Schoonmaker elected to serve on TCSA Board of Directors

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Knox County Commissioner John Schoonmaker is an accomplished man. As a marketing and business professional with more than 40 years of experience, Schoonmaker has also been very active in local government. He was appointed to fill Dr. Richard Briggs' term as 5th District County Commissioner when Briggs was elected to the state Senate in 2015.

"I was extremely honored to get the opportunity to represent the 5th District," Schoonmaker said.

Before his time on commission, Schoonmaker was appointed to the Board of Zoning and Appeals and served three years each as chairman and vice chairman. "I have 24 years of experience navigating the ins and outs of Knox County Government," Schoonmaker told The Focus, adding, "I served 12 years as president of the not-for-profit organization, the Council of West Knox County Homeowners, whose mission is to positively influence the development of West Knox County."

Schoonmaker was elected in 2016 to serve his first full term as the 5th District County Commissioner. He currently chairs the Knox County Commission's Finance Committee as well as the Legislative Affairs Committee. As Legislative Chairman, he regularly keeps fellow commissioners informed on what happens in state government. He also serves on the Audit and County Investment Committees and works closely with the Town of Farragut on joint issues such as the purchase and renovation of the new West Knox County Senior Center.

Utilizing his business acumen and governmental experience, Schoonmaker crafted the language and garnered support to file a bill with the Tennessee Legislature that will collectively save Knox County, the Town of Farragut, and the City of Knoxville over $1 million each year.

Always interested in government relations, Schoonmaker was recently chosen as the first Knox County Commissioner in 20 years to serve on the Board of Directors of the Tennessee County Services Association. As a board member of TCSA, Schoonmaker not only represents Knox County but 510 other county commissioners within 33 counties in East Tennessee. The TCSA is an umbrella group of three associations: the Association of County Mayors, the Tennessee County Commissioners Association and the Tennessee County Highway Officials Association. TCSA works to secure and preserve state funds and provide information to county officials on legislation impacting counties.

Judge Harold Wimberly

By Ray Hill

One of the worst things about getting older is losing people. A week ago last Friday, Harold Wimberly, Jr., passed away. I had known and been friends with Harold for decades. It doesn't seem that long ago that Steve Hunley, publisher of The Knoxville Focus, and I met at the Roundup restaurant in South Knoxville to have lunch with Harold. I brought along a blackberry cobbler made from scratch by my friend Margie Ogan and nobody anywhere makes better cobbler than Margie. The food was simple, the cobbler delicious and the conversation warm. It is a memory I will keep for the rest of my life.

Harold Wimberly enjoyed a remarkable judicial career and few remember that his father had been quite involved in local politics. His father, Harold Wimberly, Sr., a prosperous lawyer, served as Chairman of the Knox County Democratic Party at one time and was a member of the Tennessee Democratic State Executive Committee. Mr. Wimberly was a strong supporter of Senator Kenneth D. McKellar. My interest in Senator McKellar and Harold Wimberly, Sr. created a bond between Judge Wimberly and me that we both enjoyed. Not long before he passed away, Judge Wimberly emailed me a photograph of Gay Street in 1915. There was a banner hanging across the street and Harold wondered if I had any idea what the banner said. I replied I thought it said "Elect K. D. McKellar United States Senator." Harold had the photograph blown up and sure enough if that isn't exactly what the banner read.

Having served on the bench for forty years, it wasn't unusual for Harold to have his name before the public. One of the first mentions of Harold Wimberly, Jr. was in the April 11, 1956 edition of the Knoxville News-Sentinel. The article features a picture of a somber-looking thirteen year-old student from Tyson Junior High (named for the late U. S. senator Lawrence D. Tyson) who had won the spelling bee. That thirteen year-old was Harold Wimberly, Jr. Harold became the spelling champion in 21 rounds and "spelled down 10 other boys and 19 girls." It was Harold's first spelling bee and anybody who knew Harold wouldn't have been surprised. Harold Wimberly, Jr. had a first-rate intellect and was a thoughtful man. Quite often one had to pay close attention lest one missed some especially dry bon mot tossed off by Judge Wimberly.

Harold Wimberly next graced the pages of the Knoxville News-Sentinel as a member of the University of

City to budget body cameras for police patrols

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Beginning with the new fiscal year this July the City of Knoxville hopes to equip city police patrol officers with body cameras. Mayor Indya Kincannon said Tuesday she is committed to the project and will seek $1.7 million in the new budget for the first year and about $600,000 for each year afterwards.

Kincannon told the city council meeting that the funds will go for equipment and management of the system and that bids are now being accepted for the cameras. She said the body cameras will add accountability for both officers and the public.

"It is not going to solve all our problems but I think it is a step in the right direction," the mayor said.

Police Chief Eve Thomas presented the council with a report on the test period for the cameras and two video examples.

In the report Thomas said the department, prior to the testing, focused on policy and procedure: how cameras will work, and how to best train officers on their use. Technical service personnel, who will be responsible for storage, retrieval and disseminating the data, were also discussed.

She reported the body worn cameras offer the potential benefit of better transparency and the ability to provide another view of officer-citizen contacts. The cameras may make for more efficient resolution of citizen complaints and lawsuits. Evidence could be used in criminal arrests and prosecution and even offer training opportunities for real life situations.

The first year's cost would cover the hire of an additional Audio Video Technician with a salary of about $48,000, and equipment including 400 body cameras, data storage, mounts, cables and batteries, routers, antenna and data plans for 350 patrol cars. The $1.7 million will also go to a digital management application, And software for door triggers and computer aided dispatch integration.

The city is looking for five-year contracts for the cameras and equipment.

State law requires that camera video images be confidential when involving minors, and the interiors of some facilities and private homes in the absence of a criminal offense.

Different Types of Judges, II

When we think about appearing in or going to court in the US, and specifically in Tennessee, we typically think about appearing before a judge. However, there are a wide range of actual titles given to the individuals who may

By Jeddiah McKeenan
attorneyknoxville@gmail.com

and purposes, he is serving as a quasi-judge on those types of cases.

SPECIAL MASTER – A special master is typically an attorney who is asked to serve as a judge for the limited purpose of hearing a specific case. Again, using Knox County as an example, the court that hears Orders of Protections will occasionally use Special Masters to hear Order of Protection cases simply to assist with the sheer volume of Order of Protection cases waiting to be heard by the court.

ARBITRATOR – An arbitrator is an attorney who is asked to serve as a judge for the limited purpose of hearing a specific case that has been removed from the legal system and sent to an agreed upon arbitration. An arbitration is not an official court proceeding, but a proceeding that is similar to a trial and the decision of the arbitrator is binding on the parties.

Although this list is probably not exhaustive, here are some of the different judges you might find yourself in front of.

MAGISTRATE – A magistrate on the state level is not an elected position, but a position to which someone is hired. For example, in Knox County, there are a number of juvenile court magistrates. They are hired by the elected juvenile judge to hear various types of cases. They serve at the juvenile judge's pleasure, but they make their own decisions and rulings on cases and those decisions are enforceable. If someone appeals a magistrate's decision, the first appeal would go to the juvenile judge.

JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER – A judicial commissioner does not normally preside over hearings but instead reviews warrants by law enforcement and decides whether to sign them. They may also set bond amounts for individuals when they come in to custody.

CLERK AND MASTER – Again, using Knox County as an example, the Clerk and Master in Knox County hears probate matters and essentially makes decisions on those cases. Now, his decisions must be approved by the chancellor to whom that case is assigned, but for all intents

Etters vs. Knox County may resume in March

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

The Chancery Court class-action lawsuit against Knox County may be set to continue in early March and Knox County Pension and Retirement Board Attorney John Owings brought that news to the pension board meeting last week.

Speaking at the board's meeting Owings said his request to intervene in the case on behalf of the pension board has been approved. He made the request at a past board meeting telling them that, while the pension board isn't mentioned in the Etters vs. Knox County suit, he should represent them in the matter.

The Etters suit was filed by 12 citizens who charge the mayor and county with violating the charter and the wishes of Knox County voters and is a result of last year's suit against the pension board by Knox County Law Director Richard (Bud)

Armstrong. The law director charged the board with overpaying sheriff department retirees by including unpaid vacation days in their monthly pension payments. He said that was a violation of the county charter because voters had set the retirement at 75% of the monthly salaries. Some retiring employees are now drawing 85% or more.

Armstrong's suit came under fire from the Knox County Mayor, who took the issue to the Knox County Commission and Armstrong was forced to drop his involvement. The mayor then hired an outside attorney to represent the county.

In other meeting news, Owings told the pension board that should the board of education decide not to move to the TVA Towers there is a chance the board could relocate there under the "Plan B" announced by Mayor Glenn Jacobs.

Easement of TVA Tower approved

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Although most people thought the Knox County Commission would have a close split vote on the question of approving an agreement between the county and TVA for a 15-year easement agreement to use the TVA East Tower when it finally came to a vote last week, the commissioners unanimously voted to approve the agreement.

Despite Mayor Glenn Jacobs telling the commissioner that the law director still has some issues with the agreement and with the school board yet to vote on moving from the Andrew Johnson Building, the commissioners voted "Yes" to the agreement.

Commissioner Evelyn Gill noted the resolution was amended prior to the meeting. Commissioner John Schoonmaker asked Knox County Law Director Richard (Bud) Armstrong about the agreement. Armstrong said he spoke with UT President Randy Boyd, who was present at the commission meeting, and that he "no longer has a concern."

