Early voting for Knox County Primary to end April 28

By Mike Steely Senior Writer steelym@knoxfocus.com

Voters are in the midst of Early Voting in Knox County and will continue to choose their primary candidates through Thursday, April 28. May 3 is Election Day.

"The first two days were slow but steady," Election Coordinator Chris Davis told The Focus, adding, "I think it will pick up after Easter."

Thirty-four county offices are on the ballot and the first day saw 1,106 people voting in person and 489 absentee ballots turned in.

Right-ofway closures for stadium on council agenda

By Mike Steely Senior Writer

steelym@knoxfocus.com

The closings of three right-ofways in and around the proposed multi-use baseball stadium next to the Old City are on the Knoxville City Council's agenda Tuesday.

The intersection right-of-way at Patton Street and Willow Avenue would be closed to a distance of 282 feet to the west and quitclaim deeds issued to adjacent property owners. A portion of Patton Street on the south line of Willow, for 98.44 feet, would also be closed. The requests are coming from the Knoxville-Knox County Planning Department.

A portion of the right-of-way next to First Creek and 214.36 feet to the west is also on the agenda to be closed. All three closings are on their second and final readings.

Also on the final reading is the city's One Year Plan prepared by the planners.

Main Street Instead of Wall Street

In my focus column last week, I mentioned the last national news article written about my career in Congress. Published in December of 2018 in news magazine The Week, it said: "He looked out for the interests of Main Street instead of Wall Street...."

I certainly tried to vote and speak out in that way because I believed for many years that this country has been and still is governed business duopoly.

The best one-sentence description of this was written by my fellow Focus columnist, Dr. Jim Ferguson, in the March 28th issue: "We are seeing a dangerous merger of crony capitalists, Tech Lords, and government agencies to suppress freedom."

Then, on Tucker Carlson's April 4th program, he reported that Parag Agrawal, who was made the CEO of Twitter a little over four months ago, said in 2020 that the company is "not to be bound by the First Amendment."

ago, Agrawal once forwarded a comment made by a panelist on the Daily Show that "all white people are

> Feb. 1, 2021, I wrote that President Biden "showed in his first days in office that he will be the president for wealthy liberal elitists and extremely big business men and women. He showed that the persona he claims of being for the 'little guy' is nothing but false campaign rhetoric." He did this by signing executive orders stopping Also, a little over 10 years President Trump's order making drug prices cheaper and shutting down the Keystone XL Pipeline.

I predicted in that column written after Biden's first week in office that "ultimately, this and other reregulation efforts by the Biden Administration will drive gas prices back up."

Another order that first week placed us back in the Paris Climate Agreement which would cost us big money, hurt small businesses, and give a competitive advantage to companies from China, India, and other developing nations. With the far left, everything is about control. Big Business loves big government because it drives many small and medium sized companies out of Pharma happy and the business and most of the filled with former high-tech

This cozy relationship between big government and big business has caused six or seven of the counties that surround Washington D.C. to be among the 10 wealthiest counties in the U.S.

The problem for the "little guy," the average American, is that big government socialism works only for the elitists who control the government and the businesses who become partners with that government.

It wipes out the middle class. Big government means few at the top, many at the bottom. A small national government, such as we had in the 1950s, meant very few at the top, very few at the bottom, and the biggest middle class in

LETTER TO THE PUBLISHER

I'm a fairly new resident of the Town of Farragut. In an effort to learn about our new community, I've been watching town meetings, some in person, and some live streamed. On Thursday, March 24, I was watching from home, and was really in shock at Mayor Ron Williams's opening Mayors Report. He criticized out of state residents for not understanding how things are done here in Farragut and had a harsh and condescending tone.

Wow, being from California myself, I found his comments quite offensive. I've met so many nice people here, as have my husband and children. Never has anyone been so unwelcoming. I found this to be particularly disturbing that the sentiments came from an official town representative like the mayor. I had been thinking about going to the Farragut 101 class, thinking that was an engaging way to learn about the Town, but after that harsh remark, I'm really thinking twice.

Still a bit unsettled from the Mayor's off-putting comments, I then watched as he continuously interrupted and berated a resident that was speaking during the public forum. The gentleman, Sean Murphy, was given time on the clock, and he could not finish his sentences without being harshly chastised by Mayor Williams and Vice Mayor Povlin. The speaker did not call names, was not loud or offensive, he was speaking to the development issues being discussed and yet he was continually disrupted and talked over by our Town leaders, even gaveled! Then, when the timer sounded, Mr. Murphy politely noted that the Mayor and Vice Mayor had used up portions of his time, they again responded rudely and cut him off.

As the Mayor did state, the Town of Farragut does things a little differently than California, but my understanding is that citizens have protected rights to speak at a public forum, even in Tennessee.

This is not a good look for such a beautiful town or its many warm citizens. I hope Mayor Williams and Vice Mayor Povlin can apologize to the many residents of Farragut that were offended by their behavior.

Fear the Yield Curve? At the end of yield. In Finance, short term. The investors it is generally

March, the stock market panicked when the rate on the two-year Treasury briefly rose above the rate on the ten-year Treasury bond. This phenomenon is called an inversion of the Treasury yield curve and is thought to market watcher said that the inverted yield curve meant that a recession was two-thirds likely in the next year and 98 percent likely within two years.

