Dogwood Arts announce winners of annual contest

By Reed Long

The 12th D-DOG parade is now closed down with the 2020 Dogwood Arts Festival scaling back of its signature events due to a restrict on gatherings and the coronavirus outbreak in the United States.

On Friday, the festival officials announced the winners of the annual art contest, which was held online this year.

Kara Lockmiller, 7, received a first place award ($100). Jaxon Howe, 4, earned second place and earned $200. Tyler Bennett, 12, earned third place and $300.

Each of the winners had from March 23 through April 30 to draw their own Dogwood for the Dogwood Festival contest and had to be homeschooled or in school.

Decatur noted that over 8,000 people