"We're still working on some clarity and still negotiating," Armstrong said.

One of the outstanding issues, Armstrong

Commissioner Justin Biggs showed up for the Tower agreement vote despite being ill. Commissioner Michele Carringer, who was also ill, came for the meeting.

said, was that TVA wants the county to indemnify itself for possible loss or damage in the buildings. He said the county cannot, by laws, indemnify itself.

He added that the county has until September on the overall agreement.

Commissioner Charles Busler said he was concerned about the $30 to $40 million it will take to acquire and renovate the building.

"We're going to give up our sovereignty," he said.

He also lamented county taxpayer moneys going to the federal government rather than remaining local. He suggested using the money within the school system.

Finance Director Chris Caldwell detailed the cost to acquire the TVA Tower, Summer Place and Parking Garage, saying the cost savings would be $400,000 each year.

Commissioner Brad Anders said the easement agreement is "a great thing" and added that he realized some commissioners didn't support the deal.

Commissioner Richard Beeler, a hold out in supporting the agreement, made a passionate statement saying he has given the agreement much thought and prayer.

"The Lord does not takes sides," he said, then added he still has concerns about moving the school board and the $6 million being offered for the Andrew Johnson Building. He then said he sees a "physical savings for the county" and said he was supporting the easement agreement.

With Beeler's support it was apparent the TVA Tower agreement was going to pass and, in a roll call vote, every commissioner voted for approval. The matter now goes to the school board for a decision. Several commissioners told The Focus prior to the meeting they were opposed to the deal but Beeler's remarks apparently swayed them.

Jacobs has indicated that should the school board reject the move and the Andrew Johnson Building is not sold then the county moves to "Plan B" which would relocate county offices from the City-County Building and other locations around Knoxville to the Towers. The county leases space in the current building and other county-owned buildings may be sold.

Publisher's Position

Harold Wimberly, Jr.

By Steve Hunley, Publisher
publisher@knoxfocus.com

Harold Wimberly, Jr. was a truly unique man, a treasured friend to those lucky enough to have earned his friendship. Harold Wimberly was a jurist who occupied a bench in Knox County for forty years. That alone is quite a feat yet there was so much more to Harold Wimberly, Jr. I always enjoyed seeing Harold at Litton's, a place where we both enjoyed a great meal. I cherished those occasions when he would ask me to join him and his party for lunch. I will readily confess

I was in awe of Judge Wimberly's intellect, but as Ray Hill wrote in this edition of The Focus, there was no artifice about Harold Wimberly. Despite possessing a towering intellect, Harold put on no airs nor did he think he was better than anybody else. A brilliant photographer who relished every opportunity to travel and see the country and the world firsthand, Harold Wimberly was a man of many talents and abilities.

Like many public officials who stay for quite some time, Harold Wimberly knew both victory and defeat. Judge Wimberly was as gracious in defeat as he was modest in victory. Knox County will be lucky to have another judge of Harold Wimberly's quality and caliber. Judge Wimberly's ability and personality transcended mere politics and party. Harold Wimberly made a difference and gave of himself to serve the people of Knox County. When an election defeat came in 2014, it was not because Harold Wimberly had failed the people or made a terrible mistake. The electorate didn't for a moment consider his ability, judicial temperament, or his honesty and integrity. Defeat came because voters chose to elect someone of the majority party in Knox County. Harold Wimberly's defeat hurt, I am sure, but in the long run, I imagine the people being deprived of his thoughtfulness and respect and love for the law were the worse for it. I was proud to know Judge Harold Wimberly and we all ought to stop for a moment to say a little prayer of thanks for his life and service to our community. Harold Wimberly was a wonderful person and will be missed by all who knew him.

Residents win against 210 dwelling units on Beverly Road

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Residents along Tazewell Pike, Beverly Road and Greenway Drive had a victory last week in fighting another attempt to develop a hill along Beverly. The narrow road connects Tazewell Pike with Greenway and many residents were concerned about flooding, congestion and traffic there. Developer Randy Guignard and Cafe International LLC had approval from Knox Planning for development of 210 dwelling units. The planners said the proposed housing development was consistent with the North City Sector Plan and met Planned Residential Zoning requirements. But residents showed up in force to successfully oppose the development. When the developer's request for a delay on the vote failed, his attorney, John King, stated, "This is not fair." King cited the cost of the effort, the attorney fees, and the effort put into the matter. He then withdrew the request and the opponents applauded.

Want to vote on impeachment?

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Would you like to cast your own vote in an impeachment trial? No, not that impeachment trial but the Senate trial of President Andrew Johnson. It's one of the things you can do at the Andrew Johnson National Historic Site in Greeneville, Tennessee. The site includes two of his homes there, one of his tailor shops, a replica of his birth home in North Carolina and his grave site high atop a knoll overlooking the city. The complex is open seven days a week except for major holidays and you'll come away knowing something you never knew about the 17th U. S. President. Each person entering the visitor center on College Street is given a replica of the impeachment ticket and encouraged to drop a Yes or No in the box. Surprisingly, although the No votes obviously outnumber the Yes, there are a sizable number of Yes votes. The current impeachment trial of President Donald Trump is only the third in our national history. Presidents Andrew Johnson and Bill

Clinton both stood trial in the Senate and both were acquitted. President Richard M. Nixon resigned as the U.S. House began impeachment hearings. Andrew Johnson's fate was determined by Kansas Republican Edmund Gibson Ross, whose single vote not to impeach acquitted Abe Lincoln's successor. The Senate trial required a 2/3 majority to convict and fell one vote short when Ross voted. Senator Ross later won re-election, changed his party to Democrat, and was defeated. Years later President Grover Cleveland, the first Democrat to win the highest office since the Civil War, named Ross governor of the New Mexico Territory. Andrew Johnson left office, returned home to Greeneville, and was elected to the U. S. Senate, the only former president to serve in that body. Of his return to the Senate, Johnson said, "Thank God for the vindication" and noted he'd rather hear of his Senate election than be president. The Andrew Johnson National Historic Site is operated by the

Old Sevier neighbors surprised by postponement

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

What a disappointment it must have been for the dozens of people who attended the Knoxville City Council meeting Tuesday night only to find out their objection to a proposed 230-unit residential development in their neighborhood would be postponed until next month.

The Old Sevier Community Group had urged a large turnout and the homeowners who attended each wore a green tie to show their unity. Prior to the council meeting Keith Vestal Jones wrote to the city saying the Board of Zoning Appeals granted variance approved a "big box" design that is inappropriate for the neighborhood.

"The big box design will be nothing more than a four story wall that extends for blocks," he wrote, adding, "The development walls off the park effectively."

"Please support our request to save the South Waterfront by upholding the Vision Plan and overturning the variances," he asked.

The development would consist of 230 multi-family units in 10 buildings and two small commercial spaces and, according to the BZA application, "will create a contemporary identity for the South Knoxville Waterfront."

Some residents charge the development, proposed to sit between Waterfront Drive and Langford Drive, violates the City Code and the Vision Plan.

While an attorney was planned to speak for the residents, who turned out in force, the objections were not to be heard yet. One of the objections is that the four-story development would block off many homes from the waterfront view. Another objection is that the Dominion Group has no "hardship" and is not being denied appropriate use of the property there.

Councilwoman Stephanie Welch, who represents the area but is leaving her seat soon to become part of Mayor Indya Kincannon's administration, moved to postpone any council decision on the appeal for four weeks. She also recognized that "there are many people here tonight" who came with interest in the matter.

Councilwoman Seema Singh, who was absent from the meeting, chimed in with an email to the opponents, noting, "There are many aspects of this development that I feel uncomfortable about. I think there are more conversations and compromises that should take place before a decision is made." The postponement passed 8-0. The area neighbors abruptly left the meeting.

They turned out by the dozens wearing green ties to protests a proposed "big box" residential development in their area. The Old Sevier Neighbors were prepared to present their questions but learned when the Knoxville Council meeting began that the 230 multi-family development would be postponed for four weeks.

Obviously the residents in the area will continue to push for overturning the BZA decision to grant variances to the project development.

Tennessee's team, which appeared on CBS's "College Bowl" program. Anne Dempster, Harold Wimberly, Jr., David Rubin, and Joe Gorman comprised the four members of the team. Wimberly was described as "a quiet, studious young man." With a 3.94 grade average, it hardly surprised me to read Harold's was the highest GPA of the four team members. Harold won notice from "College Bowl" viewers for answering questions before host Allen Ludden could complete reading the question. Dr. Isabel Tipton, the UT coach of the team, drily noted Harold's "competitive spirit." Dr. Tipton approvingly thought Harold's competitive spirit "has kept the whole team fired up with it."

Dr. Tipton made the observation she thought being on the UT scholastic team had made a real impression on all the team members, but believed "the influence is perhaps most apparent in Harold." It was Dr. Tipton's opinion that Harold "has grown up and blossomed out." Dr. Tipton also made another observation that is shared by virtually every friend Judge Wimberly ever had in his life. "For example," Dr. Tipton said, "he has always had a perfectly delightful sense of humor, but his quiet nature sometimes hides it."

Isabel Tipton made a comment that forecast a political future for Harold Wimberly, Jr. "His television image is so attractive," Dr. Tipton said. "The College Bowl producers received a letter from a Tennessean saying that when U-T's stay on the show was over, he wanted to run Harold for governor."

It should not surprise anyone when the Knoxville News-Sentinel announced the top students in its May 26, 1963 edition. "Harold Wimberly, Liberal Arts major with a 3.96 out of a 4-point average for four years, heads the list of top candidates," the Sentinel trumpeted.