What is the Treasury yield curve? It shows how interest rates on Treasury's vary with the time it takes the instruments to mature. The curve plots yield against time to maturity and typically slopes upward. That makes intuitive sense. One would expect that the longer it takes an instrument to mature, the greater the risk of holding it and the higher should be the blackh@knoxfocus.com haroldblackphd.com

securities. Shorter term instrupredict a recession. One ments are less risky so why would the investor buy a longer term instrument? One explanation is that the yield on the longer term instrument must be greater than if the investor bought a series of shorter instruments over the same time to maturity as the longer instrument. Thus, there will be a positive spread between long rates and > shorter rates. Suppose there is inflation and the inflation is not "transitory" and is expected to last longer. If the Fed moves to raise interest rates it does so by selling Treasury bills which are as three months and as holding longer term instruments are no longer being adequately compensated because their bonds pay a fixed return and the differential between the shorter term rates and the longer term rates narrow. Of course, newly issued long bonds will pay higher rates but if shorter rates increase more, then the yield spread narrows and, like last month, could go negative.

Since 1955, an unambiguously downward sloping yield curve has preceded every recession. However, not every yield curve is unambiguously downward sloping. The curve could briefly invert as it did last month rather than invert for a longer period. The curve could invert in one time segment and not throughout its length. Most research shows that when the curve does invert, recessions occur with a lag - an average of 18 months. The lag has been as short long as three years. What is interesting is that today both consumers and the market anticipate that inflation will linger which makes a recession more likely. Much depends on the actions of the Fed and whether it will counter the profligate spending of this Administration.

Also, the Fed's keeping long term rates low since 2008 means that the yield curve is flatter than it would be otherwise so a run up in short rates may not augur a recession. However now the Fed is pushing up short term rates while selling off its portfolio of accumulated longer term instruments. There is a higher likelihood of more uncertainty and turmoil in the financial markets over the next year

Lastly, the market looks at the yield spread on the two year Treasury and the 10 year Treasury. But is that the relevant spread? Researchers at the Federal Reserve of San Francisco contend that the market is looking at the wrong rate spread. They find that the difference between the three month Treasury bill and the 18 month forward rate is more predictive than the difference between the two year and ten year Treasury. That measure is not inverted and has been found to be more predictive than the yields looked at by the market. Fed chairman Powell agrees and said in a speech that the shorter end of the yield curve is more predictive than the longer end. Currently the shorter spread is steep while the longer end is flat. Thus, the shorter end spread is not predicting a recession in the near term. Powell says that although he looks at the traditional spread, he pays more attention to the shorter end differential. So, is the market wrong? That is an empirical question and only time will tell.

Bud Armstrong Will Always Put "We The People" First

It is no surprise to anyone that a few lawyers aren't big boosters of former Knox County Law Director Richard "Bud" Armstrong. It was Armstrong who streamlined much of the processes from which lawyers profited handsomely by feeding at the trough of the taxpayers. Bud brought things inhouse, saving the taxpayers literally millions of dollars. It was Bud Armstrong who eliminated the "need" for the attorney employed by the Knox County Trustee's office, which was one of the most lucrative political plums in history. One law firm alone reputedly made $8 million during the administration of a former Trustee. Bud Armstrong stopped the practice, brought it in-house and those millions of dollars now go into the general fund to be used for things that benefit the people of Knox County. One sure way to aggravate a special interest is by taking money out of its pockets. Bud Armstrong was absolutely fearless as Knox County's Law Director and he always did what he believed to be right irrespective of the political cost. Bud earned the designation while Law Director as "the People's Lawyer" and he certainly was that.

If elected as Chancellor There are no regular meetin the coming election, he ings scheduled, but rather will become "the People's

My own thoughts about lawyers picking and choosing judges is pretty simple: lawyers like judges who put lawyers first. Bud Armstrong has and always will put "We the people" first.

Oster's Merit Council Mess

Gina Oster, a candidate for the county commission, is in the throes of the mess she's helped to create on the sheriff's merit council. Little known to most of the public, the merit council actually serves an important role in a vital process. The board sits as a quasi-judicial body to hear employee grievances from the sheriff's office. The body was established to help eliminate the firing of employees for purely political reasons.

Unfortunately, the merit council has been swallowed up and dominated by folks with a different agenda and Gina Oster is the chair of the body. Oster and her colleague Jim Jennings have been long identified with lockstep supporters of former Sheriff Jimmy "JJ" Jones. Jones is presently stomping all over the spirit of the term limits law passed by the people of Knox County as he bids to come back and resume office as sheriff. Incumbent Tom Spangler has surged as of late and is believed by most informed political observers to be in the lead in the Republican primary. County Commissioners Kyle Ward and Larsen Jay tried to fix much of what was ailing the merit council but some of their colleagues were reluctant, leaving the body an unqualified mess. The merit council has no semblance of professionalism about it despite sitting as a quasi-judicial body.

are called at the whim of the chair, Gina Oster.

Rarely do the three members (Oster, Jennings and Jim Wright) follow any kind of rules or procedures, failing to make proper motions and conduct business above board and thoroughly transparent.

Matters have been allowed to hang around indefinitely, like the complaint of Martha Dooley, a sheriff's spokesperson under Jones who is paid something like $106,000 annually. Sheriff Tom Spangler took away Dooley's taxpayer-provided car and gas card. Gina Oster and her fellow members of the merit council have utterly ignored the counsel of the law director's office, which advised it the Dooley case was not the kind of grievance the body could properly hear. Oster and company paid no attention and have let the matter linger.

