

Members of the Knoxville Songwriters Association helped launch Tennessee Songwriters Week with a performance at the state's Welcome Center on I-75 in Jellico. Seated are Laurie and David Rasterling. Standing, from left, are Gene Blain, Mitch Townsend, Edna Riddick, David Lauerer and Tim Doyle.

Knoxville Songwriters Help Launch Tennessee Songwriters Week

Members of the Knoxville Songwriters Association helped launch Tennessee Songwriters Week by performing at the state's Welcome Center on I-75 in Jellico. Seated are Laurie and David Rasterling. Standing, from left, are Gene Blain, Mitch Townsend, Edna Riddick, David Lauerer and Tim Doyle.

During Tennessee Songwriters Week in May, Cummings invited the group back to perform during

Bluesed Cafe in March. FSA usually meets each Tuesday at the Fountain City Library, 8500 Swan-

move, Andrew Johnson sale pass without comment

By Mike Stealy
Senior Writer
stealmike@knoxnews.com

The fight is apparently over between opponents of selling the Andrew Johnson Building and moving the school administration offices to the TVA towers.

Both items were on the Knox County Commission's "consent" list, a long list of items that the commission voted on with one collective vote. Both items ended up there after the work session the week before, also without as much as a comment from commissioners in Monday's Regular Commission meeting.

The school board's split vote on the move prompted the commission to approve their resolution "regarding the relocation of the administrative offices from the Andrew Johnson Building to the TVA East Tower."

The $6 million sale to BSA Associates LLC was also passed without comment. www.knoxnews.com