The rough and tumble of Tennessee's electoral politics wasn't quite Harold's forte. Serving as a judge gave Harold Wimberly, Jr. the best of all worlds; he was able to participate in politics, which quenched his competitive spirit and serve on the bench which satiated his intellectual mind.

Harold Wimberly, Jr. hadn't been out of law school for ten years before he was elected to serve as judge of the Knox County General Sessions Court. Harold always ran as a Democrat and was astonishingly popular with most folks as he seemed like someone who could have sat on the bench in an episode of the "Andy Griffith Show" dispensing homespun common sense in equal measure to the letter of the law. Although he was inherently a shy man, Harold Wimberly, Jr. was a friendly man and always ready to make yet another friend and he numbered as many Republicans amongst his friends as he did Democrats. Back in those days, the African-American wards could turn out a heavy vote, augmented by the naturally Democratic nature of the City of Knoxville. For a Democrat to win county-wide, he or she had to cut into the normally Republican vote in the county precincts, which Harold managed to do for forty years. Harold did lose one high profile race for Chancellor in 1986 to Sharon Bell, who remained in office for the next twenty years.

Harold was appointed to a vacancy on the Circuit Court bench by Governor Ned McWherter and remained there until he lost to William Ailor in 2014 in the maelstrom of a Republican tidal wave no Democrat could have survived.

Harold Wimberly made quite the impression in an all too often loud and noisy world in his own quiet and unassuming way. I once read somewhere that when a young person dies, it is like a candle being blown out; when an older person dies, it is like a library burning down. That is certainly true of Harold Wimberly, Jr.'s passing.

Despite having been born into a locally prominent family, there wasn't an elitist bone in Harold Wimberly's body. Perhaps that is why he followed his father into the party of Andrew Jackson and Franklin Roosevelt. Harold Wimberly was my friend and I will miss him. So will a lot of other folks and that may well be the highest testament to a life well lived.

Three sets of twins served as Knoxville firemen

By Mike Steely
 Senior Writer
 steelym@knoxfocus.com

The Knoxville City Fire Department dates back as early as 1822 and in 1854 a volunteer department formed. In 1885 that volunteer group became the City Fire Department. Over the years the department has had many members and, oddly, has had three sets of identical twins.

A recent news article noted that Justin and Dustin Chambers entered the department in 2018 and noted one other set of twins, the Lewis brothers.

Jack Lewis told The Focus that he and his twin, Joe, served in the fire department at the same time. The Lewis brothers were the sons of Jack E. and Jessie Cogdill Lewis. Joe retired from the fire department and passed away at age 76 after 32 years as a firefighter. He's buried in the East Tennessee Veterans Cemetery.

Jack served from 1961 until his retirement in 1992. Proud of his and his brother's service Jack Lewis was curious about other twins who had served. He found an earlier set of twins who were city firemen and Lewis wanted to share that information with Focus readers.

Vaughn and Vernon E. Popejoy joined the fire department in 1948. Vernon, known as "Pop," retired in 1981 and Vaughn, who was the assistant chief, retired in 1988. Vaughn died in 2002 and Vernon in 2015. Both are buried in the Lynnhurst Cemetery.

The Popejoy twins were the son and grandsons of men who had also been Knoxville firemen and their brother, Scott, also had served and was killed in an accident while returning from a fire. The Popejoy family had served in the department since 1911. Both Vaughn and Vernon had served during World War II.

How your one vote counts

Ever get frustrated with politics to a point when you decide not to vote?

This is a very political year for the nation, the state, and the county. Early voting in the county primary starts February 12 and runs through February 25 with the primary election set for March 3. Primary voters will decide on the Republican and Democrat nominees who will go on to the August 6 general election.

What are the primary matchups this time? In the races for commission seats, only District 1 has two Democrats facing off; the winner will be on the ballot against an Independent later in the year. The District 4 and 5 races each have two Republicans facing off to run against a Democrat in August.

There's also two Republican Assessor of Property candidates and two Republican candidates for Knox County Law Director. The non-partisan races for the Knox County Board of Education has three contests with two or three candidates.

The primary race for Public Defender also has two Republican candidates.

All together there are thirty candidates on the ballot for 14 offices and campaigns are already underway.

So why should you bother to vote?

There are several incidents when offices have been decided by one vote. There's also an incident in recent local elections where there was a tie.

In 2017 former state representative Harry Tindell and community activist Amelia Parker tied for second place in a primary to face Lauren Rider for the 4th District city council seat. The city council chose Tindell as the candidate and he went on to lose to Rider. Parker returned two years later to capture the At Large Seat C on the council.

In the last election for Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs defeated Brad Anders by only a couple dozen votes in the primary.

The power of one vote is a historic footnote in Tennessee history. Representative Harry Burn changed his mind, thanks to pleas from his mother, and voted to ratify the Women's Right to Vote 100 years ago. His single vote saw the Constitutional Amendment pass in the Volunteer State and, in doing so, ratified the amendment nationwide.

President Andrew Johnson was saved from being ousted as U. S. President by one vote. His trial saw Senator Edmond Gibson Ross, a Kansas Republican vote "No" and Johnson served out his term.

So, does our vote count? One thing is certain, if you don't vote your opinion will not be counted.

Maple Vaden and Catarina Diego Sebastian

Christenberry applauds Spelling Champs!

By Debbie M. Woods

Christenberry Elementary School had its annual Spelling Bee competition on January 22. Top spellers in grades 3, 4 and 5 battled it out spelling challenging words until there were only two students remaining on the stage. At that point, we knew that one of them would be our 2020 Spelling Champion and the other would be the 2020 Runner-Up.

Catarina Diego Sebastian, a fourth grader in Ms. Lonergan's class, is now our 2020 Spelling Bee Champion. I sat down with Catarina and she shared with me that with the help of her mother, she studied a lot. She worked really hard at learning to spell some very difficult words. In the audience, she had her mom and two cousins cheering her on.

Catarina's favorite subject in school is social studies. She has a dog named Elsa (from the movie Frozen) and her favorite meal is chicken tenders and fries from Chick-Fil-A. Catarina shared with me that during this spelling bee she was really nervous but I assured her no one could tell behind her beautiful smile. Her huge trophy is currently on display in the living room of her home.

Maple Vaden, a third grader in Mrs. Seaton's class, is the runner-up in the 2020 Spelling Bee. In the interview, Maple shared that she had to do most of the studying by herself because her parents were working. Her favorite subjects are science and social studies. She has two cats. Maple's favorite meal is salmon prepared by her step-father. In her spare time she watches cooking shows - her favorite is Master Chef Junior. Maple also admitted that as the contestants on the stage were eliminated and the group became smaller, the more nervous she got. I think we would all do that. Her beautiful trophy is on display on a bookshelf at her house.

We are very proud of these two students!

District Four Candidates Answer Focus Questions

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Early voting for seven Knox County Commission seats is less than a month away. On February 12 voters begin going to the polls to select seven new commissioners, a public defender, law director, property assessor, and four school board members. That primary election will end on March 3 when nominees from both political parties will be chosen.

Since The Focus has asked questions of District 4 candidates we now turn to District 4, which has Scott Broyles facing Kyle Ward for the Republican primary nomination. Democrat Todd Frommeyer will face the winner in August. The winner will replace Commission Chairman Hugh Nystrom who has chosen not to seek reelection. We asked the candidates the following questions and here are the replies.

What's the largest problem in your district?

Broyles: The condition of basic infrastructure such as roads, sewer, etc. is a major challenge for many locations in the 4th District as our community continues to grow, but the need is perhaps most critical in and around the areas of Northshore Dr., Kingston Pike and around Lakeshore Park.

Ward: Accessibility and communication will be one of my top priorities as 4th District county commissioner. The concerns I hear most when talking with voters in the 4th District at their door are the importance of upgrading infrastructure, particularly maintaining our roads and improving traffic flows, enhancing the quality of our schools, and keeping taxes low.

Frommeyer: The single biggest problem in District 4 specifically and West

Knoxville in general is how commercial and residential development has affected the area and how to make sure that future development takes into account things like traffic, flood prone areas, and schools. Climate change is the biggest issue we face in the country and in the world. We've seen the effects of climate change here in Knox County because of the severe flooding we've experienced and could expect to see even more frequently in the future. Any future development should take account of this fact.

One of the best examples of development without forethought is the traffic problems that exist around Northshore Elementary School. Anyone with elementary school age children knows how traffic around schools gets backed up at drop off and pick up times. There was a failure in planning either to place the school there in the first place or to account for the traffic issues and make adjustments accordingly. I would use my voice and my vote on the commission to try to alleviate problems like this that already exist and to help prevent new problems from occurring.

Should the law director be elected or appointed? Please explain

Broyles: The law director should be appointed. I believe the mayor should have the freedom to pick an attorney that he or she believes can best serve in the role of law director.

Ward: Any citizen when dealing with legal issues has the freedom to choose their own attorney, and I don't see why the county board and mayor's office should be any different. As previously stated, from talking with many voters at their door, I have not had any citizens in the 4th

District bring up this issue.

Frommeyer: It appears that the Knox County Charter Review Committee may be looking in 2020 at whether to make Knox County's Law Director a position appointed by the mayor. Currently, under the Knox County Charter, the law director is elected by Knox County voters. If the law director becomes an appointed position, then he or she loses some independence to offer unvarnished legal advice to county officials and loses the accountability and connection he or she would otherwise have in being selected by the voters of Knox County.

