

The Knoxville

Focus

www.knoxfocus.com

FREE
Subscription
Call 863-241-1111

News of the City of Knoxville, Tennessee, & the surrounding area. Published weekly, except on Wednesdays.

Council approves COVID-19 additional funding

By Staff Writers
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (Focus) — The Knoxville City Council has approved additional funding for the city's COVID-19 response efforts.

The council approved a $1 million increase in the city's COVID-19 response fund, bringing the total to $10 million. The funding will be used for a variety of purposes, including purchasing personal protective equipment (PPE), testing, and other supplies.

The council also approved a $500,000 increase in the city's COVID-19 response fund, bringing the total to $5.5 million. This funding will be used for a variety of purposes, including purchasing PPE, testing, and other supplies.

The council also approved a $500,000 increase in the city's COVID-19 response fund, bringing the total to $5.5 million. This funding will be used for a variety of purposes, including purchasing PPE, testing, and other supplies.

The council also approved a $500,000 increase in the city's COVID-19 response fund, bringing the total to $5.5 million. This funding will be used for a variety of purposes, including purchasing PPE, testing, and other supplies.

The council also approved a $500,000 increase in the city's COVID-19 response fund, bringing the total to $5.5 million. This funding will be used for a variety of purposes, including purchasing PPE, testing, and other supplies.

CAK athletes, performing arts students receive tribute

Students from the City of Knoxville's performing arts programs were honored at a ceremony on Tuesday, Oct. 27, at the Knoxville Convention Center.

By Staff Writers
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (Focus) — The City of Knoxville's performing arts programs were honored at a ceremony on Tuesday, Oct. 27, at the Knoxville Convention Center.

The ceremony was held to recognize the achievements of students from the City of Knoxville's performing arts programs. The students were honored for their hard work and dedication to their craft.

The ceremony was held to recognize the achievements of students from the City of Knoxville's performing arts programs. The students were honored for their hard work and dedication to their craft.

The ceremony was held to recognize the achievements of students from the City of Knoxville's performing arts programs. The students were honored for their hard work and dedication to their craft.

The ceremony was held to recognize the achievements of students from the City of Knoxville's performing arts programs. The students were honored for their hard work and dedication to their craft.

The ceremony was held to recognize the achievements of students from the City of Knoxville's performing arts programs. The students were honored for their hard work and dedication to their craft.

New City Human Resources Department questioned

By Staff Writers
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (Focus) — The City of Knoxville's new Human Resources Department has been questioned by some city employees.

Some city employees have expressed concerns about the new department's structure and the way it is handling employee matters. They feel that the department is not providing the same level of support and services as the previous department.

Some city employees have expressed concerns about the new department's structure and the way it is handling employee matters. They feel that the department is not providing the same level of support and services as the previous department.

Some city employees have expressed concerns about the new department's structure and the way it is handling employee matters. They feel that the department is not providing the same level of support and services as the previous department.

Some city employees have expressed concerns about the new department's structure and the way it is handling employee matters. They feel that the department is not providing the same level of support and services as the previous department.

Some city employees have expressed concerns about the new department's structure and the way it is handling employee matters. They feel that the department is not providing the same level of support and services as the previous department.

Converting to a 111 District Eliminates 8000 Positions

By Staff Writers
KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (Focus) — The City of Knoxville is converting to a 111 district system, which will eliminate 8,000 positions.

The city is currently in the process of converting to a 111 district system. This conversion will result in the elimination of 8,000 positions. The city is currently in the process of converting to a 111 district system.

The city is currently in the process of converting to a 111 district system. This conversion will result in the elimination of 8,000 positions. The city is currently in the process of converting to a 111 district system.

The BEST of 2020
For the next few weeks, the Knoxville Focus will spend additional attention on the top of your minds. One of 2020's most important things you need to know.

2020 Best Buy Super Deal

THE WARNER
Call 863-241-1111