Farragut and the 5G cell giants

The latest in the saga

By [Name]

The saga of the 5G cell giants in Salt Lake City has reached a new chapter. The City Council has approved a new ordinance that will allow the city to negotiate with the giants for the use of public space for their towers. The ordinance is a response to the city's growing dependence on 5G technology for public safety and other critical services. The city has been in a long-term negotiation with the giants, but the ordinance is a significant step forward.