If I am fortunate enough to be elected by the Knox County voters as District 4 commissioner, I would oppose (and vote accordingly) any attempt to make the law director an appointed position. I hold the same opinion for attempts to change any other position in Knox County government from being elected to appointed by the mayor.

What type of business or industry is needed in your District?

Broyles: The 4th District is home to a fantastic array of businesses. Large and small as well as local and nationwide organizations call the 4th District home. However, there is one sector that is of unique concern. The population of Knox County is growing and there has been significant increases in the population of senior adults. Over the past decade, the number of those aged 90-94 has increased more than 30% and the population of those aged 95 and older increased over 25%. To fulfill our obligation as a community, we should continue to look for ways to care for and serve all of our residents, especially our senior citizens.

Ward: As someone who

Scott Broyles

Kyle Ward

owns a small business serving over 2,500 families every week and has employees, it is important that Knox County welcomes businesses and does not create obstacles to job growth. My district would welcome good paying jobs from a wide range of businesses. In particular, I have heard from residents who would like more restaurant options in the area.

Frommeyer: The 4th District is very fortunate to have a wide variety of successful companies, businesses, stores and restaurants located within its borders. As commissioner, I want to do everything I can to support the very vibrant business community that exists within the district and to encourage policies that allow for continued responsible commercial development. I see two challenges that the commission should take into consideration.

First, with the closing of the Knoxville Center Mall in January 2020, the West Town Mall becomes the only mall-type shopping center in Knoxville/Knox County. This could lead to increased pressures on the neighborhoods surrounding the mall, especially with regard to traffic. Likewise, heavier traffic might deter shoppers from wanting to go to the mall for fear of having to fight traffic.

In addition, I have seen many small businesses come and go in certain areas in the 4th District and in West Knoxville. Part of that is just market forces and there's nothing we can really do about that. But traffic and residential development also affect where businesses can be based and, ultimately, be successful. I think we can help these businesses thrive if we pursue smart and responsible policies for development in Knox County, taking into account how the residential and commercial sectors impact one another.

Make a statement about Knoxville Center Mall and its possible use by county government.

Broyles: I do not believe that county government should be relocated to Knoxville Center Mall. I am not in favor of removing the mall from the tax rolls and would not support the creation of a larger government footprint. Instead, the competitive market should be allowed to dictate its future use. That said, I support the initiation of an agreement between the City of Knoxville and Knox County to conduct a transportation study of the area near the mall and help identify the potential highest and best use for the structures.

Ward: I think leaving the mall in the hands of the private sector may produce the most value to our community at this point in time, if we need a trade or technical school in the future, the mall could be a good location. I'm open to considering ideas that will be the best use of the mall for Knox County residents.

Frommeyer: The Knoxville Center Mall is scheduled to close January 31, 2020. The Knox County Commission has discussed options of what to do with the property, including leaving it to the private sector to deal with and having Knox County purchase the property outright and moving county government offices to the location after suitable renovation. The commission eventually agreed to fund a study of the highest and best use of the area and how the government can assist in its redevelopment.

I agree with the decision of the commission to fund a study. Moving county government offices to the Knoxville Center Mall area would adversely affect the ability of the residents in the western part of the county to access their county government. In addition, a proposal to purchase and renovate the property is very expensive and not an effective use of taxpayer dollars. At the same time, the county government might be able to play an effective part in helping make sure that the Knoxville Center Mall property becomes a vibrant commercial center for East Knoxville. I think the study that the commission approved is an effective use of taxpayer money to that end and will pay off exponentially in the long run.

How do you feel about Historic Zoned neighborhoods?

Broyles: Keeping the character of older neighborhoods must be balanced with allowing homeowners with the freedoms provided by virtue of individual ownership. Any requirements must be well defined, implemented fairly and kept to a minimum.

Ward: Older neighborhoods have character to them, and they need to be maintained within reason. However, we need to make sure we are crafting our zoning laws in a common-sense manner that balances preserving our heritage and expanding our future.

Frommeyer: I don't believe there are any neighborhoods in District 4 which are under consideration for Historic or Neighborhood Conservation zoning overlay. However, I believe that any decision about imposing such an overlay on a neighborhood should be done in a way that takes into account the concerns that residents would be driven out by rising property values or expensive home repairs.

How do you feel about greenways in the county?

Broyles: Greenways are a great community asset. The associated cost of each must be considered and balanced alongside other priorities, such as the condition of more basic infrastructure.

Ward: My wife and I enjoy the greenways like most Knoxville residents, and I think they are a great part of what improves Knoxville's quality of life.

Frommeyer: An expanded and connected greenway system in Knox County could improve the quality of life for Knox County residents. Such a system can provide alternative routes of transportation for some and an opportunity for exercise and fun in the outdoors for others. Improving our existing, mostly disconnected greenway system could be a draw for people to come visit and/or live in Knox County.

I attended the commission meeting when the Knox County Greenway Corridor Study was presented and have reviewed the full study as well. The commission voted to adopt the study and I agree with that vote. I am very much in favor of any expansion and improvement of the greenways in Knox County along the lines of what was presented in the study.

I also think that the question of greenways is connected to the idea of improving walkability in the county in general. The commission is set to vote on a proposed change to an ordinance that will result in easing the requirements on developers to build sidewalks in new developments. I am concerned that this is another example (in addition to the TVA Tower deal) of the Jacobs administration siding with developers at the expense of the residents of Knox County. I would vote against the proposed change.

From the Old West to the Nuclear Age Carl Hayden of Arizona

Pages from the Past

By Ray Hill
rayhill865@gmail.com

Long before Robert C. Byrd of West Virginia, Carl Hayden of Arizona was known as the longest-serving member of Congress. Hayden had first been elected to Congress when Arizona had first been admitted to the United States as a state in 1912. Hayden was later elected to the United States Senate and retired January 3, 1969.

Despite his long Congressional service, Hayden was little known outside of Arizona. Unlike his colleague Henry Fountain Ashurst, Hayden was not known for flights of oratory or speech-making. In fact, Hayden was oftentimes derided as "Silent Carl" for his refusal to speak on the floor of the Senate. Yet, Carl Hayden became one of the most influential senators of his time, especially on those issues that affected his home-state of Arizona. President John F. Kennedy, himself a former senator, pointed out every major issue of importance to the American West, reclamation, power, highways, and irrigation, had been molded in some way by Senator Carl Hayden.

The future senator was born October 2, 1877 in Hayden's Ferry, Arizona. Arizona was still a territory when Hayden was born and Hayden's Ferry would become part of Tempe. Hayden's parents, Charles Trumbull and Sallie Hayden, were enterprising people and operated numerous businesses, including a grist mill and general store. Charles Trumbull Hayden was also the Probate Judge for the community and active in Democratic Party politics.

Following the death of his father, Carl Hayden sold off some of the family interests to settle debts and moved the family to California so that his sisters could get an education. Carl Hayden's return to Arizona brought him political success, as he won a seat on the Tempe City Council and later served as the county treasurer. Hayden decided to run for Sheriff, as the office allowed the incumbent to keep a portion of those fees he was able to collect. Hayden enjoyed enormous popularity as the Sheriff of Maricopa County and when he ran for Congress in 1911 as Arizona attained statehood, he managed to defeat two better-known candidates for the Democratic nomination. Hayden came to Congress just after Tennessee's Kenneth D. McKellar and the two would enjoy a long association in Congress and the United States Senate.

As Carl Hayden began his Congressional service, he began the practices he would follow for the rest of his long career. Hayden worked hard on behalf of his constituents and concentrated on doing things for Arizona and her people. Despite his relative silence and low profile in the Capitol, Hayden was a shrewd and effective politician and kept a close eye on possible competitors. Hayden rarely faced serious opposition in his Congressional campaigns and it was during his time in Congress that he led the fight in a dispute that would run for fifty years between Arizona and other western states, especially California, over water rights from the Colorado River.

Congressman Hayden was successful in frustrating the efforts of the California Congressional delegation from securing the water rights of the Colorado River, which helped when he challenged Republican Senator Ralph Cameron for reelection in 1926. Hayden defeated Cameron and began his long career in the U. S. Senate. As a member of the Senate, Carl Hayden continued to protect Arizona's interests, which served him well when former Senator Ralph Cameron was making another of his frequent bids to return to the United States Senate in 1932.

Still, Hayden's popularity dipped and he only won renomination over several challengers by a plurality of the vote. Senator Hayden himself candidly admitted he very likely could have lost had he only faced a single opponent in the Democratic primary.

Senator Hayden did not underestimate Ralph Cameron's ability as a vote-getter and noted Cameron was strongly for paying veteran's a bonus he thought the treasury could ill afford in the midst of the Depression. Hayden beat back Cameron's challenge rather easily and it would be many years before he again faced another serious opponent in an election.

Hayden was persistent in his efforts to bring more water to the arid Arizona desert throughout his senatorial career and with his reelection in 1938 and 1944, he climbed the Senate's seniority ladder. Hayden was just behind Tennessee's Kenneth McKellar in seniority on the Appropriations Committee, which gave him great influence. During McKellar's sick spells, Hayden would preside over the Appropriations Committee.

Hayden was reelected in 1950 and with McKellar's defeat in 1952, he became the most senior Democrat on the Appropriations Committee, although he had to wait until 1955 to become the Chairman due to the Republicans having won control of the Senate in 1953. Carl Hayden would remain Chairman of the Senate's Appropriations Committee until his retirement in 1969.

