

Congressman Tim Burchett visited the Knoxville Fire Station # 12 Friday morning to present the first responders' heroes of the hour medals. He spent much of the day following the activities around the congressional district. Photo Courtesy of Andrew Davis.

By Mike Staudy
Senior Writer
mike@knoxnews.com

Congressman Tim Burchett was a busy guy Friday visiting several fire stations in his district and delivering 20 heroes of the hour medals.

The second senior congressman visits select for $1,000 for the station and he and Lynn Fugate, who heads the Fire Station Council of Southern Indiana, meet with each other before Burchett left.

The first place he stopped was Knoxville Fire Station # 30 at 200 North Fourth Street. He then proceeded to the 1st camp fire station, a Mayville House, Senior City and Union fire hall

The last station on his schedule was Knoxville Fire Station # 12 on Campbell Street.

Burchett chose not to wear a face mask and he staff said that face masks are designed for first responders. He also did not wear gloves although "a safe distance" from the firefighters.

Dr. Tumblin's interest in history?

By Mike Staudy
Senior Writer
mike@knoxnews.com

Dr. J.C. (Doc) Tumblin is one of the most notable historians in the region and the first person everyone looks to especially for knowledge of Knoxville City's earlier days. This past Thursday Tumblin was to be honored by the Knoxville History Project.

Unfortunately the event has been postponed until the coronavirus pandemic passes. For now, the history project is Continued on page 2

Verbiage of human resources ordinance to

KAT announces temporary