

"Honestly, the first thing that went through my mind was my family, my wife and my daughter, Brooke and Lilly," Craney remembers after receiving the news. "They have done so much to support me."

He was "excited to tell them and have them be the first ones to find out," he recalled last Thursday in an exclusive interview with The Knoxville Focus.

"The family was the first thought."

And that's so fitting for the new Central coach, who let it be known right away that he plans to sustain the "family" foundation former coach Bryson Rosser started for the program six years ago.

It was a foundation that led to three state championship game appearances in the last four seasons and back-to-back Class 5A state titles in 2018 and 2019 – the Bobcats' first state crowns in the TSSAA's playoff era.

Forget About Me, I Love You (FAMILY) was often repeated by Rosser, and his C.O.R.E. values (Character. Optimism. Resilience. Enthusiasm.) were not just words, but values to have.

Rosser publicly resigned on Jan. 7 to support his wife in a "dream job" opportunity in Boston.

"One of the things I told the team was Romans 8:28 says that 'God works all things for the good of those who love Him and are called according to His purposes,'" said Craney. "And I told the team that for a very long time now coaching football and influencing young men has been my calling."

"I'm thrilled to be stepping into this new role and to be able to have more influence and build relationships more with the guys on our team. It's all about growing young men for me."

It will be Craney's first head coaching position. He turns 28 years old today (Jan. 27). He started as a defensive assistant, coaching outside linebackers, on Rosser's first staff at Central in 2014 and was elevated to defensive coordinator in 2016, after getting to learn from former UT coach Larry Slade, who served as the Bobcats' DC in 2015, before joining the Carson-Newman University staff.

"Now, I'm not Bryson Rosser," said Craney, "and I'm not going to do things exactly Bryson Rosser's way, because I can't do that. I've got to be Nick Craney. But the foundation of whom we are – that's been the formula for success – is that we are a group of people who love each other, care about each other and are challenging each other towards success in all things – athletics, academics and service to the community."

Craney said he will continue to affect the defense and may still call the defense. But he pointed out he has an outstanding staff of assistants and many are capable of being coordinators on offense and defense, which could help free him up for his head coaching duties.

Craney was born and raised in South Florida. He moved to Greeneville and played his senior season of high school football in 2009 for the Greene Devils, who made their first state title appearance that year. Craney was a linebacker and said he also started in the offensive line about half of the season.

He played linebacker one

Lady Beavers claim first tournament title since 2005

By Ken Lay

For the first time in 15 years, Karns Middle School's girls basketball team has won the James A. Ivey Jr. Memorial Middle School Tournament.

The Lady Beavers, who completed a perfect run through the Knox County Middle School Basketball Conference regular season before claiming the tournament title, had a happy celebration but many of the players shed tears of joy while they picked up the championship trophy.

"This has been a long time coming," Lady Beavers' coach Paige Ewing said after Karns notched a 50-42 victory over West Valley Thursday night before a packed and spirited house at South-Doyle Middle School. "It's been 15 years."

The top-seeded Lady Beavers prevailed in the rematch of last season's title game won by the Lady Wolves and showed their emotion unabashedly and Ewing, who played her high school ball at Karns, said that emotion shown by her players exhibited just how much they cared about the game of basketball and each other.

"This was a great game and West Valley really brought it. They showed up and they really played hard," Ewing said. "Our girls have a passion for the game and they have a passion for each other. We were passionate and we fought really hard."

This victory didn't come easily for the Lady Beavers as the two

Balance, energy will be keys to Carter's tourney hopes

By Steve Williams

Carter High boys basketball coach Spencer Beaty has figured his team out and believes he knows what it will take for the Hornets to be successful come tournament time.

"When we push and play with energy, when we all go rebound and get the ball out and attack the rim and play 84 feet, we tend to be a lot more effective," he said after the Hornets' 59-41 non-district win over Austin-East at Jim Williams Gymnasium last week.

Carter (16-4) played in spurts against the visiting Roadrunners (5-7) and it wasn't until the fourth quarter that the Hornets put a young A-E team away for good.

A drive and basket by LaRon Dixon, Austin-East's only returnee who started some games last season, cut Carter's lead to two points (39-37) with 1:45 remaining in the third period.

Ty Hurst, the bell cow of the Carter squad, extended the Hornets' lead to 11 (48-37) with an old-fashioned 3-point play with 6½ minutes left in the final quarter. Another basket by Ty made it 54-37 at the 3-minute mark.

The senior guard finished with a 31-point performance. No other Carter player scored in double figures on this night. Hurst also had seven rebounds, three assists, two blocks and four steals.

"Ty is a special young man," said Coach Beaty.

"He's earned everything he's gotten. He spends countless hours in the gym. He was a focal point tonight. He was a key for us and I felt like he sort of carried us through the first half. But if you back up to one game ago, he was sitting (on the bench) quite a bit of the third quarter and to start the fourth quarter (against Gibbs). Kudos to him for bouncing back.

"But we've got a group of good young men around him and that's one of the things I like about our team," added the second-year Carter coach. "We have some different guys who can put up big numbers. We have four guys who are averaging close to double figures and three for sure."

Beaty believes it will take that kind of balance and the energy to advance Carter on the tourney trail.

"I don't think there's any doubt," he said. "We've got to continue to play together. We've got to try to expose other teams' weaknesses, and I think we've got a number of kids who are able to do that."

Senior point guard Gabe Harper is in that group along with senior guard Braden Clevenger, who is a much better 3-point shooter than he has shown so far, said Beaty. The Hornets' coach also calls junior post Colby Reynolds "a bull down low" and says 6-5 senior forward Preston McNew "may be the most athletic kid on our team and plays above the rim."