Senator Hayden was easily reelected in 1956 to his sixth term in the United States Senate. In 1962 at age eighty-six, Hayden would face a serious challenge from Republican Evan Meachem, who would later be elected governor of Arizona. Like many other aged incumbents, Hayden was not as physically active as he had once been, limiting his ability to campaign. President Kennedy came to Arizona to attend a gala fundraising dinner for the elderly senator and much of Hayden's campaign was directed by aides who utilized all modern means to bolster the senator's reelection bid.

Hayden's Congressional service had lasted so long many of his constituents hadn't even been born when he was first elected to office. The nature of Arizona politics had been subtly changing through the last decade. Arizona had been a solidly Democratic state for many years, but 1950 saw the election of Republican Howard Pyle as governor. In 1952, Pyle was reelected and a young Republican named Barry Goldwater managed to upset Senator Ernest McFarland, who was the sitting Majority Leader of the U.S. Senate.

McFarland, stung by his defeat for reelection to the Senate, ran against Governor Pyle and beat him in 1954. McFarland was reelected in 1956 and set out to reclaim his seat in the Senate in 1958. Despite being the incumbent, Barry Goldwater was considered the underdog in that campaign and Ernest McFarland confidently expected to once again serve in the United States Senate. 1958 was a very bad year for Republicans all across the country and despite the popularity of President Dwight Eisenhower, the country was experiencing a recession, which badly hurt the candidacies of GOP incumbents. Once again, Barry Goldwater defied the odds and beat Ernest McFarland. When Senator Carl Hayden sought reelection to a then unprecedented seventh term in 1962, he was facing a revitalized Republican Party and an electorate more sophisticated and independent than ever before.

Hayden was somewhat embarrassed during that year when he and Missouri Congressman Clarence Cannon, Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, got into a spat over turf. Hayden and Cannon were in a fierce row over where the members of the Senate and House Appropriations Committee members would meet in conference to bring out bills for a vote by the full House and Senate. Naturally, each wanted the committee meetings held in his specific domain.

With both Hayden and Cannon well into their eighties, to most it seemed like a silly fight over territory to most voters. The feud between Hayden and Cannon escalated until unapproved appropriations bills had accumulated to the point of forcing a shut down of government services.

Senator Hayden spent the final part of the campaign in Bethesda Naval Hospital where he was suffering from a viral infection. His condition was so serious it prompted a rumor in Arizona that he had died. The rumor reached the point where it was necessary for Hayden to hold a press conference at the naval hospital, allowing the eighty-six year old senator to show he was still very much alive.

Hayden's excellent constituent service and his many accomplishments in Congress helped him to win one last term, albeit it by a much closer margin than many had expected.

It was during his last term of office that Carl Hayden achieved what was likely his crowning success as Arizona's senator. The United States Supreme Court issued a decision that favored Arizona in the continuing fight over water rights in 1963. Senator Hayden quickly reintroduced yet another bill promoting the Central Arizona Project, which had been a focal point of Hayden's last reelection campaign. Hayden's considerable influence helped the bill to pass the Senate, but it stalled in the House where the California Congressional delegation fought it relentlessly.

California's opposition to Hayden's bill finally diminished once Governor Edmund G. "Pat" Brown said the state should not try and win through legislation what it could not attain through the courts. Even once that hurdle had been jumped, Colorado Congressman Wayne Aspinall, Chairman of the House Interior Committee, proved to be just as formidable an obstacle. Aspinall refused to allow the bill to be heard in his committee, but Carl Hayden proved to be a wily adversary.

Chairman Aspinall returned home to Colorado for an ill-timed vacation and Senator Hayden took advantage of Aspinall's absence. Hayden added his Central Arizona Project to an appropriations bill as an amendment, which forced Aspinall to hold hearings. The bill was finally signed into law by President Lyndon B. Johnson on September 30, 1968.

Senator Carl Hayden noted he had worked on the bill for decades and considered it his greatest success during his time in Congress. It was a fitting capstone to what was then the longest Congressional career in the history of the United States. Hayden was also retiring that year at age ninety-two. His retirement made way for Barry Goldwater's return to the United States Senate.

Hayden had hoped to see his longtime Administrative Assistant Roy Elson take his place, but Elson lost to Goldwater who remained highly popular in Arizona. Hayden returned home to Tempe and occupied an office inside the library at the University of Arizona named for his father, Charles Trumbull Hayden.

Hayden spent the years remaining to him researching the lives of Arizona pioneers, as well as compiling a biography of his father. Carl Hayden's health finally began to deteriorate and he died on January 25, 1972.

Carl Hayden's life was inextricably intertwined with that of Arizona and he was lamented by the state's political elite, including Senator Barry Goldwater who liked and admired the old senator.

Hayden's legacy was honored by Arizona and there are any number of things named for the late senator, including a high school. Carl Hayden's record for length of service was broken only by that of West Virginia Senator Robert Byrd in 2009.

Raising Awareness for Cystic Fibrosis One Star at a Time

By Amy Box Fellhoelter

Although Cystic Fibrosis (CF) is a commonly known disease to most – having approximately 1,000 people diagnosed annually in our country – unfortunately, a cure has yet to be found. CF is a chronic, progressive genetic disease that affects primarily the lungs and pancreas. Thanks to the inception of the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation (CFF) which was formed in 1955 by a group of concerned parents of CF children, enormous advancements of understanding and treating the disease have occurred. In the 1950s, the CF population rarely lived long enough to attend elementary school but today, more than half of those with the disease are age 18 and older. This life expectancy increase means that patients born in America between 2013 and 2017 can expect to live into their mid-40s as stated by the 2017 CFF Patient Registry Data.

CFF is a nonprofit, donor-supported organization that is dedicated to finding a cure and improving the quality of life for CF patients through research, new therapies and treatments, and drug development.

“I have this incredible opportunity to raise awareness, to get out there, to share the story, and really encourage people in their own way give back to CF, whether that is financially, getting involved, or sharing education ... help comes in many different ways,” said Anna Cramer, owner of EXIT Real Estate Professionals Network and one of Knoxville's Rising Stars chosen by the foundation.

Since another component of CFF is education and awareness, Cramer and eight other young professionals were chosen to competitively raise funds because they show the vision, commitment, and means to inspire others to support those families with children or young adults living with CF. To date, the nine stars have raised a total of $60,000 dollars. The 2020 Top Rising Star will be announced at the foundation's Gala at The Press Room on Feb. 8th and tickets for the event are still available.

This will be the 6th class of Rising Stars and over $475,000 was raised at last year's event.

Cramer attended a CFF educational night in the fall and explained, “Sitting there, I realized how lucky I was because both of my children are healthy. It was very emotional for me. It was that night I made a commitment to really push 1000 percent forward.”

Although she doesn't personally know a CF family, her heart has pushed her to support CF families like the Allison family. Krista Allison has shed tears and experienced miracles on her nineteen-year journey with her daughter who was diagnosed at the age of nine months.

“I think the hardest thing for a CF patient is it is never done. There is not an off day. Every day they have to take medicine, do treatments, wear the vest. They can do everything right, every day, but there is not an off day,” said Krista Allison as she explained the long-term difficulties her daughter has endured.

When new CF drugs enter the marketplace but are too expensive for families to afford, like Trikafta™ which can cost more than $300,000 a year for some patients, the Gala is vital to ensuring those with CF can afford to live healthy lives.

Whoo! January's Over!

Winter's longest month has already ended! It is the block of time that puts us on track to face the upcoming year after the long-awaited holiday season celebrating Christmas and New Year's.

By Ralphine Major
ralphine3@yahoo.com

January marks the birthday of Elvis Presley, though it is hard to even imagine that the popular singer would have turned 85! Basketball brings excitement to winter months. The annual “We Back Pat” week was held recently celebrating the life and legacy of legendary Coach Pat Summit while raising awareness and funds for her Alzheimer's foundation. January 2020 has brought few snow flurries, and the bitter cold earlier in the month has given way too much milder temperatures. Before January 31 arrived though, the flu and virus season hit hard causing a long list of East Tennessee schools to close for several days. With extended time off from school, many families may have found themselves cooking a pot of chili to add warmth and spice to January's wintry days. Enjoy the rest of winter! Be safe; be healthy; be happy!

Rosie's
World

This and That

I made a gaffe in last week's article titled “Good Books”. The very first book I wrote about, “The Fall of Crazy House,” wasn't a good book at all, but I wanted to mention it because it was written by one of my favorite authors, James Patterson. I wanted to mention him because he's such a prolific writer and I usually enjoy all of his books. As I've also mentioned, some people will like it, but I just couldn't get into it.

One of the worst things in the world--no, let me rephrase that, it is the worst thing in the world, is fire. So many acres have been burned in 2019, and the latest one was in beautiful Australia. Thank God, it was fairly controlled by the time the Australian Tennis tournament began. There were two or three tennis courts closed, however, many people had to wear masks outside to keep from breathing the sooty air. Even when matches were played inside, some players could hardly breathe. Roger Federer was one of them. Thankfully, the second week of the tournament was much better.

On January 4th of this new year, iguanas fell from trees in Florida because it was so cold. The thought made me shiver. Turtles and iguanas fell to the ground and appeared dead, but they might not be. They climb up trees to roost at night. When the temps fall down, they literally shut down and can no longer hold on to the trees, so they fall. I have read that an iguana can be tamed and will lay back to be petted. Ugh! Who would want to pet an iguana? I'll take a cat any day. I didn't know about the turtles and I never heard of iguanas until I saw the movie years ago, “The Day of the Iguana” with Ava Gardner and Richard Burton. Well, to each his own, I guess.

