Schoonmaker elected to serve on TCSA Board of Directors

Tom Schoonmaker
A former member of the Tennessee Council on State Administration (TCSA) Board of Directors, Tom Schoonmaker has been elected to serve on the board for a second term. Schoonmaker, who has served on the board since 2010, was re-elected by the board members at a meeting in Nashville on Oct. 22. Schoonmaker is currently the executive director of the Tennessee State Office of Information Technology. He has also served as the executive director of the Tennessee State Office of Information Technology and as the executive director of the Tennessee State Office of Information Technology.

The TCSA Board of Directors is the governing body of the Tennessee Council on State Administration. The board is composed of members from various state agencies and is responsible for overseeing the council's operations and providing recommendations to the Governor. Schoonmaker's re-election demonstrates the confidence of his colleagues in his leadership and expertise in state administration.

Schoonmaker has a long history of public service and has held several key positions in the state government. He has been instrumental in improving the efficiency and effectiveness of state operations and has worked to enhance the transparency and accountability of the government. His experience and leadership skills make him a valuable member of the TCSA Board of Directors.

The TCSA Board of Directors will meet again in Nashville on Nov. 19. Schoonmaker will continue to work closely with the board and the Governor's office to advance the state's interests and improve the quality of government service to the people of Tennessee.

City to budget body cameras for police patrols

The City of Knoxville is set to purchase body-worn cameras for its police officers. The cameras will be used to record interactions between officers and the public, providing a clear and objective record of events. This initiative is part of the city's broader efforts to increase transparency and accountability in law enforcement. The cameras will be used by patrol officers and will be subject to strict privacy and data protection policies.