"We've just got to play together, play with energy and I think we'll be fine."

Reynolds and Harper scored eight points apiece in the win. Reynolds also pulled down a team-high 11 rebounds. Brycen McKeehan contributed 10 morning and sitting down and he'd be poring over his Bible – it had a worn cover – and he would pray. And that's how he led. He was in God's word."

"I knew Dan very well," Fulford went on. "He and I spent many an hour in meetings together, just the two of us behind closed doors, talking about what's in the best interests of our students and our staff and how we can serve God. I cherish the time."

"Everything he did he stood by," said Williams. "He talked the talk, he walked the walk."

Perryman will also be remembered for how much his students meant to him. "He was a humble leader," Estes said. "Students loved him....faculty, staff loved him. You couldn't help but love him because his gift was making you feel loved."

"He was completely invested in the school community and the kids," said Williams. "He was someone you want all of your kids to learn from."

Perryman was also known for his humor, according to Fulford. "The day he was asked to be the interim Head of School, the Board of Trustees' president went to his office and said 'look, I'd like to talk to you.' And Dan said he was afraid they were gonna tell him he was fired. That's the kind of man he was... great sense of humor, very humble man, godly man... friend to all."

Perryman and his wife Donna were married for 41 years. Perryman's two grandsons are students at CAK.

CAK student Connor Jureck had Perryman's U.S. History class as a freshman. "He was a great teacher and a great man," said Jureck. "All the students loved him. He's one of the best men I've ever known."

CAK Government teacher Larry Holden addresses the crowd between the girls' and boys' games at the dedication of the scoring table to the late Dan Perryman Tuesday, Jan. 21. Holden kept the statistics book while Perryman ran the clock. The two were good friends off the court.

CAK boys use third-period run to prevail over The King's Academy, 59-49

By Bill Howard

With the end of the high-school basketball regular season looming, teams are jockeying for position heading into the postseason. Tuesday night, Jan. 21, The King's Academy boys traveled to Christian Academy of Knoxville for an important District 1 (Class A, East Region, Division II) game.

Late in the third period, the Warriors led by only two, 36-34. A little over two minutes later, an 11-0 run put the lead at 13, and the Lions wouldn't recover. CAK held on in the fourth for a 59-49 win. The game improved CAK's district record to 5-2 (13-7 overall) and kept them in second place in the district.

"I'm pleased because they're really good," said Warriors' coach Shane Wells. "I thought we had pretty good energy coming out. That's something we haven't been doing so I thought the guys came out and played pretty hard from the start. "We made a couple shots early that got us going. It was just good to have a good start to a game and I think it carried over to the rest of the game."

"We just didn't play well at all tonight," said Mercer, Lions' coach. "We just never went on any kind of run. They did a good job of slowing us down offensively. We never got going on the offensive end, we didn't shoot it well. We didn't match their energy; they deserved to win."

Ten different players scored for CAK, led by Jayden Housewright's 11. Dante Oliver added 10. TKA's Nemanja Kovacevic led all scorers with 13; Zack Tilly chipped in 11. For the game, CAK was 21 of 46 from the floor for 45.6%; TKA shot 36% on 18 of 50. CAK jumped to an 8-1 lead, and led after one period 15-8. In the second, the Lions outscored the Warriors 14-9 to cut the halftime deficit to two, 24-22. Tilly scored five points in the quarter.

The teams traded baskets through most of the third, and with 1:49 left, Kovacevic hit a three to cut CAK's lead to two, 36-34. The 11-0 run that followed was highlighted by Luke Carter's seven points. His trey with 7:29 left in the game made the score 47-34. The teams played evenly the rest of the way as CAK closed it out.

Mercer felt his team's overall game effort was inadequate. "They played harder, especially in the second half," he said. "They went on that run. We just haven't jelled yet and we're just not playing hard enough yet to win these key games."

"It's just hard for me to believe we're not playing harder than we are," he went on. "I've gotta find a way to motivate this team and find a way to play harder. This team's got an upside that's way bigger than we're showing right now."

"Both teams shot about the same in the first half, turnovers were about the same," said Wells. We had that little stretch, I would say that was the difference. We were able to turn 'em over and get out in transition... just being able to get out and get some easy buckets."

Micky Jean Philippe got eight for TKA (3-5, 8-11); Carter added nine for CAK. The teams shot similarly from the free-throw line and from beyond the arc.

Mercer still has hopes for this year. "We still have an opportunity to reach some of our goals," he said. "We hope we can position ourselves well for the tournament by winning out in the district."

"Really proud of 'em," said Wells, who took his team to the state tournament four years ago. "We're so young and have been able to beat some good quality teams, so hopefully that will give them some confidence. If we could play just a little bit smarter we got a chance to be pretty good."

The King's Academy girls use scoring runs to defeat CAK, 59-42

By Bill Howard

The King's Academy Lady Lions went on the road to Christian Academy of Knoxville Tuesday night, Jan. 21, and came away with an important district win.

Up only six early in the third period, TKA (13-6, 7-1 Class A, East Region, District 1) went on a 16-3 run over a three-minute span, and a 22-16 lead was suddenly 38-19. The Warriors never recovered and would get no closer than 12 the rest of the game. TKA won 59-42.

"I told them to stay aggressive, keep attacking, push the tempo," said TKA coach Blake Derrick. "I really wanted to push the ball a lot more to get some fast breaks. We got very sloppy at times. We got lackadaisical. But we kept fighting."

Taylor Carter and Jennifer Sullivan each had six in the run. Carter tied with Amelia Pfeiffer at 14 for the game to lead the Lady Lions' balanced scoring. Bailey Burgess added 11.

