

Young and older Norwood children hunt for eggs painted in their classrooms. A pair of a chocolate rabbit caught in just one grassy area in the Norwood Forest courtyard of Valley Forge.

Special Easter egg hunt in Norwood goes viral

By Mike Brady
Norwood
Public Relations

Something is up at the Norwood Forest courtyard. The Norwood neighborhood's Norwood Forest courtyard is the site of a special Easter Egg Hunt. The children are out there with a special mission.

The hunt is not just a hunt for eggs. It's a hunt for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

For children, some of the hunting is a hunt for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

The Norwood Forest courtyard is the site of a special Easter Egg Hunt. The children are out there with a special mission. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

Continued on page 2

Steve Phillips, a Norwood resident, has just finished with his egg hunt in the Norwood Forest courtyard. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

and the children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg. The children are looking for a special egg.

Continued on page 2

Davis selected as next Election Executive Director

By Mike Brady
Norwood
Public Relations

Council postpones creation of Human Resources Department

By Mike Brady
Norwood
Public Relations

The council has postponed the creation of a Human Resources Department. The council has postponed the creation of a Human Resources Department.