Thought for the day: In the depths of winter. I finally learned that within me there lay an invincible summer! Albert Camus.

Powell holds off Oak Ridge after Trumm ties record

By Steve Williams

Powell High's Bailey Trumm was closing in on a TSSAA state record for career 3-point baskets Tuesday night at Oak Ridge, but that wasn't her No. 1 objective.

It was winning the game and tying the Lady Wildcats for the top seed in District 3-AAA, and for that to happen, free throws became bigger than 3-pointers in the final quarter.

Trumm tied the record and gave the Lady Panthers a 13-point lead with her fifth trey in the first minute after intermission. But she wouldn't make another one on Jill Prudden Court the rest of the night and Powell had to withstand a furious Oak Ridge rally in the game's final minute to notch a 57-54 victory.

"I wasn't worried about that (the record) tonight," said Trumm. "That's going to come. The biggest thing was just beating Oak Ridge and getting tied for that No. 1 seed because we need that and that's more important than any record."

Bailey's younger sister, Reagan, a sophomore, hit both ends of a 1-and-1 to give Powell a 10-point lead (55-45) with 1:05 on the clock.

Khamari Mitchell-Skeen drilled a 3-point shot from the left of the circle to cut the deficit to seven, Powell turned the ball over and Bri Dunbar hit a trey at the top of the circle to make it a four-point game (55-51) with still 32 seconds remaining.

The Lady Panthers broke OR's full-court press and Reagan Trumm made two huge free throws to push the lead back to six 57-51.

Dunbar, however, struck again, this time a good eight feet behind the circle, to pull the Lady Wildcats within three.

Powell put the ball in play and called a timeout with 12.6 seconds to go. When play resumed, the Lady Panthers committed a throw-in violation, giving Oak Ridge one more chance. But Mitchell-Skeen's 3-point attempt was off the mark.

With the win, Powell (8-1, 16-2) is now tied in first place with Oak Ridge (10-1, 21-4) in the loss column in the district.

Bailey Trumm complimented her sister Reagan's free throw shooting down the stretch.

"She was clutch. We practice free throws a lot. She didn't get nervous, she didn't feel the pressure. She just knocked them down and we wouldn't have won the game, if she didn't make them."

Reagan and Bailey finished with 22 and 19 points, respectively, and each made five 3-pointers. The Lady Panthers made a dozen treys in all, with Savanna Parker and Hayden Dye adding one each.

Reagan also was 7 for 8 at the free throw line and Parker 2 for 2.

Dunbar led Oak Ridge with 21 points. The Lady Wildcats made seven 3-pointers and 11 of 18 foul shots.

"We hadn't beaten Oak Ridge in a long time. We're excited to win. Continued on page 2

Powell's Bailey Trumm ties the TSSAA career state record with this 3-point shot early in the second half at Oak Ridge Jan. 21. Trumm made 5 of 13 from 3-point range in the Lady Panthers' 57-54 win to give her 390 treys. She attempted only one more 3-pointer after her tying shot and none in the fourth quarter as Powell protected its lead. The Appy State signee should easily break the record at Clinton Tuesday night.

West High's Drew Francis picks MTSU

By Mark Nagi

Asked to describe the past couple of months, West linebacker Drew Francis said simply, "It was definitely stressful."

Back in July 2019, Francis verbally committed to Arkansas, turning down offers from Purdue and Memphis, among others. But in November, head coach Chad Morris was fired, and Francis's world was turned upside down.

"I got super close with (then Arkansas Defensive Coordinator) Chavis and Morris," Francis said. "I was attached to them, and once they left it was kinda like, 'Oh no what am I gonna do.'"

Arkansas would hire Georgia offensive line coach Sam Pittman as their new head coach. As it turned out, Fayetteville would not be the place for Francis.

"There was a lot of waiting," said Francis. "When I first de-committed from Arkansas, nothing was going on and I was a little bit worried that I might not be able to play football somewhere."

After the Early Signing Period was completed in mid-December, things changed. "Finally, it started picking up again and it was a little overwhelming on where I should go visit. I am really happy MTSU was one of those places."

If the Francis name sounds familiar, it should. Drew is the son of former Tennessee quarterback Jeff Francis, who assisted as needed in the recruiting process. "He told me that it is my choice, and that he could help, but at the end of day it would be my choice."

Irish run past Greeneville on the hardwood, 84-45

By Ken Lay

Longtime Knoxville Catholic High School boys basketball coach Mike Hutchens couldn't hide his excitement after his Irish routed Greeneville 84-45 Thursday night at home.

"We're playing really good basketball and we're about to be a force to be reckoned with," said Hutchens, who has been Catholic's head coach for more than three decades. "We're playing well right now and we just beat a really good basketball team tonight and we're fixing to be good.

"They've beaten Maryville and Kingsport Dobyns-Bennett."

The Greene Devils (16-5) have beaten the Indians twice this season and they came to Knoxville with thoughts of upsetting the Irish (17-4). And the contest was tight early as Catholic led just 20-15 at the end of the first quarter.

But the second stanza was a different story as Catholic erupted for 30 points. The defense also stiffened for the Irish as they surrendered just 10 points in the frame and opened a 50-25 lead by halftime.

"We were just impressive," Hutchens said. "We just wore them down and we got a good win over a great basketball team."

"We've played a tough schedule and the schedule we've played is starting to pay dividends for us and tonight, we finally got to play a home game. This was only our seventh home game of the season, but now, we're getting ready to play five at home in a row."

Once the Irish started clicking, the scoring became contagious and Catholic made baskets from all over the floor.

Senior Akeem Odusipe scored a game-high 27 points and proved to be a handful for the Greene Devils, particularly early. He scored 19 before halftime. Handje Tamba, a sophomore and another imposing post presence, scored 12 points, including 10 after halftime.

Guard Sam Sompayrac, who missed some time due to injury, is now back and he scored 11 points and knocked down a pair of 3-pointers. B.J. Edwards had 10 points while Blue Cain and Presley Patterson finished with nine points each.

"Pick your poison," Hutchens said. "Everybody's playing well and it's great to have a guy like Sam back. "He's playing well coming off the bench right now."

Reid Satterfield led the Greene Devils with 14 points.

Webb 'survives' Lions' comeback bid, 67-57

By Steve Williams

Webb School's boys basketball team came out on top 67-57 over The King's Academy Jan. 21, but Coach Ricky Norris said the key to the win was "surviving."

On the other end of the final score, TKA Coach Matt Mercer said he was "encouraged."

The host Spartans jumped out to a 22-10 lead after the first eight minutes, but it wasn't smooth sailing the rest of the way.

TKA battled back and got within three points.

The comeback spurred Mercer to say he would "love" to see his Lions playing Webb in the upcoming championship game of the Division II District 1 Class A tournament.

The win stretched Webb's win streak to nine games and improved the league leading Spartans to 18-5 overall and 7-0 in the district.

The King's Academy, which has lost four times by two points this season and once by three to mighty Catholic, improved to 5-6 in the district and 10-12 overall. But the fifth-place Lions haven't lost their confidence and still expect to be seriously heard from before season's end.

In defeat, senior guard Zack Tilley poured in 34 points. He's been known to score more than that in 32 minutes.

Aingar William, TKA's 7-foot junior center from Africa, scored 10 points, collected 10 rebounds and played defense from side to side, and was especially a distracter around the rim. Senior Nemanja Kovacevic chipped in nine points.

Webb was balanced in scoring. Uriah Powers scored 14, Luke Burnett 13, David Sanger 12 and Tariq Daughton 11.

"We weren't very consistent with our play tonight on either end of the floor," said Coach Norris. "I think some of it has to do with King's. They are a talented bunch and the big kid inside can make it really hard to get baskets at the rim."

The Lions may have spotted a bull's-eye on the backs of the Spartans.

"On any level, even in the pros, everybody's concern is complacency," said Norris. "Complacency can cause you to lose your edge quickly. We're trying to guard against that. But as hard as you try to guard against it, it still sometimes creeps in. I think that was part of it, but I also think part of it was that King's played well."

"They got some confidence at the end of the first half. We let our guard down. We had it at 18 and they cut it to 10. We had a chance to put the game away a little bit in the first half and didn't do that."

TKA cut the deficit to three in the second half and Webb's Burnett and Powers were sitting on the bench, having fouled out.

"The positive to that was I thought we had some guys in different roles at the end to close the game," said Norris. "Jaylon Green, I thought, controlled the game there at the end. Joseph Moore came in and gave us some good minutes. We were able to find a way."

Webb was clinging to a 57-53 lead with an even four minutes left on the clock. A huge 3-point shot from the right of the circle by the Spartans' Lukas Walls made it a seven-point advantage at 3:44.

Tilley drove for a basket to trim the deficit to 61-55, but TKA would get no closer in the final minute.

Mercer liked what he saw for "three quarters" of the contest.

"I thought Tilley played fantastic, getting to the basket and making it tough on the defense. I thought our press gave them a lot of trouble. The half-court traps caused turnovers against really good guards.

"If we can get William to finish a little better, I think this game is going to be different next time. So we're excited about just finishing well ... I'd love to see them in the district tournament championship game here in a couple of weeks."

