

with the cleanup.”
 And Hawks Valley’s work didn’t stop there.

The Lady Hawks also assisted as they gathered supplies and gift cards for the victims.

Other area teams also joined in the effort. Those schools included Catholic, Central, Farragut and Rearden. Area coaches, including the Admirals’ Ray Dover, the Bobcats’ Chris Quinn, the Bulldogs’ Ryan Radcliffe and the Irish’s Gordon Hays took different roles in helping with the relief effort.

“We had a lot of people get involved,”

Members of the Hawks Valley Academy boys soccer team assist in the Cookeville cleanup effort after the city was hit by a tornado earlier this month.

Quinn said.

“Between them, our team and our girls teams, we donated supplies and hundreds of dollars worth of gift cards.”

Dover and his wife made a trip to deliver relief supplies to Cookeville.

“Our parents got together with some parents from Catholic and gathered the supplies and I drove them down there with my wife,” Dover said.

The 2000 high school boys soccer season is on hold due to recent happenings but area teams began the campaign before students departed for Spring Break and it was Central that made the final donations for the effort before the season came to a standstill.

The Bobcats played their home opener against Seymour on Thursday, March 22 at Dan T. Roper Stadium, and in lieu of paying for tickets, fans were encouraged to donate supplies and non-perishable food items to the Cookeville tornado victims.
