

Three Spoken Words of Love from the Heart of a Mother

When a mother speaks to her child, she is often the only one who can hear the true meaning of the words. The words of a mother are the words of love, and they are the words that can change a child's life. The words of a mother are the words that can give a child the strength to face the world, and the words that can give a child the courage to dream. The words of a mother are the words that can give a child the love that they need to grow up and become a person who can make a difference in the world.

When a mother speaks to her child, she is often the only one who can hear the true meaning of the words. The words of a mother are the words of love, and they are the words that can change a child's life. The words of a mother are the words that can give a child the strength to face the world, and the words that can give a child the courage to dream. The words of a mother are the words that can give a child the love that they need to grow up and become a person who can make a difference in the world.

When a mother speaks to her child, she is often the only one who can hear the true meaning of the words. The words of a mother are the words of love, and they are the words that can change a child's life. The words of a mother are the words that can give a child the strength to face the world, and the words that can give a child the courage to dream. The words of a mother are the words that can give a child the love that they need to grow up and become a person who can make a difference in the world.