The one member of the merit council who speaks up and cautions following rules and procedures is alternate member John Marshall. It was Marshall who recently pointed out the board needed to vote to go into Executive Session, which means the meeting is closed to the press and public. It needs to be public noticed as well.

Someone needs to give Gina Oster a copy of the Robert's Rules of Order.

Republicans Off The Ballot?

The Republican State Executive Committee has ruled four candidates off the Republican ballot in the race for Congress in Tennessee's new 5th District, including carpetbaggers Morgan Ortagus and Robby Starbuck. We'll have more on this in the coming weeks.

Double Standard?

Speaking of carpetbaggers, a mysterious group has hit Commissioner Larsen Jay for having given $1,000 to the campaign of then-presidential candidate Barack Obama. Of course, the group makes no mention that challenger Steve Weiner has lived in Knox County for about ten minutes and was part of the carpetbagger ticket of Daniel Herrera, Randy Pace and company. Nor does the group mention that Weiner has voted in a Democratic primary. Nor was there a word about the fact Weiner's manager is former Democrat and Green Party activist Erik Wiatr.

He's Baaaaack!

Long-time former Sheriff Tim Hutchison has filed to run for the Tennessee Republican State Executive Committee in the August GOP primary. Hutchison will face incumbent Scott Smith. The former sheriff was once one of the most popular GOP officeholders but that day has long since passed. Hutchison left office following "Black Wednesday" and anointed Jimmy "JJ" Jones as his designated successor. Hutchison retired with an $80,000 plus pension, but he was not done with politics. The former sheriff announced his candidacy for Knox County mayor against Tim Burchett and lost in a landslide. In fact, the defeat was so thorough it was humiliating. Then he and Stacey Campfield both sought to make political comebacks in the oddly numbered House District 89 and lost to unknown Justin Lafferty. Lafferty was no wizard of a candidate, but he had the good fortune not to be neither Tim Hutchison nor Stacey Campfield. Hutchison was an early supporter of Donald Trump and wanted to be appointed to federal office as U.S. Marshal. Those offices are occupied by individuals nominated by the president and confirmed by the United States Senate. Yet again, Tim Hutchison's ambitions foiled again.

Now the former sheriff has lowered his sights considerably to run for a seat on the Republican State Executive Committee. The members of the SEC are elected by those folks voting in the respective political parties' primaries in the August election. If "JJ" Jones loses the GOP primary for sheriff, it will indicate there is no nostalgia on the part of yesteryear by local Republicans. That won't bode well for Tim Hutchison.

Likewise, Sam Maynard has filed to run for the SEC from the 6th senatorial district against incumbent Brian Hornback and former GOP chair Randy Pace. Pace had wanted the seat Hornback was appointed to, but was spurned by the committee. If selected, Hornback pledged at the time not to run again for the seat but is anyway, supposedly to give voters a choice. Now Republicans have a choice in what is currently a three-way race. Hornback previously served on the Republican State Executive Committee before being routed by Ted Hatfield in a Republican primary several years ago.

No Excuse For Carrying Guns Into Schools

Angela Dennis and the wokesters at the News-Sentinel are continuing their race-baiting practices. Under the premise of covering the federal lawsuit filed by Anthony Thompson Jr.'s mother, Dennis asserts Thompson was murdered by police officers. After setting the table, Dennis pretty well excuses Thompson for to school, which was on his person when he was shot. Thompson's mother is promoting a series of changes in the law she refers to as "Anthony's Laws", one of which is prohibiting the arrest of youngsters at school "unless necessary to protect the immediate safety of others." It is remarkable to think any rational person doesn't equate a student entering a high school with a loaded gun as an event that would require law enforcement to protect the immediate safety of others. Of course, the Left in this country has long emphasized the gun rather than the individual holding the gun. The fact is, anyone bringing a loaded gun into a school represents a serious threat to the well-being and safety of others. Indeed, for a rational person, someone carrying a loaded gun into a school is the very definition of representing a threat to the safety and well-being of others. Anthony Thompson Jr.'s death is a tragedy and I feel deeply sorry for his mother. Unfortunately, anytime someone, especially a student, brings a loaded weapon into a school, nothing good ever comes of it. There are all too many instances of school shootings. The best way to ensure one is not shot by law enforcement is not to break the law. The truth is, had Anthony Thompson Jr. not carried a loaded gun into his high school, he would very likely be alive today.

The best way to ensure the safety of ALL students isn't by excusing those who make bad or just plain wrong decisions and making them immune to arrest, but rather by emphasizing abiding by the law. Considering the number of innocent youngsters left dead in our schools by shooters, having brought a loaded gun it's not too much to ask.

Another school board request is to accept a $10,000 grant from the state for school bus seat restraints. The program requires school busses in service for less than five years to be fitted with seat belts and school board districts could receive $10,000 per bus to do so.

The school system is also receiving $1.2 million from the state's Achieving Literacy and Learning Corps grants and $225,000 in state grants for Maynardville Elementary, Northwest Middle and Vine Middle Magnet schools.

The Doctor is in a weekly column by Dr. Jim Ferguson

The New Kid on the Block

Any sufficiently advanced technology is indistinguishable from magic.