After the first period it looked like CAK (9-9, 4-3) would never be in the game. Hannah Carroll's layup gave the Warriors a 2-0 lead, but TKA then scored 13 straight – four each by Pfeiffer and Jenna Timmerman – to lead 13-2. The Lady Lions led 15-3 after one. An 11-7 Warrior advantage in the second period put the halftime score at 22-14.

"The effort was there, the baskets just don't go in," said CAK coach Abby Williams. "They outworked us in the second half. We lost them in transition."

Keira Leffew, who led all scorers with 17, hit a layup for CAK 30 seconds in the third quarter to cut the lead to six. Timmerman's layup then started the 16-3 run that sealed the game. At one point in the run, TKA hit three consecutive threes, two by Carter and one by Sullivan. Jenneh Day added nine for CAK.

"It was hard to get out of that hole when you gave up nine straight points off threes," said Williams. "We gotta get better, we're young but that can only be an excuse for so long. Give credit to them, they hit shots when they needed to and we just couldn't get back from it."

Derrick, who played professional basketball in Montenegro and in a league in California, thought his team's D was crucial in the game.

"We played really, really good defense," he said. "I thought we did a lot better hedging and helping. I thought she (Pfeiffer) did a really good job. McKenna (Monger) and Jenna did a really good job rebounding and boxing out. We rebounded really well; that was the main thing I thought we did well in. We pushed the tempo a little bit...I thought overall our bigs played pretty well."

TKA led 45-32 after three, and held on after that. Only five Warriors scored, but for Williams, one who didn't was a big contributor.

"Holly Gray, she was all over the place, especially on defense," said Williams. "She didn't score any points but she gave us a lot of energy, trying to get everybody going. We just struggled to score."

Derrick's team stayed tied with Lakeview Christian atop the district. He took his team to the first round of the state tournament last year, and likes his chances of returning this year.

"I think we're up there fighting with everybody," he said. "It's still a dogfight at the end of the day. I'm confident, but we have a far road to get there. Before me they didn't have winning records."

"But I have some girls who are buying in."

Lady Beavers claim first tournament title since 2005

The Karns Lady Beavers celebrate their 2020 Knox County Middle School Basketball Conference Tournament Championship. The Lady Beavers downed West Valley 50-42 to win their first title since 2005.

KCMSBC heavyweights slugged through a first quarter that was even as the teams were embroiled in a 12-12 deadlock.

In fact, Karns and they Lady Wolves, playing for the second time in two weeks, played evenly in three of the four frames. It was a 14-6 run in the second stanza that propelled the Lady Beavers to victory.

Karns boasted a balanced scoring attack and it was Sammy Taylor, one of multiple returners for the Lady Beavers this season, who led the way with 24 points.

"She had a big game," Ewing said of Taylor, who was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player after scoring 15 of her points before halftime. "But she got plenty of help." Indeed, she did as Karns won its first tournament since 2005. That team, coached by Tracy Eaton, was a No. 7 seed and also beat West Valley to win the championship.

That Lady Wolves squad was coached by Tim Goddard, who served as Karns Middle's boys coach in the mid-1980s and coached the likes of former Central High and Karns Middle coach Lynn Allen, current Webb School of Knoxville and former Oak Ridge High School coach Ricky Norris and current Karns High coach Lee Henson.

Alyssa Maples added nine points for the Lady Beavers while Rylee Roberts had six and Madison Perrin finished with five for Karns, which led 26-18 at the break and 37-29 heading into the final six minutes of the contest.

For the Lady Wolves, Lindsay Wilson had 22 points and helped West Valley pull even with a 3-point shot as time expired in the opening stanza.

Lainey Cox had 10 points and Sharon Wilson finished with six.

Joining Taylor on the all-tournament team were Maples and Roberts from Karns and Cox, Lindsay Wilson and Sharon Wilson for West Valley.

The Lady Beavers and Lady Wolves both advanced to the state sectionals, which begins on Saturday, Feb. 1 at Hardin Valley Middle School. Both teams will be making their second consecutive trip to HVMS.

Farragut, which outlasted Gresham in Thursday afternoon's third-place game, will also make a second straight sectional appearance. The Lady Admirals, the tournament's third seed, edged the Lady Gladiators 40-33 to move on.

Golden Bears work overtime to secure a second straight trip to sectionals

By Ken Lay

It took a little overtime but Vine Middle School's boys basketball team earned its way into the state sectionals for the second consecutive year.

The Golden Bears overcame a late fourth-quarter deficit to notch a 51-44 victory over Cedar Bluff in the third-place game of the James A. Ivey Jr. Memorial Middle School Basketball Tournament Thursday night at South-Doyle Middle School.

Vine made it all the way to the sectional final last year before being eliminated by Powell, which finished third in the state tournament.

The Golden Bears, who trailed the Giants 42-39 with 1 minute, 17 seconds remaining in regulation after Jackson Clark buried a shot.

The Golden Bears, however, scored the final three points of regulation as Marco Allen made three out of four free throws down the stretch to help Vine pull even.

Allen, who finished the contest with 10 points, made a foul shot with 21 seconds left in regulation to help Vine pull to within 42-40. He added two more free throws with 13.7 seconds to go to send the game to overtime.

The Giants scored first in the extra three-minute frame and went up 44-42 with 2:11 remaining as Nic Hodge made a pair of free throws left.

After that, Cedar Bluff's offense went silent and the Golden Bears, who scored the final nine points of overtime, went ahead for good on a field goal by Quincy Pannell at the 1:54 mark of overtime.

