

CAK athletes, performing arts students receive tribute

Christian Academy of Knoxville had a socially distant parade honoring its senior athletes and performing arts students recently. The students lost the majority of the spring semester and spring sports season due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Photo submitted.

By Ron Roy

are deserving first place.

So it had a parade for the students/athletes and arts students, who also coaches

the school's girls soccer team.

And he knew that it was 100%

But he felt that he and the school had to do something for these students and that was a

DAVID JACKSON

By Ron Roy Publisher

A virtual moment of tribute and thanks at Knoxville was the first of the 2020-21 school year, which focused on honoring those who served in the community during COVID-19 times, and honoring how much can become a life. District leaders from two towns were discussed announcements given by Chapman University included city, school board, community, and a virtual meeting for the 2020-21 school year dated for May 20, and the uncertainty of how 2021 meetings to be held on future dates. 2021 members were also reminded to complete their required annual Tennessee School Boards Association training by June 30.

Once the agenda was approved, Superintendent Bill Thomas gave his report. He thanked school nutrition workers, teachers, staff administration, and volunteers for their hard work of teaching 275,000 meals in such difficult times. He also inspired by the example of the 100% community and the spirit of the 100%.