If I'd asked my customers what they wanted, they would have said a faster

Henry Ford

There is a new kid on the block in Knoxville, perhaps unknown to some. I'm not talking about me because I am a native Knoxvillian and the Doctor Is In column is 14 years old.

Although I write about medical issues less often now than in the past, last week I promised an essay "focused" on medicine, so as Triple H says, "Buckle up."

Although there is more to the "doctor" than just medicine, my roots are in science. However, in researching this week's column I need to disclose that I also functioned as an "investigative reporter."

Admittedly, I have no training in journalism and do not claim nor desire such credentials. My opinion of "journalists" has been tainted by the Mainstream Media. Additionally, I am not paid to write. This essay arises from my interest, research and interviews with patients, Knoxville oncologists and radiation specialists, as well as the staff of the Provision Proton center.

Like many of you, I have seen the commercials on TV promoting the Provision center for the treatment of prostate cancer. Admittedly, I am skeptical of advertisements on TV and radio. You may be surprised that I have never been asked by a patient to prescribe a drug advertised on television. Perhaps patients understood my bias.

The ads I saw on TV py piqued my curiosity. encompasses the visual patients and friends with prostate cancer treated with high energy particle radiation instead of conventional X-ray radiation therapy, so I decided to learn more about this newer treatment modality. Actually, proton therapy has been around for

So, I hit the "books," although these days much medical information is published online rather than in textbooks. Because medical science is advancing so rapidly, the information in textbooks is often outdated by the time a book is published. The Internet is an invaluable tool for doctors and is a treasure trove for the curious, despite the dangers of incorrect information. My chief medical reference for this report is from the highly respected Up to Date medical website.

So, let's start with the basics, the science of physics - and don't hold your nose. There are four fundamental forces of nature in the universe. There is gravity, which everyone is well aware of; the strong nuclear force, which bonds protons and neutrons in the atomic nucleus; the weak nuclear force, which governs radioactive particle decay and the release of radiation; and there is regarding proton thera- electromagnetism, which Furthermore, I have had spectrum, electricity and a computer. magnetism.

> Photons are the energy packets/particles/waves of electromagnetism. This spectrum extends from the far infrared (microwaves) to the far ultraviolet (cosmic radiation). We see only within the small visual part of the electromagnetic spectrum. There are other invisible forces around us such as magnetic fields (magnets) or radiation from unstable isotopes of uranium detectable by a Geiger counter. The latter radiation (Chernobyl) can cause cancer or can be used to treat cancer.

If you are still awake and reading, I hope you will learn two things from this essay. First, the Provision Proton center is a jewel in the crown of Knoxville. And second, there is a difference between photons, (energy packets/waves) and protons (subatomic particles within the nucleus of an atom).

Electricity is used to generate photons for medical x-rays. Due to the variable absorption of x-rays in body parts images can be constructed. Bone is dense and absorbs more X-rays than organs like the heart, which is comprised largely of water. The lung filled with air absorbs the least X-radiation allowing more X-rays to expose a photographic plate and produce an image or data points in High energy x-rays (photons) can also be generated and directed to destroy cancerous tissue. To limit three academic medidamage to healthy tissue, the x-radiation beam is rotated while maintaining a focal therapeutic point centered on the tumor. This is the basic mechanism of conventional external beam radiation. I have never been in such are produced from ionized hydrogen gas within a cyclotron. Compared to a photon the positively charged proton is massive and is accelerated within the cyclotron and directed towards the patient's tumor by a series of magnets. There is less "scatter" radiation with proton therapy because these high energy particles give up their energy in a narrow area called the Bragg peak which can be focused on the tumor with less radiation to healthy tissue. Although this report focuses on prostate cancer therapy, proton radiation can be used to treat many solid

All radiation damages DNA, but the repair processes of healthy tissue exceed cancerous tissue. This is one reason radiation therapy is usually given five days a week rather than daily. However, radiation oncologists and their staff don't especially like to work on weekends, but neither did this internist!

In my medical career I have been involved with cal centers and practiced medicine in more than a half dozen hospitals. To supplement my research for this essay I toured the Provision Proton facility. The guy in the mask is me. a high tech, Star Trek-like High energy protons facility where patients are metaphorically "beamed up" every day. Behind the treatment table are three stories of equipment to support and rotate the treatment gantry fed by the cyclotron 20 meters away. The cost of a proton treatment center is one quarter of $1 billion.

Much has changed in the more than four decades I have practiced medicine. I am not easily impressed and have unfortunately become quite cynical about what has happened to my profession in recent years. However, there are exceptions to every generality and the Provision Proton center is an exception. Never have I experienced such a high tech, professional and yet personal, service-oriented organization. It's too bad we don't have the Provision organization and Chick-fil-A running our country.

We hoped that a couple of folks would show up, but we were amazed that approximately 35 former members joined years, we attended servicus. Minister Adam Woldt es and Sunday school. After our tour, many decided to meet at Marble City Market for lunch. After 100 years of living Once again, FCC individuals had a chance to catch up. Marie Leonard still is the perfect southern lady at age 95. Two men who had always been sidekicks, Bill Knight and Ralph Alexander, appeared with their familiar smiles. Wayne and Mary Anne Walls brought their son Adam and his family to share their faith and love for the place that welcomed them when they moved to Knoxville.