Pannell finished with a game-high 20 points to lead a Vine team that only dressed six players. Cam Ward added 11 points despite being whistled for four fouls before halftime.

Golden Bears' first-year head coach Nick Marshall said that he was pleased with his squad's effort as it battled valiantly to overcome the two late deficits after squandering a 35-27 advantage that it held after the third stanza.

"This just speaks to the character and the toughness of our kids," Marshall said. "Our kids were tough and they fought hard in spite of the fact that we had only five or six players."

Clark led the Giants with 14 points while Hodge and Tyson Smith finished with seven points each.

Pannell and Lindsey made the all-tournament team for the Golden Bears while Hodge and Smith represented the Giants, who had a slim 20-18 lead at the half.

Warriors 'not done' after winning championship game

By Ken Lay

When the final buzzer sounded in the boys championship game of the James A. Ivey Jr. Memorial Basketball Tournament, it was Whittle Springs assistant coach Jadarius Suber who spoke first as the Warriors celebrated.

"We're not done," Suber exclaimed as Whittle Springs went to pick up the tournament championship after it routed West Valley 39-19 Thursday night at South-Doyle Middle School.

Once there was a time when the Warriors, who improved to 24-0 with their impressive victory over the Wolves, would've taken the tournament's gold ball and walked off the floor victorious for a final time together. But not anymore.

Last season, teams from the Knox County Middle School Conference were afforded the opportunity to play for the Tennessee Middle School Athletic Association State Championship.

Now the Warriors, the Wolves and Vine, which won Thursday night's third-place game over Cedar Bluff 51-44 in overtime, will have the chance to advance to the state sectional tournament.

That event opens on Saturday, Feb. 1 at Hardin Valley Middle School. The winner of that tournament will head to Murfreesboro for the state semifinals.

Whittle Springs, Vine (which reached the sectional final before being eliminated by Powell in 2019) and West Valley will have the chance to become the first KCMSBC team to win a state title. The Panthers finished third at state last year.

Whittle Springs coach Linwood Holloway led the traditional celebration and cut down the net at South-Doyle after the game.

But like Suber, he knows that the Warriors are far from finished with their work this season.

"This is about more than just the county. When the clock hits triple zeros at state, then, we'll be done," Holloway said. "When I took this program over, I had a four-year plan and that plan was to be standing where we are right now. They didn't win a game the year before I took over."

"But we're not done."

It took a little time for the Warriors to establish their offensive rhythm against the Wolves. Whittle Springs outscored West Valley 11-4 in each of the first two quarters Thursday night and held a big lead at halftime.

But the Warriors boasted a balanced scoring attack en route to earning the right to cut down a net.

Denaj Kimber scored a game-high 18 points and was named to the all-tournament team. His twin brother, Taj, scored 10 points and was named the tournament's Most Valuable Player. RaTyler Lee finished the game with eight points and was also an all-tournament selection.

"We all eat and we all eat good," Holloway said of his team's balanced attack.

For West Valley, Sam Tummins had six points while Kaleb Defendorf, Brett Holden and Drew Parrott each had four points. Parrott, Holden and Tummins were each named to the all-tournament team on a night when West Valley's offense all but deserted it.

Despite seeing his team struggle, Wolves' coach Noel Landrum couldn't complain about his squad's effort against the Warriors.

"I thought we played a good game," Landrum said. "We played great defense. That team is averaging 65 points per game and I don't think they've been held under 40 points at all this season."

"Offensively, we got good shots, but they just weren't falling. Sometimes, they just don't go down and honestly, I wouldn't be surprised if we see them again. We're pretty familiar with the teams in the sectionals. That's the thing about sectionals; you're not always familiar with your opponents. But we'll be familiar with these teams. We run some tricky defenses, and if you have time to scout us, you can prepare for them. If teams don't have time to scout us that gives us an advantage."

Lady Admirals edge Gresham to take third in middle school tourney

By Ken Lay

For the second consecutive year, the Farragut Middle School girls basketball team is headed to the sectional tournament.

The Lady Admirals punched their ticket to the tournament with a 40-33 victory over Gresham on Thursday afternoon in the James A. Ivey Jr. Memorial Middle School Basketball Tournament at South-Doyle Middle School.

Farragut ultimately picked up a win and notched its second consecutive third-place finish in Knox County, after winning two straight championships in 2017 and 2018, but the Lady Admirals struggled out of the gate, falling behind 9-2 early against the Lady Gladiators.

The Lady Admirals couldn't contain Gresham's Cadence Horner early as she scored her team's first nine points of the contest, which carried a sectional tournament bid for the winner.

But the Lady Admirals closed out the opening frame with an 11-0 run and opened a 13-9 lead by the end of the inaugural stanza.

Farragut's defense also silenced Horner after the first six minutes as she had one more basket, which came in the fourth quarter with the game's outcome no longer in doubt.

"We knew coming in that (Horner) was a great player," said first-year Farragut head coach Devan McIntyre. "We knew that she was their best player and we knew that we didn't want her to beat us."

The Lady Admirals, who finished third in the Knox County Middle School Basketball Conference and lost in the tournament semifinals to West Valley on Tuesday night, went through some struggles during the latter stages of the regular season and suffered a loss to rival Hardin Valley, overcame a slow start against the Lady Gladiators Thursday. But Farragut would find enough of a shooting touch to engineer a balanced scoring attack against the fourth-seeded Lady Gladiators.

"We're a team that plays at our best when we share the basketball," McIntyre said. "Ultimately, we have a chance to win a state championship and that's our goal."

Horner led all scorers with 11 points but the Lady Admirals did not have a single player post double figures in the scoring column. But they had eight players find their way into the scorebook.

