

"We cancelled our game with Cookeville," said third-year coach Brad Dwyer said. "We went down and helped with the cleanup."

And Border Valley's work didn't stop there.

The Lady Braves also donated as they donated supplies and gift cards to the victims.

Other area teams also joined in the effort. Those schools included Catholic, Central, Harpeth and Bearden. Area coaches including the Atlanta Ray Dwyer, the Bearden Chris Jones, the Bulinger Ryan Reddick and the many Border Valley staff different ways in helping with the relief effort.

"We had a lot of people get involved."

Members of the Border Valley Academy boys soccer team assist in the Cookeville cleanup effort after the city was hit by a tornado earlier this month.

Dwyer said.

"Between them, our team and our girls teams, we donated supplies and hundreds of dollars worth of gift cards."

Dwyer and his wife made a trip to deliver relief supplies to Cookeville.

"Our parents got together with some parents from Cookeville and gathered the supplies and I drove them down there with my wife," Dwyer said.

The 2020 high school boys soccer season is on hold due to recent happenings but area teams began the campaign before students departed for Spring Break and it was Dwyer that made the first donations for the effort before the season came to a halt.

The boys displayed their homegrown spirit against Olin in Thursday, March 12 at their home field, and in lieu of paying tickets, fans were encouraged to donate supplies and non-perishable food items to the Cookeville tornado victims.