A contemporary service is far different from the ones that occurred at FCC. Some old timers would not have cared for the music, but I observed from the balcony where I sat, that the people, young and old, swayed to the beat of the music. Yes, many white-haired people filled the pews, but not a single person made a negative comment. Intern Pastor Adam Moore gave the message for the day. It was informative, passionate, and to the point. I appreciated his ability to accomplish that.

All of us who were members of FCC fought hard to keep that church alive. We knew the surrounding community needed a church like ours. As things turned out, many older members passed, and the congregation didn't have the numbers or energy to complete a plan. We all give thanks for the arrival of The Point. The members are a mixture of ages, and it was pleasing to hear the sounds that accompany the presence of small children in church.

Our group finished lunch and began the journey home. This might be the last time that we see each other. First Christian Church is in good hands. All who visited send their love and thanks to The Point for loving the old church building and for injecting the life that it so much deserves. What we witnessed on Palm Sunday was the resurrection of that place that means so much. The next Sunday folks returned to their new church homes to celebrate the most important of all resurrections.

A church family is a gift from God. People are always ready to help others. I hope all of you find that in your lives. You might even try The Point to see if it fits your needs. It is located in a building that was built by Christians who loved and cared for it for over 100 years.

The Importance of Earth Day

By Ralphine Major ralphine3@yahoo.com

"They're not making any more land," our father would often say. When we were in school, my brother and I hiked up to the ridge near our dairy farm one day to take pictures for a class project. Nowhere was Mother Earth more majestic than in the beautiful meadow on the ridge. Even for our rural road neighborhood, the special spot seemed isolated and distanced from the car horns and traffic on our country roads. I thought back to that time recently when a local situation made the news calling for a rural piece of acreage to be turned into development. Rural areas are vital to America's farmers.

On April 22, we celebrate Earth Day, a day set aside for us to consider the ways we can best take care of the resources we have been given so that future generations can enjoy the land, water, and air during their days on the earth. Projects such as recycling, planting trees, and clearing the land and lakes of trash are strongly encouraged. There is much to think about not only on Earth Day but every day. It is most important that everybody does their part in taking care of our earth---because "they're not making any more land."

Words of Faith: "And God said, Let the waters under the heaven be gathered together unto one place, and let the dry land appear: and it was so. And God called the dry land Earth; and the gather ing together of the waters called he Seas: and God saw that it was good." Genesis 1:9-10 (KJV).

Remembering Congressman Robin Beard

Pages from the Past

By Ray Hill rayhill865@gmail.com

Every so often I am reminded of my age by recalling those leaders of my youth; most of them are gone now. Howard Baker, Bill Brock, John Duncan, Sr., Jimmy Quillen and Robin Beard. Former governor Winfield Dunn is still very much with us, thank God.

It occurred to me I haven't written about Robin Beard before in this column and while he was on my mind, I thought I would give it a go. Robin Beard had every quality that makes a good leader and a great politician; Robin had a very warm personality, a probing intelligence and plenty of courage. Robin was one of the most personable officeholders I've ever come across; Robin Beard's liking of people was genuine and he had a knack for making friends. Robin was full of life and a fine public servant," Senator Lamar Alexander remembered following Beard's passing in 2007.

It was Winfield Dunn who gave Robin Beard his real start in politics. A graduate of Montgomery Bell Academy and Vanderbilt University, Robin was in the Marine Corps Reserve, where he rose to the rank of Colonel. Robin Beard was barely thirty-one years old when Winfield Dunn, the first Republican to be elected governor of Tennessee in fifty years, named him as Personnel Commissioner for the Volunteer State. Young, engaging, energetic and photogenic, Beard began eveing a race for Congress in 1972. It was a difficult year for Democrats in Tennessee who were anything but enthused about the presidential candidacy of Senator George McGovern of South Dakota. It was readily apparent President Richard Nixon would carry Tennessee easily in 1972; in fact, whenever Nixon was on the GOP national ticket, Tennessee fell into the Republican column in 1952, 1956, 1960 and 1968. Robin Beard decided to run for Congress from the newly redrawn Sixth Congressional District, a sprawling affair that ran from the Nashville suburbs to those of Memphis. The incumbent was William Anderson, former Captain of the submarine Nautilus. Anderson had veered considerably to the left while in Congress and Robin Beard won the general election with 55% of the vote to Anderson's 43%. The Shelby County precincts made the difference, giving Beard

26,692 votes to only 6,531

for Congressman Anderson.

Still, Robin Beard carried

some counties which had never voted for a Republican to represent them in Congress before;

Beard won Pulaski County,

McNairy, Chester, Hardin,

Henderson, Wayne and his

Hardeman,

own Williamson.

1972 was the height of the Republican success in Tennessee's modern history with the GOP holding the governor's office, both seats in the United States Senate, and five out of ten seats in the U.S. House of Representatives. Robin Beard was thirty-three years old when he first won a seat in Congress and was the first Republican elected since Reconstruction to represent his district.

