

Scott's Adult Workshop members, Scott Green, Coordinator Andrew Robinson, Cameron Brink and Victoria Ridge prepare to add to the 2017 budget for the 2017 work year.

Giving back to KAT employees

By Mike Steady
Knox News
KnoxNews.com

There are a lot of businesses in the city of Knoxville. They provide an important service, and contribute to the local economy. One of the ways that businesses can give back to the community is by supporting local organizations.

The city of Knoxville is a great place to live. It has a lot of beautiful scenery, and a lot of interesting things to see and do. One of the ways that the city can give back to the community is by supporting local organizations.

One of the ways that businesses can give back to the community is by supporting local organizations. This can be done in a number of ways, such as donating money, providing services, or simply being a good neighbor.

One of the ways that businesses can give back to the community is by supporting local organizations. This can be done in a number of ways, such as donating money, providing services, or simply being a good neighbor.

One of the ways that businesses can give back to the community is by supporting local organizations. This can be done in a number of ways, such as donating money, providing services, or simply being a good neighbor.

One of the ways that businesses can give back to the community is by supporting local organizations. This can be done in a number of ways, such as donating money, providing services, or simply being a good neighbor.

One of the ways that businesses can give back to the community is by supporting local organizations. This can be done in a number of ways, such as donating money, providing services, or simply being a good neighbor.

One of the ways that businesses can give back to the community is by supporting local organizations. This can be done in a number of ways, such as donating money, providing services, or simply being a good neighbor.

City Human Resources Department passes first reading

By Mike Steady
Knox News
KnoxNews.com

The City of Knoxville Human Resources Department has passed its first reading. The department is responsible for managing the city's human resources, including recruitment, training, and compensation.

The department is responsible for managing the city's human resources, including recruitment, training, and compensation.

The department is responsible for managing the city's human resources, including recruitment, training, and compensation.

The department is responsible for managing the city's human resources, including recruitment, training, and compensation.

The department is responsible for managing the city's human resources, including recruitment, training, and compensation.

Continued on page 2

Absentee voting expanded to everyone

By Mike Steady
Knox News
KnoxNews.com

The City of Knoxville has expanded its absentee voting program to all city employees. This means that all city employees can now vote absentee, regardless of whether they are currently working or on leave.

The City of Knoxville has expanded its absentee voting program to all city employees. This means that all city employees can now vote absentee, regardless of whether they are currently working or on leave.

The City of Knoxville has expanded its absentee voting program to all city employees. This means that all city employees can now vote absentee, regardless of whether they are currently working or on leave.

The City of Knoxville has expanded its absentee voting program to all city employees. This means that all city employees can now vote absentee, regardless of whether they are currently working or on leave.

The City of Knoxville has expanded its absentee voting program to all city employees. This means that all city employees can now vote absentee, regardless of whether they are currently working or on leave.

Continued on page 2

Knox Education Foundation Announced at BOE Session