Annie Priest led the way with nine points. Hannah Anderson and Sydney English added eight points each. Addison Pressley had six. Carly Vining had five. Madelyn Murphy, Kaitlyn Atwell and Malena Maier all scored for the Lady Admirals.

Anderson and Pressley made the all-tournament team for Farragut. Gresham had Cadence Horner and Scout Horner named to the squad.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS NOTEBOOK

Bailey Trumm is closing in on 3-point state record

By Steve Williams

Powell High 3-point shooting specialist Bailey Trumm could put her name in the TSSAA state record book Tuesday night at Oak Ridge.

The Lady Panthers' senior guard is just five treys away from tying the all-time career record of 390, currently held by Kendall Spray, who played at Wilson Central High from 2012-2016. Spray plays guard for Clemson University now.

Trumm, an Appalachian State University signee, made five 3-point shots in Powell's 76-45 win at Central Friday night to move into a tie for second place at 385 with Emily Sissom (Cannon County High, 2007-2011) and Gracie Maynard (Upperman High, 2013-17), confirmed Powell Coach John Fisher.

Bailey's younger sister, Reagan, a sophomore at Powell, actually led the Lady Panthers with six 3-point baskets in the win over Central. Coach Fisher's team poured in 18 from 3-point land overall in the game.

Tuesday's game at Oak Ridge also will match the top two girls' teams in District 3-AAA. Powell is in second place with a 7-1 district record and 15-2 worksheet overall.

If Bailey doesn't get

Powell High senior Bailey Trumm needs only six more 3-point baskets to break the TSSAA career record in girls basketball. Bailey and the Lady Panthers play at Oak Ridge Tuesday night.

the record Tuesday, she's almost certain to break the record in a Feb. 4 game at Clinton.

ON THE AIR: Whittle Springs' boys basketball team received some special air time on Falcon Radio 91.1 FM as its 39-19 championship win over West Valley was broadcast in the annual Knox County Middle School tournament Thursday night at South-Doyle Middle School.

"We had Corban Carver (Class of 2019, UT freshman), Tommy Sweat (FHS junior) and Jackson Powell (FHS junior) on the broadcast," said Russell Mayes of WKCS Radio and Fulton High teacher. "It was Whittle Springs' first ever Knox County Championship!"

SWIMMING: The annual Knox-area Interscholastic Swim League (KISL) meet was scheduled to be held this past Saturday at UT's Allan Jones Aquatic Center.

Annie Rimmer, a UT signee and Carter High senior, is again a one girl team for the Lady Hornets this year.

The KISL is the administrative body for high school swimming in the Knoxville region of TISCA, the Tennessee Interscholastic Swim Coaches Association.

KISL represents an eight county area, primarily surrounding Knox County and stretching to the Northern edge of Chattanooga.

The TISCA state meet will be held in Februar at UT.

BOWLING: Ben Whitaker of Bearden High was one of the three finalists for TSSAA Bowler of the Year, according to BHS Coach Jennifer Allen.

Whitaker had the top average in District 4 regular season action and qualified for the state tourney, which was held this past weekend in Smyrna.

The Lady Vols/ UConn Series Resumes A Shell of its Former Self

By Mark Nagi

Sequels rarely live up to the original.

For every Godfather II there are endless Cad-dyshack 2s.

That's the way I felt watching last Thursday night when the Lady Vols played UConn for the first time in over 13 years.

In 2007, Lady Vols head coach Pat Summitt surprisingly decided not to renew the annual series with UConn. That decision was not met kindly in Storrs, where combatable Huskies head coach Geno Auriemma predictably made his feelings known.

"Pat knows... So, she should just tell you why instead of saying, 'Geno knows.' I do know," Auriemma said the following year. "I already told you. She accused us of cheating at recruiting. She doesn't have the courage to say it publicly. So yeah, Geno does know. And I've said it."

Summitt never explained the reason behind her decision, but it involved UConn's recruitment of future star Maya Moore. This was not a decision Summitt took lightly. Remember that for decades, Summitt would bring the Lady Vols to all corners of the country, never ducking an opponent. Tennessee had beaten UConn in their previous three meetings, and the Lady Vols would bring back Candace Parker and most of the 2007 national championship squad for the 2008 matchup. It had to be something serious beyond the typical nefarious nature of recruiting teenagers.

The sport held its collective breath while watching all their 22 games (a series the Huskies led 13-9), and Summitt knew that her decision would send shockwaves throughout women's basketball. She took the blows repeatedly from Auriemma and always stayed above the fray. But this was her way of saying that enough was enough.

So, when Tennessee and Connecticut decided to set up a two-game series (the rematch to be played next season in Knoxville), I wondered what Summitt, who passed away on June 28, 2016, would think about it. Perhaps she would feel that enough time had passed, and she'd want to lock horns with Geno again. Maybe she'd believe that the fact that a portion of the proceeds would benefit the Pat Summitt Foundation and the Na-smith Memorial Basketball Hall of Fame made it a no brainer. But none of us can know for sure what she would have wanted.

I watched the game and the ESPN crew did its best to get viewers invested in the meeting between the third-ranked Huskies and 23rd ranked Lady Vols. They showed highlights from the classic games from 1995-2007. They played the sound-bites from Summitt and Auriemma. Summitt, as always, the calm, calculated, classy one and Auriemma the verbose, brash and cocky one. It was meant to be a celebration of the revival of the series.

But it just wasn't the same.

Tennessee led by three points at the half, but their youth showed up in the second half, in which they could only muster 14 points. The Lady Vols turned the ball over 27 times in the 60-45 loss. UConn remains one of the elite teams in the sport, but for much of the night they looked equally as inept.