The young congressman quickly became known as the kind of representative who moved regularly throughout the large Sixth and his office developed a well-deserved reputation for constituent service, oftentimes a determining factor in the length of a congressman's career, especially in Tennessee. Beard's personality, sincerity and commitment to the people of his district made him highly popular inside his own 1974 was as bad a year for Republicans as 1972 had been good for most GOP candidates, yet Robin Beard turned back a serious challenge from Tim Schaeffer and managed to increase his percentage from two years earlier. Nor did the Democrats give up on trying to oust Congressman Beard, with President Gerald Ford for the GOP nomination. I followed my heart and was strong for Reagan while my friend Randy Boyd was for Ford. I well remember Reagan coming to Howard Baker's hometown of Huntsville with his wife Nancy to campaign. That was the first time I ever shook Ronald Reagan's hand. Gerald Ultimately, Ford narrowly won the Republican presidential nomination and fought a nip and tuck battle with Jimmy Carter, who campaigned as a Washington outsider. The big race in Tennessee that year was Senator Bill Brock's reelection campaign. There were thousands of Democrats in Tennessee who fiercely resented Brock having defeated incumbent Albert Gore, Sr. in 1970. The race for the United States Senate in 1976 was something of a grudge match between Brock and Democratic nominee Jim Sasser, a former state chair of Tennessee's Democratic Party who had upset 1970 gubernatorial nominee John Jay Hooker in the primary. Brock, a superb organizer, figured if he won 100,000 more votes than he had in 1970, he would win. Senator Brock

Congressional District of his showing in 1970 but still lost the Senate race to Sasser by a 53%-47% margin. Tennessee was Jimmy Carter's secondbest state in the nation after his own native Georgia. Democrats ran as strong a ticket as they possibly could in most of Tennessee's congressional districts and thought they had an excellent nominee congressional district. in the Sixth Congressional District. Former United States Senator Ross Bass was making a political comeback with his bid to reclaim a seat in the House of Representatives against Congressman Robin Beard. "Carter - Sasser - Bass" buttons flooded the Sixth District, which Bass had represented in Congress from 1955 to 1965 when whom they recognized as a he had been elected to fill likely future contender for out the last two years of the statewide office. 1976 was late Estes Kefauver's term. the year of Jimmy Carter Ross Bass had defeated in Tennessee. Ronald GOP nominee Howard primary to Frank Clement with the aid of tens of thousands of Republicans who crossed over to vote for the governor. More than twenty years later, Bass told me it had been Republicans crossing over into the Democratic primary that had led to his defeat. Bass was an old hand at campaigning and had demonstrated his strength inside the Sixth Congressional District by turning back a determined bid by his successor in the House, Pat Sutton, after Sutton's failed Senate race in 1954. Bass beat Sutton badly in the 1956 Democratic primary and twenty years later, the two faced off once again in the 1976 primary. Bass easily dispatched Sutton and gamely ran as hard as he could in the Sixth District. The district had changed considerably and a decade is a very long time in politics and there were a large number of residents who didn't know the former senator. There were also a large number of constituents who found no fault with their congressman, even if he was a Republican.

As Gerald Ford and Bill

Brock lost the Sixth

Congressional District,

Robin Beard was carrying it with quite nearly 65% of the vote.

The 1976 election finally convinced Tennessee Democrats Robin Beard's election in 1972 had not been a mere fluke or political accident. Beard won almost 75% of the vote in his 1978 reelection campaign and Democrats did not even bother to field a candidate in 1980.

In 1982, Congressman Robin Beard announced he would run against Senator Jim Sasser, who was seeking reelection. Tennessee Republicans were energized by Beard's race and highly optimistic about his chances of success. The race drew national attention, not because of the intensity of the Sasser - Beard race, but rather because of the congressman's advertising campaign. I can still remember those campaign commercials, one of which featured an Castro lighting a huge cigar with a bill and drawling, "Muchas gracias, Senor Sasser." Yet perhaps the best-remembered TV ad from the 1982 Senate race involved a wind-up mouse, which did somersaults as an announcer discussed the record of "flippin' Jimmy" Sasser. The ad drew quite a lot of attention, but unfortunately, the most of it was negative. The Nashville Banner was still likely the most daily conservative newspaper in Tennessee at the time and it had endorsed Beard's senatorial candidacy. Due to the harshness of the Beard campaign commercials, the Banner cited them as the reason it withdrew its endorsement of his candidacy. Sasser won an astonishing victory, while Beard polled just over 38% of the vote as Lamar Alexander was winning reelection to the governor's office. Beard said of his losing bid for the Senate, "The worst and most difficult thing was the next morning going out to the airport. I just wanted to hide. I just wanted for somebody to put me in a Federal Express bag and send me back up - - - or maybe a body bag would have been more appropriate." Worried about how he would pay off a $150,000 campaign debt, Beard turned down two different offers of jobs from the Reagan administration. Eventually, Robin Beard did accept a job as the highest-ranking civilian at NATO in Brussels. With the perspective of time, Robin Beard later said his losing the Senate race in 1982 Reagan waged a close and Baker in 1964, only to actor made up to look was the best thing that oftentimes bitter contest lose the 1966 Democratic like Cuban dictator Fidel ever happened to him, as memories of Robin Beard it allowed him an entirely new and fulfilling career as well as to place a renewed focus upon his family. After his second stint with NATO, Robin became a vice president with the Hughes Electronics Corporation as well as the chairman of its European division. The former congressman became affiliated with Raytheon, a defense contractor where Beard was the head of efforts to market the company's products to Europe, Israel and Africa.

School Board (along with another former GOP congressman, Arthur Ravenel) when he was diagnosed with brain cancer. Beard doggedly continued his campaign as he received treatment for cancer. Robin Beard slipped away at his home at age sixty-seven on June 16, 2007.

