CENTRAL HONORS HEROINE

Central High School teacher Chris Stevenson, standing center with a historic marker between Franklin Mayor Evelyn Edmondson and Franklin City Manager Jamie Shuman Jr., Franklin, on historic parcel Friday as the unveiling of a historic marker for Mary Frances Pressley. Franklin was a classmate of Pressley's known as "Frankie." She was a Central High School graduate who became an athletic high achiever and earned the love of her people after she was crushed to death by a runaway streetcar while trying to rescue a crewmate and baby from the plane. The dedication of the historic marker is the latest effort by Stevenson and the high school class Pressley should've been in. The class was Campbell's Class. The marker is located along Savannah Pike at the corner of Franklin Cross Lanes in Franklin and her family lived. Photo by Mike Brady

School board votes to end furloughs and picks up premium increase

By Steve Lacy

More moves to restrict Board of Health on Commission Agenda

By Mike Brady