I kept thinking that those Tennessee and UConn teams of the past would have destroyed today's teams. The Lady Vols are still a year or two away from competing for a trip to the Final 4, while UConn doesn't seem capable of making a serious run at their 12th national title.

Nothing lasts forever and we rarely appreciate the good times at the moment we are experiencing that kind of excellence. Nothing against Kellie Harper (who has done a very good job thus far in her first season as the Lady Vols head coach), but not having Summitt there made this feel like just another game.

It wasn't a sellout in Hartford and the crowd sounded quiet for much of the evening. Maybe that'll be different next season for the rematch in 2021.

Craney wants to build on the 'family' foundation season at Carson-Newman and then became a student assistant, helping Coach Mike Clowney with the squad's young linebackers.

Craney's defense at Central was strong. In the 2018 finals, the Bobcats stopped Henry County near the end of the game to preserve a 14-9 victory. This past season, Central shut out West 10-0 in the semifinals and stopped Summit 30-7 in the title game.

"Based upon the interview, we felt comfortable with Coach Craney's knowledge on both sides of the ball," said Lambert.

"The best way of hiring a coach is to know them," added Lambert. "And for six years, I've watched Nick Craney."

The Central AD figured Rosser would be leaving someday, because he was a highly successful and sought-after young coach.

"Nick Craney was going to be option No. 1," said Lambert. "Mr. Brown has been around a lot of football and he watched him. He earned the job."

Brown, in his first year as the CHS principal, said: "It was a great job and there were a lot of inquiries and interest in it and from a lot of very qualified coaches with great records as head coaches at other places.

"As Mr. Lambert said, the best interview in the world is an on-the-job interview and we've been able to see Coach Craney in action," continued Brown. "And our kids have played for him and they fought for him and they've been loved by him. And I think that's the biggest thing.

"When we talked to all of the coaches we talked to, he's the only one that knows this program well enough to know what it's built on and what the foundation is and what those key components are that keep it moving in the right direction.

"Like Coach Craney said, it's based on loving your brothers that you play next to and loving your community and loving your school and about thinking of others before thinking of yourself, and that acronym of Family.

"As he says, it's not nearly as much boards and four assists. McNew had nine rebounds and a stuff near the end.

Jarrett Kyle paced Austin-East with 15 points and nine boards but had five turnovers. Dixon tallied 12 points.

Carter went into Friday's home game against Union County in first place in District 3-AA with a one-game lead over the Patriots and increased it to two games with a 60-48 win.

Union County had handed the Hornets, now 17-4, their only loss in the district, winning 59-39 in Maynardville on Dec. 13. The Patriots, however, lost both of their district games against Gatlinburg-Pittman.

"In our district, nobody can relax," said Coach Beaty. "It seems like everybody is beating up on everybody. The tournament could be wide open. You just never know. It's a mess."

GROWING PAINS: Austin-East, which made it to the state tournament last year, is very young this season with six sophomores and a freshman on its roster, said Coach Marcus Stanton.

CARTER GIRLS: Coach Bo Lewis' Lady Hornets improved to 12-7 overall with a 62-38 win over Austin-East. Carter built a 34-12 halftime lead and coasted.

The 1-2 punch of Evie DePetro and Jordan Heifner led the way with 14 points each. DePetro also had a team-high seven steals, while Heifner, a Bryan College signee, also grabbed five rebounds.

Sydney Hurst contributed eight points, five steals and a team-high four assists. Carter also got six points and five steals from Emily Irwin. Zarria Clark pulled down a team-high nine rebounds. Harley Lewis had six boards.

Coach Lewis said playing "team basketball" and also pushing the floor to get more fast-break opportunities were the bright spots in the win.

A-E (1-7) was led by Kiki Watkins (12 points), Ragianna Muckelvene (10) and Trinity Turner (six). But the Lady Roadrunners committed 26 turnovers.

Carter went into Friday's game against Union County in second place in District 3-AA but lost 73-63 to drop into a tie for third place with a 4-3 mark. Northview Academy (7-1, 20-2) sits atop the district standings. Carter will get another shot at the Lady Cougars at home this Friday.

Old South High renovation in progress

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Old South High School's transformation to South High Senior Living is progressing nicely! The conversion of the old school, which was built in 1937 and closed following the graduation of the class of 1976, is quickly transforming into the vision of Dover Signature Properties.

Dover Signature Properties is developing a new Assisted Living and Memory Care community to be managed by Integral Senior Living when completed in April 2020. The project is estimated at $12.2 million to restore and renovate the 42,000-square foot building.

Helen Porter, executive director of South Knox High Senior Living, toured the renovations last week and is excited about the progress. She is a certified dementia practitioner and an Alzheimer's disease and dementia care trainer. Porter said that this will be one of the most beautiful senior living communities in Knoxville and said she is thrilled for South Knoxville natives to have a place to call home. Thirty-four apartments will be devoted to assisted living residents and 24 will be devoted to memory care residents. Individuals age 62 years and older may qualify for care in the community.

South High Senior Living will offer a "vibrant way of life" with elevated dining, exercise classes, a full-time nurse and care staff, transportation services, shopping, church services, and much more.

"The Great Room will have the dining room and a piano lounge," she said, adding "I get kind of giddy every time I walk into that gymnasium wondering what it will look like." After peering into other rooms she wondered about the history of the former school.