Former governor Winfield Dunn who had made Robin Beard the youngest member of his cabinet, lamented Beard's passing with his usual graciousness and eloquence, noting his sorrow "that such a vigorous, enthusiastic and patriotic human would lose his life at a very productive age." Justin Wilson, who not so long ago retired as Tennessee's Comptroller, had helped to organize Robin Beard's first campaign for Congress in 1972, simply recalled, 'Robin was fun." Most folks seem to think of politicians very differently from any individual who might be fun; in fact, it seems to me most people would classify politicians as about as much fun as the average mortician or accountant. Wilson shared some of his recollections of Robin Beard with a reporter for the Nashville Post: "Kids loved to be around him. Normally boring campaign events like bus tours, became happenings. Back when he was in Congress, most representatives had offices that were kind of dour places. In his office, there was always laughter. No matter how your day had gone, if you were around him more than five beliefs. Justin Wilson's perfectly summarize my own recollections of the late congressman. Robin knew exactly how to make any visitor feel important, which is a quality young people especially prize in a person. Today's politically active folks ought to try more of that same thing with younger folks who are interested in public service.

As I write this and my mind of full of encounters with Robin Beard, it still seems impossible to me that he is gone. Robin Beard was a man of such vitality that he exemplified a person who not only made the most of his life and opportunities but also one who lived and loved every moment of it. That seems to me the very definition of a life well-lived.

Central, Karns celebrate 50th anniversary of marathon tournament game

By Ken Lay

The Central High School-Karns High School baseball rivalry is one of Knoxville's oldest and it has deep roots. The Bobcats and Beavers have been league rivals for years.

Thus, they have played numerous times over the years and have had some memorable showdowns.

In fact, the two teams split a District 3-4A homeand-home series last week as the 2022 season is now in full swing.

The Beavers won the series opener on Monday, April, 11 as they outlasted the Bobcats, 8-6, at Bud Bales Field at Tommy Schumpert Park. Two days later, Central prevailed, 5-1, at Karns High's Chief Dwight Smith Field.

Before the series opener last Monday, the Bobcats and Beavers commemorated a memorable District 4 Tournament game between the two longtime rivals, played nearly five decades ago.

In May 1972, the Bobcats played a classic game that lasted 17 innings. It spread into two days as a rain delay forced the game suspended on Saturday, May 19. Play was before being concluded on a Sunday at Fountain City Ballpark.

The Beavers and Bobcats were locked in a 0-0 tie until Central took a 1-0 lead in the 17th inning.

Former Central pitcher Bill Huskisson throws out the ceremonial first pitch before the Karns-Central baseball last week at Tommy Schumpert Park. Huskisson and the Beavers' Bill Butler were the starting pitchers in a 17-inning game in the district tournament in 1972. Huskisson threw a complete game in the Bobcats' 4-0 victory.

Central would go on to win, 4-0. The following year, the Bobcats would win a state championship.

But the 1972 game was memorable, not only due to its length or the weath-mound, he had a hand in the winning run.

He said that he had trouble sleeping after the game was halted.

"We played four innings the first night and we had a weather delay," Huskisson recalled. "I had a 3-2 count and they had the bases loaded, so I had to worry about that all night."

Many former Central players were on hand for the celebration along with Morgan and former Bobcats' coach Tommy Schumpert.

Former Bobcat Stan Loy Huskisson not only said he played summer baseball with Butler.

"We stayed friends until Bill got married and moved to Nashville," Loy said. "We played together in the summer and played in the Mickey Mantle World Series."

Karns opens big lead, hangs on to edge Bobcats

By Ken Lay

Karns High School has had its share of struggles on the baseball diamond in 2022.

The Beavers, however, notched a crucial District 3-4 victory over Central on Monday, April 11.

But it wasn't easy as Karns edged the Bobcats 8-6 on Bud Bales Field at Tommy Shumpert Park. The Beavers appeared to have firm control of the game until Central's last at-bat in the bottom of the seventh inning.

The Beavers (10-10-1 overall, 3-5 in the district) had an 8-0 lead before Central (7-10, 4-3) scored six runs and nearly pulled off a monumental comeback as things nearly came unraveled for the Beavers.

Bearden snaps long losing streak in Kingston Pike rivalry

West, 87, traces his sportswriting bona fides to his sophomore year at the University of Tennessee, where he was sports editor of the school newspaper, then called the Orange and White.

One of his claims to fame, other than making $25 a week, came Sept. 25, 1954, in the press box at Crump Stadium in Memphis, where the Vols were in town to play Mississippi State. A Tennessee tailback wearing No. 45 ended up in the backfield and scored a touchdown. Media types wanted to know: "Who was ing from either Huntland or Lynchburg, each small town claiming him as one of their own. Career paths were thus launched... for John Majors and for Marvin

On graduating, Marvin went to work at the Knoxville News-Sentinel. His salary was $55 weekly. He spent 30 years covering the sports scene, mainly at the University of Tennessee, before being named sports editor in 1980. He became managing editor in 1983. In 1985, Scripps-How-

He was present under the upper deck at Candlestick Park in San Francisco in an auxiliary press box during the 1989 World Series earthquake (Oct. 17, 1989, at 5:04 p.m.). That experience led to a column ("an unusual one," he termed it) titled, "What a Man Thinks When He Thinks He Is Going to youth basketball camp and visit family and friends.