LADY LIONS RALLY

Trailing by 10 points at halftime, the The King's Academy girls outscored a young Webb team 30-13 in the second half for a 44-37 win.

Sophomore guard Jennifer Sullivan paced TKA with 20 points. Freshman Maddie Ladd (12) and sophomore Sheelove Knowles (10) led the Lady Spartans (4-3, 6-13).

The first-place Lady Lions added a 74-22 win over Concord Christian School Thursday night to improve to 11-1 in Division II District 1 and 17-6 overall.

Lady Irish fall to Greeneville, 62-38

By Ken Lay

Knoxville Catholic High School's girls basketball team has made great strides this season and the Lady Irish have one of the area's most improved coaches under second-year coach Freeman Pinkney.

Catholic struggled mightily Thursday night and despite putting up a valiant effort at home, the Lady Irish came up on the short end of a 62-38 decision against Greeneville.

The Lady Devils have had their struggles this season as their 12-12 record would indicate. But Thursday night, Greeneville had little trouble with Catholic (11-11).

The Lady Devils got off to a fast start, but the Lady Irish hung tough and were only down 26-17 at the end of the first quarter.

But in the end, Greeneville just had too much firepower. The Lady Devils blew things open and held Catholic scoreless for nearly five minutes in the second stanza.

The Lady Irish finally found their way back on the scoreboard when Jazmin Williams converted a free throw with 3 minutes, 17 seconds remaining until halftime. Her foul shot

Ridge in a lot of years," said Powell Coach John Fisher. "We've competed and showed signs that we could compete, but never have gotten over the hump and been able to knock them off.

"We played them a couple of weeks ago on TV (55-48 loss) and I left with a bad feeling. They outworked us and we didn't compete like we need to compete.

"I thought tonight our bunch was dialed in and were mentally strong and played great defensively. All the keys that we said we had to do to win, we did it."

Powell teammates react on the sidelines as Bailey Trumm ties the TSSAA state record for career 3-pointers, particularly Cassie Sakhleh, who flashes the "3" sign. Photo by Luther Simmons.

THE RECORD: Bailey Trumm is now tied with Kendall Spray with 390 career 3-pointers. Spray played at Wilson Central High (2012-16) and is now a guard at Clemson University.

Bailey, an Appalachian State signee, should easily break the record Tuesday night at Clinton.

POWELL BOYS: The Panthers fell 92-54 to Oak Ridge, which is ranked among the state's Top 10. Freshman Bryce Burkhardt (12 points) and Lance Davis (11) led Powell (5-6, 9-14), while Jonathan Milloway scored 19 for the Riders (11-0, 17-3).

Bostick, C-N signee, adds decathlon as another hurdle to cross

By Steve Williams

Jackson Bostick, already a two-time TSSAA state champion in the 300-meter hurdles, isn't planning on coasting through his senior season of outdoor track.

Sure the Grace Christian Academy athlete has his sights set on a third straight state title in the hurdles, but that's not all. He's already in the process of adding several more new events to his workload.

Bostick wants to be a decathlete.

Carson-Newman University knew that too when Jackson signed with the Eagles on Jan. 24.

Now 18 years old, Bostick has come a long way since he walked on the Grace Christian campus as an eighth grader in the fall of 2015.

A young man has become a young man.

Parents Missy and Gregg couldn't be prouder. They joined their son in his room after the three went to a basketball game and shared in the moment of his signing scholarship papers.

Jackson didn't know it at the time, but his road to Jefferson City, the home of Carson-Newman, actually started over four years ago, as it was pretty much love at first sight with the hurdles for him.

"I came to first-ever track practice my eighth grade year and just kind of saw them," he remembers. "I said hey, maybe I can try that out and it kind of went from there. I fell in love with them after that."

Mike Barlow, a Bearden High and UT sprint star in the 1970s, became Jackson's first track coach at GCA and is given much credit for his development as a hurdler.

"Jackson was one of those young athletes that I knew was gifted from Day 1," said Barlow recently. "He was All-KIL as an eighth grader and won his first state championship in only his sophomore year.

"He's a smart competitor and a team leader that will challenge everyone around him. I'm very proud of him and the time we had together. He will be a great addition to the Carson-Newman program."

Bostick, under Barlow's guidance, won his first Division II Class A state title as a sophomore in 2018, posting a time of 39.93 seconds.

Drew Treischmann became Jackson's coach his junior season, mainly assisting Bostick with his physical conditioning to increase his speed between hurdles. Last spring he repeated as the 300-meter hurdle state champion with a school record time of 38.54.

Veteran Head Coach David Needs and assistant Mike Morrison represented Carson-Newman in recruiting Bostick, who will be running the 400-meter hurdles in college.

Last summer, Bostick qualified for the New Balance High School Nationals

Jackson Bostick has signed a track and field scholarship with Carson-Newman University, but he's not done at Grace Christian yet. His goal is a state "three-peat" in the 300-meter hurdles and becoming a decathlete.

at North Carolina A&T State University in Greensboro and finished 31st in the 400 hurdles with a time of 57.47.

"The height of the hurdles are the same in the 400 as they are in the 300, but there's the increase of 100 meters and two more hurdles in the event," explained Bostick. "It's really a gut check for sure. I'm most definitely looking forward to running it in college."

Bostick said Carson-Newman has a "great coaching staff" and he likes the small college size.

"It felt like home," he said. "It's a smaller college, but that's not a bad thing, because it's like family ... and you can build relationships a lot easier."

Coach Morrison formerly coached high school track at CAK and saw his Warriors compete against Bostick.

"The first thing that stood out to us about Jackson was his competitive drive," said Morrison. "Having coached against him at the high school level, it was clear that Jackson always rises to the occasion at championship meets, putting up his best times against the best competition. Also, getting to know him more through the recruiting process, his humility and work ethic has really stood out.

Jackson Bostick of Grace Christian Academy reacts after winning the 300-meter hurdles for the second year in a row at last spring's TSSAA Division II Class A state track and field meet at MTSU. Bostick has signed with Carson-Newman University and will be seeking to "three-peat" at the state in May.

"I believe the sky is the limit for Jackson. We think that he could be an NCAA qualifier early in his collegiate career. Our goal would then shift to him becoming an NCAA All-American and beyond.

"Also, because hurdlers tend to be some of the better athletes on the track, we've discussed the possibility of trying out the decathlon for a year to see if there is any untapped potential in the other event areas."

Bostick is already training for the decathlon, too.

in recent weeks, one to MTSU and the other to Liberty University. On January 28, a little over a week before National Signing Day, Francis announced that he'd advance his academic and athletic career in Murfreesboro.

So, why did he pick the Blue Raiders? "Their coaches," said Francis. "They were very persistent, and I got to know them pretty well. It got me excited to play for them. They said I can play outside linebacker, but I think they are going to move me at some point to inside linebacker."

Francis added, "It was a general feeling. (Defensive Coordinator Scott) Schafer talked about playing North Texas and for some reason him talking about that got me fired up and excited to play."

Francis completed a successful high school career with the Rebels and was a big part of the rejuvenation of the program. Under the leadership of head coach Lamar Brown, the Rebels have once again become a state championship contender. This season they went 12-2, losing in the Class 5A semifinals to the eventual state champion Central Bobcats.

"I do think my senior class and the guys following us have helped shape the culture at West," said Francis. "I think we set the foundation for it."

And now, Francis will start a new chapter a couple of hours down the road.

HIGH SCHOOL SPORTS NOTEBOOK

Coatney is among 2020 TSSAA Hall of Fame class

By Steve Williams

Buck Coatney, former Fulton High School head football coach, is going into the TSSAA Hall of Fame.

Coatney was the Falcons' coach from 1992-2010 and compiled a 144-91 record. He won state championships in 2003, 2004 and 2006.

The nine members of the 2020 Hall of Fame class will be inducted at the annual luncheon at the Embassy Suites Hotel and Conference Center in Murfreesboro on Saturday, April 18.

Three administrators, four coaches, one official and one contributor will be inducted that day to join others in the annual gathering of those selected since the process began in 1982.

Others being inducted at this year's luncheon are: Barbara Daush, administrator from Memphis; Turner Jackson, administrator from Cleveland; Clint Parnell, administrator from Nashville; Bobby Alston, coach from Memphis; Carolyn Jackson, coach from Chattanooga; Jeff Morris, coach from Milan; Shelby

Miller, official from Elizabethton; and the late Marion Wilhoite, contributor from Columbia.

RECORD-SETTER: Carter High senior Annie Rimmer set the KISL record in the 100 fly with a time of 55.85 Jan. 25 at UT's Allan Jones Aquatic Center, breaking Hardin Valley's Carissa Armijo time of 56.03 set in 2017. Annie, a UT signee, also finished third in the 100 back.

Rimmer has swum the 100 free the last several years in this meet and set the record in that event, but wanted to swim the 100 fly this year. It's hard to do both because they are close together in the scheduled events.

In the upcoming state meet, Rimmer plans to compete in the 100 free and 100 fly, which will be held on two different days.

MORE TO COME: Knoxville Catholic boys basketball coach Mike Hutchens says more big matchups like the Catholic vs. IMG Academy headliner on Jan. 25 will be played in the future.

"We'll upgrade our schedule and it will continue to go as long as we're here," said Hutchens.

TASTE OF VICTORY: Seymour boys' basketball team ended its 20-game losing streak and got its first victory of the season with a 69-56 win at Cocke County on Jan. 24.

The Eagles are scheduled to host Northview Academy tonight (Feb. 3) and Carter Friday.