"I love thinking about the history of the basketball games played or the students who were taught in each room," she said. "I am thrilled to have the opportunity to manage a

I'm not crazy about gift cards at Christmastime. I like pretty wrapped gifts with pretty bows. However, I love gift cards from Barnes & Noble. I can go there and spurge and buy books from my favorite authors, e.g. James Patterson. I have a lot of his books and enjoyed them all. But I got one that I was so disappointed in main character is Stephanie Plum, who is a bond enforcement agent. She goes after people who don't show up for their court dates and she gets into some impossible escapades while doing her job. Her life is hectic with two boyfriends and erratic family members. All of her books contain some laughter.

One of my favorite writers is Maeve Binchy, a remarkable, gifted writer from Ireland. She passed away a few years ago and I thought I read all of her books, but I was fortunate enough to find one I hadn't read. She was an Irish writer best known for her sympathetic and often humorous portrayal of small-town life in Ireland, her descriptive characters, her interest in human nature and her often clever surprise endings. One of her books, "Circle of Friends" was made into a movie.

On a cold, wintry day, sit in your favorite chair and read a book by Nicholas Sparks. It will put you in a comfy, nostalgic mood and will probably produce some tears. I recently read "Every Breath" by him, and I was not able to put it down, just kept reading. He wrote many other books and eleven of them have been made into movies. Remember, "The Notebook," "A Walk to Remember," "Message in a Bottle," and "See Me?" All of these written by this great writer.

Last, but not least, one of my favorite writers, John Grisham, who is the master of legal fiction, has done it again, with his newest book, "The Guardian". You will sit on pins and needles reading this thriller. But, don't read it alone!

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

WHEREAS, by Construction Deed of Trust recorded in the Register's Office for Knox County, Tennessee, as Instrument No. 201902080047061, on February 8, 2019, Sharon

Evans a/k/a Sharon L. Evans conveyed to Joseph G. Coker, Trustee, the hereinafter described real property, to secure the payment of one Promissory Note dated January 29, 2019 in the amount of Two Hundred Six Thousand Nine Hundred Fifty Six Dollars and NO/100 ($206,956.00) to Community Trust Bank, Inc., all as fully set forth in said Deed of Trust and Promissory Note; and;

WHEREAS, the indebtedness secured by the above referenced Deed of Trust is further secured by an Assignment of Rents from Sharon Evans a/k/a Sharon K. Evans to Community Trust Bank, Inc., dated January 29, 2019 and recorded as Instrument #201902080047062 in the Register's Office for Knox County, Tennessee on February 8, 2019; and

WHEREAS, this Deed of Trust was modified by a Modification of Deed of Trust dated September 16, 2019 and recorded as Instrument #201909200020122 in the Register's Office for Knox County, Tennessee on September 20, 2019 increasing the amount of indebtedness to Two Hundred Thirty Seven Thousand Nine Hundred Seventy Four Dollars and Twenty Three Cents ($237,974.23); and

WHEREAS, default has been made in the payment of the above referenced indebtedness, and other provisions of the Deed of Trust and Modification of Deed of Trust have been violated, and the legal holder of the Promissory Note secured by the said Deed of Trust and Modification of Deed of Trust has declared the entire amount due and payable as provided in said Deed of Trust and Modification of Deed of Trust, and the undersigned, as Trustee, has been directed to foreclose the aforesaid Deed of Trust and Modification of Deed of Trust in accordance with the terms thereof, and the public is hereby notified that the undersigned Trustee will sell the hereinafter described real estate at public auction, to the highest and best bidder, for cash in hand, on the north side of the Knoxville City County Building at 400 Main Street, Knoxville, Tennessee, at 12:00 Noon on Tuesday, February 11, 2020, said property to be sold in bar of the equity of redemption.

Subject lands are set forth as follows:

Situated in District No. Seven (7) of Knox County, Tennessee, and within the 38th Ward of the City of Knoxville, Tennessee, and being known and designated as Lot No. 69, Replat of Stafford Park, Unit 3 and Resubdivision of Lots 29 and 30 Subdivision, as shown by plat of same of record as Instrument No. 200903060055520, formerly Instrument No. 200704190085331 in the Register's Office for Knox County, Tennessee, to which plat reference is hereby made for a more particular description.

For further reference see Instrument #201902080047060 in the Register's Office for Knox County, Tennessee.

Records in the Property Assessor's Office for Knox County, Tennessee, identify the above property as follows: 057KH-017.

Subject property is known as 625 Lampwick Lane, Knoxville, Tennessee 37912.

This sale will be free from the equitable right of redemption under the laws of the State of Tennessee, homestead, dower and other exemptions, the same having been waived in said Deed of Trust and Modification of Deed of Trust and will be subject to all unpaid taxes and subject to any easements and restrictions or prior liens or mortgages of record, if any. If the highest bidder is unable to comply with the terms of the sale, I reserve the right to proceed to the next highest bidder able to comply or to re-advertise if I so choose. The right is reserved to adjourn the day of sale to another date and time certain without further publication upon announcement at the time set above. The holder of the Promissory Note shall have the right to bid at said sale.

To the best of the Trustee's knowledge, information, and belief, there are no Federal or State tax lien claimants or other claimants upon the subject property which would require notice pursuant to the terms and provisions of T.C.A. § 35-5-104 or T.C.A. § 67-1-1433 or 26 U.S.C. § 7425.

Snowflake Ball 2020

The 12th Annual Snowflake Ball will be held Saturday, February 8, 2020, at Rothchild Conference Center (8807 Kingston Pike, Knoxville, TN 37923).

Swing and sway to the smooth sounds of The Ensemble Swingtime Band. Enjoy a catered dinner, dancing, silent auction, cash bar, and free photography to capture the magic of this special evening. All proceeds benefit the Senior Companion Program.