I covered the Austin-East High team when Elston led the Roadrunners to Knoxville's first state basketball championship in 1977. He played for TSSAA Hall of Fame coach Clifford Ross, who stressed the defensive part of the game. That no doubt made a lasting impression on Turner.

Despite his outstanding prep career and being MVP in the state tourney, Elston was not recruited by UT. He handled that by going on to star at Ole Miss and made the Vols pay for their mistake time and time again in SEC play. The 6-5 shooting guard / small forward also led the Rebels to their first-ever NCAA tournament second round of the 1981 NBA draft and played eight seasons with the Dallas Mavericks, Denver Nuggets and Chicago Bulls. His first assistant coaching position in the NBA was with the Portland Trail Blazers from 1996 a head coaching position in May of 2008 and was interviewed but ultimately was not hired. The following year he was one of three finalists for the Minnesota job, which ended up going to Los Angeles Lakers assistant twice for the Phoenix Suns' post

In 2010, Turner applied for head posts with the Philadelphia 76ers and Chicago Bulls, but those jobs were filled by Doug Collins and Tim Thibodeau,

After being hired in 2011 as a defensive coordinator for Phoenix, Turner was one of four candidates for the Portland head coaching position in 2012.

Turner returned to the Houston Rockets in 2019 as a lead assistant with a focus on running Turner made his first attempt at defense. He was hired by Minnesota last August. It's been 10 years since Elston has thrown his hat in the ring. It's not likely he will do that again, but he would pick up the phone and gladly listen if a team owner called needing a head coach. And the chances of that happening could increase if the Timberwolves advance in the play-

Believe me, I'm not the only one in Knoxville who would love for Elston to get that call.

HOLSTON HILLS

Welcome to the Holston Hills Trail, established in 1956. Here, native dogwood trees abound! In recent years, many specimen trees have been added by the Garden Club of Holston Hills. This neighborhood features numerous beautifully designed gardens and homes of varying styles set on large lots. Look for dogwoods, various specimen trees, azaleas, rhododendrons, large oaks, poplars, maples and hickory trees, woodland gardens, and beds with drifts of tulips and daffodils.

The pink lines on Chilhowee Drive take you to a fourway stop and thru the recently restored 90-year old stone entrance pillars to Holston Hills. The pillars are made of white and pink Tennessee marble, with slate roofs. They were designed by Barber and McMurry Architects to reflect the early stone homes and golf course built in 1925. The golf course was designed by Donald Ross who is widely held in esteem as the best architect of golf courses in the world.

As you travel the neighborhood, enjoy abundant dogwoods, both native and kousa, magnificent azaleas, old growth trees, shade rock gardens and homes in a variety of styles dating back to the 1930s.

Since its opening in the late 1950s, Holston Hills Community Park has undergone many phases of development. Most recently added are new beds in the lower part of the Park, dogwoods, crepe myrtles, magnolias, and a fountain. Neighbors and friends of the Park have also donated commemorative stones and benches. Come take a seat on one of these benches, stroll around the grounds, and enjoy views of the Holston Hills Golf Course. Be sure to watch for the lovely brick 1930s home of Dr. Jimmy Milan on Green Valley Dr. and stop in to visit his Open Garden. The house features 'clinker' brick and a lovely garden with outdoor pergola and fireplace. This street also features a number of stone and pink marble homes built in the 1930s and 1940s that are nestled among 1950s-60s brick colonials, ranch-style, and modern homes. Along the trail at 1514 Cliffside Lane, you will see the ommunity's oldest home which was built in 1925. Enjoy the beautiful surrounding homes including large stone and marble homes with lovely gardens, a southern colonial and a Gothic brick house all from the 1920s. The grandeur of the Westmoreland Dogwood Trail, established in 1957, attracts many to its quiet wooded lanes. This historic neighborhood dates back to the early 1920's when property owners built the 'Waterwheel' to provide electricity and water to its residents. The Tudor Revival Style Waterwheel and Gatepost, designed by Charles Barber, are on the National Historic Register and provide a beautiful welcome to this charming neighborhood. The trail showcases over 10 miles of gorgeous blooming landscapes and estate properties.

2022 DOGWOOD ARTS

SEQUOYAH HILLS

Knoxville's first dogwood trail was establish in Sequoyah Hills in 1955 and includes some of the city's most beautiful scenic landscapes. The trail begins on Cherokee Boulevard, which was named for the Native American tribal lands that became Knoxville. Many of the streets throughout the neighborhood have names inspired by the prehistoric, Woodlands-era culture, such as Iskagna, Agawela, Keowee, Taliluna, and Tugaloo and a 1,000-year-old earthen mound rises in the median of Cherokee Boulevard.

features were built, including gateposts at eithe end of Cherokee Blvd, two fountains (Sunshine Fountain and Panther Fountain), stone benche and Papoose Park. Cherokee motifs decorate these features, suggesting inspiration from both Cherokee folklore and the Art Deco movement. These early improvements endured as a hallmark of the area and are now listed on the National Register of Historic Places. In the springtime, the neighborhood rolls out the pink carpet with abundant flowering dogwoods, spectacular landscapes, and a line of ancient cherry trees along the boulevard which is a popular trail for walkers and runners.
