

Oster questioning crossover votes

By Staff
Illustration: [Image]

As the 2020 election draws near, Mayor Dan Claitor is questioning the loyalty of some of his own council members. Claitor, who is running for re-election in November, has accused several council members of being "crossover voters" who are not fully committed to his administration. He has specifically named Councilmembers Steve Oster, Steve Cooper, and Steve Cooper, suggesting they are more interested in their own political ambitions than in supporting the city's interests. Claitor's accusations have caused a significant rift within the council, with some members defending their loyalty to the city while others remain silent. The situation highlights the challenges of maintaining a unified leadership team in a competitive political environment.

Final Action on HR Dept. at City Council

By Staff
Illustration: [Image]

The City Council is set to take final action on a resolution regarding the Human Resources Department. The resolution, which was passed in a previous meeting, aims to streamline the department's operations and improve efficiency. Council members are expected to vote on the resolution during their next meeting. The resolution has been met with some opposition, with critics arguing that it could lead to job losses or a reduction in services. However, supporters believe it is necessary for the city to modernize its HR practices in the current economic climate.

Back to School

Teacher [Name] addresses the class during a lesson in [Subject] at [School Name].

Holston Middle hosts sixth-grade orientation

By Staff

Holston Middle School recently hosted a sixth-grade orientation for incoming students and their parents. The event was held in the school's gymnasium and featured a variety of activities designed to help students transition to middle school. Activities included a tour of the school, a presentation on school rules and expectations, and a chance for students to meet their teachers. Parents were also provided with information about the school's programs and resources. The orientation was a success, with many parents expressing their appreciation for the school's efforts to make the transition process as smooth as possible.

The orientation was held on [Date] at [Time]. It was a great opportunity for students and parents to get to know each other and the school. The school staff was very helpful and provided a warm welcome to all attendees. The orientation was a great start to the school year and we are excited to have all the new students and parents at Holston Middle School.

A student from the orientation event is seen in the background.

Health Board rebuffs 'untested' change

By Staff
Illustration: [Image]

The Health Board has rebuffed a proposed change to the city's health regulations, citing concerns over the safety and effectiveness of the change. The proposed change, which was introduced by a council member, would allow for the use of untested medical products in certain circumstances. The Health Board, which is responsible for overseeing the city's health services, has expressed its opposition to the change, stating that it could pose a significant risk to the public's health. The board members argued that the change was not based on sufficient evidence and that it would undermine the city's commitment to high standards of care. The council member who introduced the change has indicated that he will continue to push for its passage, but the Health Board remains firm in its position.

The Health Board's decision is a significant one, as it will determine whether the proposed change is implemented. The board's members are expected to meet again in the near future to discuss the matter further. The city's health services are a top priority for the community, and the board's decision will have a direct impact on the quality of care provided to residents. It is important for the community to stay informed about the progress of the change and to voice their concerns to their elected representatives.

LOWE'S PLANT CENTER

Specializing in indoor and outdoor plants, flowers, and garden supplies. Visit us today for a wide selection of products to enhance your home and garden.