Tickets are $60. Purchase a table of eight with guaranteed seating together for $500. Tickets can be purchased online at <https://secure.donationpay.org/knoxseniors/ball.php>

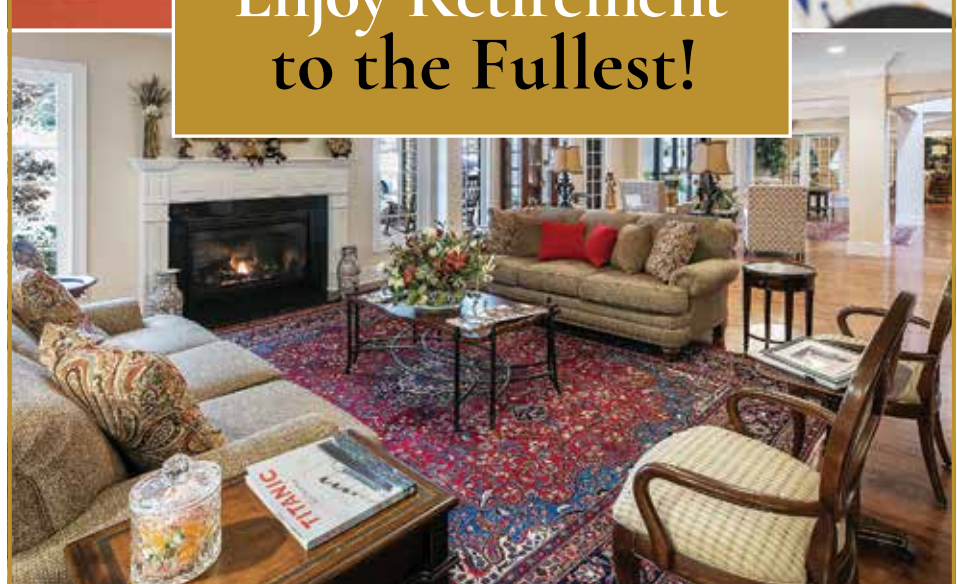

The purpose of the Senior Companion

Program is to help senior adults. It provides stipended volunteer community service opportunities for low-income people age 55 and older. These volunteers in turn provide support services to older persons who have unmet physical, mental, or social needs. Senior Companions serve the homebound elderly who need daily attention and assistance with small tasks such as preparing meals, visiting the doctor, or shopping. They provide friendship and support and enable those they serve to maintain their independence and improve the quality of their later years.

To learn more about the program, visit knoxseniors.org.

Enjoy Retirement to the Fullest!

Moving to a Parkview Senior Living community means being able to do all the things you currently do, and then some.

One thing is for sure, you'll never be bored!

Any claims which may exist against the Corporation should be mailed to Neely Produce, Inc., 1545 Western Ave., STE 200, Knoxville, TN 37921. Attn: Jim Prose. Each claim should include the name of the claimant, the description and basis of the claim, the amount of the claim, any documentation regarding the claim, the date upon which the claim arose, the interest obligation, if any, and an address to which a response may be sent by the Corporation. Note that a claim against the Corporation will be barred unless a proceeding to enforce the claim is commenced within two (2) years after the publication of this notice.

Triumphant Quartet coming to Lenoir City

New Destiny Productions is pleased to announce that the Dove Award-winning Triumphant Quartet is coming to First Baptist Church of Lenoir City on Saturday February 1, 2020, for its annual Gospel Winter Fest.

Russ Woolard, president of New Destiny Productions says that Tenor David Sutton, Lead Clayton Inman, Baritone Scotty Inman and Bass Eric Bennett are deeply committed to musical excellence yet have a greater desire to impact the hearts of those listening to their music. Refreshing humor, inspiring songs, and encouraging words are embedded in every concert. This quartet, collectively and individually, has been acknowledged as one of the finest in the business having received many awards over the years, including Favorite Bass singer, Song of the Year, Album of the Year, Quartet of the Year, Male Group of the Year, and now a Dove Award for Best Album entitled "Yes." Although the group is grateful for the recognition of their work, their aspiration is for all honor and glory to be God's alone.

The concert begins at 3 p.m. and doors open at 2 p.m. Tickets range from $14 to $22. Children 14 and under are free in General Admission and Balcony seating. Tickets can be purchased locally and online.

Further information on the Triumphant Quartet Gospel Winter Fest concert can be found on the New Destiny Productions Facebook page or at www.newdestinyproductions.com.

The Triumphant Quartet will perform February 1, 2020, at 3 p.m. at First Baptist Church, Lenoir City, TN.

Old South High renovation in progress production of Dover Signature Properties. Rick Dover does a phenomenal job in creating the most spectacular creations that modernizes and protects the story of the building.

"I'm excited to hear more of the memories, there's lots of memories in these walls," Potter said. She said she had attended a meeting of the South Knox Alliance and was surprised by the number of favorable comments and questions about the project.

"We're going to display a wall of photos and memorabilia, much like Rick does in his other historic projects. I know Rick has collected some items," she said.

Following the visit to the school Porter walked up to the Knox County Education Museum next door and was astonished at the memorabilia that the volunteer museum has collected, especially the South High items.

Volunteer Horace Grissom greeted her and explained the collection of annuals, photos, and other items there. Porter looked through the huge collection and focused on the South High items.

Grissom said that if the museum has extra South Knox High School items they might share them with the senior living facility. Porter was delighted with the possibility. He guided her through part of the collection showing her books on every school. The museum volunteers go through local newspapers and clip stories for the collection, updating the history every week.

He encouraged Porter to meet with Benna Van Vurren who founded the education museum and continues to direct it.

South High Senior Living is located at 835 Tipton Avenue. You can contact Helen Porter at (865) 338-3060 or email her at SouthHighEd@isllc.com.