SIGNING DAY: Wednesday, Feb. 5, is the initial signing date for D1 and D2 football's regular signing period.

FENDLEY TO SIGN: Neyland Fendley of Karns will sign a football scholarship with Carson-Newman Wednesday morning at 9 in the Karns High library.

MTSU BOUND: West High defensive standouts Drew Francis and Tyrece Edwards announced last week they had committed to Middle Tennessee State. Francis is an outside linebacker and Edwards an end.

Wednesday running group combines training, camaraderie, cold brews

By Bill Howard

While distance running is a solitary activity, runners are every bit as gregarious as any people, especially after the run or race is over. It's hardly a secret that post-run cold beers commonly play a big role in contributing to that sociability.

If Wednesdays happen to fit into a Knoxville runner's schedule, and he or she enjoys socializing with a cold one afterward, there's a group that's just for them.

Informally named Schulz Brau Beer Runners, the group meets at the Schulz Brau Brewing Company on Bernard Ave. (right off Central) near downtown every Wednesday at 6:30 for a three-mile run. Of course, any runner can run farther if that fits better into his or her training. Runners get a discount on beers afterward.

The group was started in late 2015 by Trey Murphy, 42, who teaches music online to middle-schoolers in Texas. Murphy started running in 2012 to lose weight. He currently runs between 20 and 40 miles per week.

"I'd been doing the Casual Pint run in Fountain City, and they ended it in November for Daylight Saving Time, so that run went away," said the father of two. "I still wanted to run on Wednesdays. I heard from a friend that they wanted to have a group run here, so I came and talked to them. I told them I'd be the point man for it. I said 'can we get a discount,' and they said 'sure.'"

As is commonly the case, early group numbers were small. Persistence led to more participants.

"For the longest time it was just me and about three or four other people," said Murphy. "When 865Running (the website 865Running.com, that lists days and times of running groups all over the area) came about, we got a few more people. Up until March last year it was always eight, nine people. But then a group called Back of the Pack Elite that I'd been a part of, I finally brow-beat 'em into coming out. Our normal attendance went from about nine to about 20."

Maria Rydvall, 32, is training to be a dental hygienist, and ran in high school in Lenoir City. She usually runs three times per week, and has run with the group for two years. "It's nice and relaxing, it's something to do after you get off work, take a break from the world and be with people and have a drink," she said.

As with most any running group, diversity - by age, by race, by running commitment, and other factors - is the norm. All are welcome, and the social bonds among the group are paramount. "We have serious runners but it's certainly not a 'serious' run," said Murphy. "This is one of the more laid-back (groups). You wanna walk? Fine. You wanna sprint? Fine, c'mon out; we'll accommodate you. We all have our myriad social groups. But I would say my running friends are the ones who mean the most to me. Outside my immediate family they're my emotional support group."

Mike Barto, 48, works in environmental sales, and has run with the group for four years. But his first love is cycling. "I didn't start running until about four years ago when these guys pressured me into doing my first triathlon," he said.

"That's what got me into the running." Barto runs up to 25 miles a week and bikes up to 150.

When training for a triathlon, those numbers go up considerably. He recently started a Facebook fund to raise money for Alzheimer's research. He echoed Murphy's words about what the group meant to him. "All these people have become dear friends of mine," he said.

Said technical trainer Chris Wills, 52, who has been with the group since the start: "the group means everything. They're family."

made the score 33-18. Kate Pettinger added a 3-point field goal a short time later to pull the Lady Irish to within 33-21. Williams had a basket later in the frame for Catholic, which trailed 40-23 at halftime.

But Greeneville was hot after the break and outscored the Lady Irish 18-4 in the third stanza to open a 58-27 lead.

The Lady Irish had their share of offensive troubles throughout the evening. They, however, manufactured enough punch to keep the 35-point mercy rule from being invoked over the final eight minutes.

Williams also left the game with an injury and did not return. She scored 13 points before exiting the contest in the third quarter. She was one of only four Lady Irish players to score against the Lady Devils on this night. Pettinger scored 11 points as she made three 3-pointers. Sam Kaczmarek scored nine points while Jaya Jenkins scored five points after halftime, coming off the bench.

Greeneville had four players post double figures in the scoring column.

Freshman Lauren Bailey led the Lady Devils with 17 points. Grace Hayes added 16 points. Chloe Marsh had 13 points and Delana DeBusk finished with 10 points.

Exposure

I am often astounded by what people don't know or what they think they know. A young professional recently told me she didn't recognize the name AOC (Alexander Ocasio Cortez), the titular leader of the Democrat party. And last week the New York Times alleged that John Bolton, in a yet to be released new book, is critical of his former boss, President Trump. I have observed that people who are fired are often disgruntled.

The Times admitted they had not seen Bolton's manuscript and their story was based on another anonymous person's report. Bolton's manuscript is under mandatory review by the NSC (National Security Council) to make sure the book will not release national secrets. Would it surprise you to learn that the twin brother of Lt. Colonel Vindman is in charge of the book review? Recall that Lt. Colonel Vindman was the NSC bureaucrat who was offended when President Trump declined to use his talking points during the infamous phone call with the President of Ukraine. Exposure to the NYT's biased and repeatedly "mistaken" reporting is problematic.

'Tis the season, but not the Holiday Season. Instead, 'Tis the flu season. Influenza is a serious seasonal viral infection, sometimes confused with the generic common cold.

Influenza infection typically begins with a sudden chill and malaise, soon followed by high fever (≥ 101 degrees), coryza (watery eyes), severe muscle aches and cough. People with influenza often feel so bad they can't get out of bed (prostrate).

Over the last three "flu" seasons, an average of 36 million Americans suffered from influenza and 8% died. Mortality and hospitalization are more common in the elderly, in young children and in people with chronic diseases and immune system dysfunction. There are several antiviral agents which can treat influenza if begun in the first 48-72 hours of illness, but it is far better to prevent infection by common sense avoidance of crowds when influenza is present in your community, use of hand sanitizers and vaccination. Flu shots are helpful and prevent influenza or lessen its severity by two thirds.

The common cold is also a viral syndrome primarily associated with upper respiratory symptoms of head congestion, far less malaise than influenza, sore throat and low-grade fever, if any. Colds make you feel unwell, but don't kill! Antibiotics are useless and there are no effective antiviral medications. Symptomatic treatment with Sudafed-like medications or Nasal Afrin can help head congestion. And never underestimate the value of a steaming soak or a hot toddy!

There are many viruses that cause the common cold including the coronavirus, responsible for 10-30 % of colds. However, recently a new coronavirus has emerged in Wuhan, China. You may recall another mutated coronavirus from China in 2002 which spread worldwide and was designated as SARS, severe acute respiratory syndrome. Approximately 25% of patients with SARS required mechanical ventilators and 10% died. Another coronavirus emerged in Saudi Arabia in 2012 to produce MERS or Middle East respiratory syndrome. This respiratory infection was even more deadly and also produced prominent gastrointestinal symptoms and kidney failure. SARS and MERS eventually resolved with public health measures including isolation and quarantine.

The new Chinese coronavirus has led to sixty million people being quarantined, but apparently too late because cases have appeared in Europe, the US, Africa, the Middle East, Canada and Australia. Multiple airlines have stopped flights to China and Hong Kong has closed its borders with China. At this writing, the US has not stopped air travel to or from China, but I believe the President should do so. In the last several weeks, China has reported almost 10,000 cases of "Wuhan-coronavirus," greater than the total number of SARS infections during the 2002-2003 epidemic. And I suspect the reported number of Wuhan cases is only the tip of the iceberg. If there is any good news, the reported death rate is relatively low with Wuhan-coronavirus, and the current risk of infection in America is miniscule. By comparison, we've already had 30 million reported cases of influenza this flu season.

Quarantine is an effective measure to prevent the spread of infection. In an autocracy like China, cities and travel can be shut down. In a democracy like ours this would be very difficult. Do you think the government could quarantine San Francisco or Los Angeles? These Democrat enclaves can't even prevent pooping on the street or rampant lawlessness and drug use. Do you think the homeless with drug addiction and mental illness would obey government dictates?

We often see people in China wearing surgical masks in the hopes of preventing infection. (I doubt the masked crowds are focused on controlling their own coughed or sneezed secretions.) Surgical masks do not filter small potentially infectious particles nor are they personally fitted to prevent air from entering around the mask edges. Some years ago, during the terrorist anthrax scare, doctors like me who cared for ER and hospitalized patients were fitted with special N95 masks. This expensive mask may be somewhat protective, but is quite uncomfortable to wear.

Actually, it is my exposure to the impeachment farce that has made me ill and further damaged my opinion of the government and our leaders. Many Americans have avoided exposure by tuning out, which is deadly for democracy.

However, when Trump's impeachment has failed, it will not be over. There will be new claims of malfeasance. The coup d'état, also known as the Democrat resistance, will not stop, at least until corruption in the government is reformed. And this can only begin with consequences for malfeasance in the FBI, CIA, Justice and State Departments, National Security Council and FISA court. When a flashlight is shined in a darkened basement the rats scurry. We can only hope that justice is coming from Attorney General William Barr and U.S. Attorney John H. Durham's investigations.

Until justice is done and America's "new" Civil War is won, I will hazard "news" exposure by staying engaged and speaking out. And, I will go out during flu season with a hand sanitizer in my pocket, wash my hands regularly and stay at arm's length from folks who are coughing and sneezing. This "doctor of democracy" urges you to do the same.
