Early voting numbers down a bit in county primary

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

Knox County voters cast 21,807 ballots as of the closing of early voting Thursday evening; the most voting came on the last day when the polls stayed open until 7 p.m. Election administrator Chris Davis said Friday the total number of votes was down about 6,000 from four years ago. In that race there were three main candidates for the Republican choice for Knox County Mayor. This year Mayor Glenn Jacobs is running unopposed for the Republican nod. There are three Democratic challengers, Bob

Fisher, Tyler Givens and Debbie Hensley, hoping to be chosen to oppose Jacobs in August. But most of the attention in early voting seems to be spurred by the Republican races and particularly the race for Knox County Sheriff. Given no Democratic opponent which ever candidates wins the nomination will be the sheriff. The turnout for the Republican Primary as 17,358 or better than 4-1 over the Democratic Primary's 4,449. Total turnout was heaviest in Downtown West with 4,429 voters followed by Farragut with 3,484, Halls with 2,644, New Harvest

Park with 2,576. The EXPO Center saw 1,860 voters and Karns had 1,731 people voting. The South precinct had 1,312 voters, the City County Building saw 1,177 voters, Carter, 669, and Eternal Life Church had 569 votes cast.

Paul Noel to be next Knoxville Chief of Police

Last Thursday, Mayor Indya Kincannon introduced Paul Noel as Knoxville's next Chief of Police. Noel is a 25 year-plus police veteran and currently serves as deputy superintendent of the New Orleans Police Department. "This is the most important hire I will make for the people of Knoxville and I am confident we have the best fit for our city," said Mayor Kincannon. "Paul is passionate about serving and believes transparency, accountability, and accessibility are key to being an effective leader." Noel told reporters, "I am excited to get started and to help make sure Knoxville is a safe place to live, work, and to raise our families." Noel attended Loyola University New Orleans, where he earned both his Bachelor's and Master's degrees. He is an avid outdoorsman, and he and his wife are proud parents of 2 children. His first day on the job will be June 13, 2022. Mayor Kincannon has appointed KPD Deputy Chief Mark Fortner as acting chief, in the interim.

Keep Knoxville Beautiful honors Dailey

Commissioner Carson Dailey of South Knox County's District 9 has been honored as Keep Knoxville Beautiful's Felicia Award winner. The award is given to an individual who has worked for many years to promote a cleaner, greener or more beautiful Knoxville and is named in homage to long-time community leader and volunteer Felicia Harris Hoehne. Dailey has been actively fighting litter and roadside dumping for 39 years and his goal is to ensure property development through county regulations while maintaining the natural beauty and integrity in the county. The Felicia Award is part of the Orchid Awards presented every April since 1979. Six winners are named in New Commissioner Carson Dailey stands in the middle of a huge roadside trash dump on Twin Creek Road. He worked out the details to clean up the dump, post signs, and became known as the commission's trash and litter advocate.

Architecture, Redesign/Reuse, Outdoor Space, Community Space, Public Art and Regreening. Dailey is well known as the advocate for trash control in the county and was instrumental in establishing a Knox County Environmental Officer. He spearheaded clean ups of roadside dumps, posting litter signs, and putting some teeth in enforcing litter ordinances. "My grandson is five and when we go out walking he's picking up litter.

We've got to educate first because we can enforce ourselves to death but that's not going to solve the problem," Dailey said. "It all begins with education and that's what Keep Knoxville Beautiful does," he said. "The five year olds will remember that—if you instill it into them—when they're forty. "There's not a day that goes by that I do not stop and pick up litter. If each of us would pick up 15 pieces we would have no litter."

John Marshall appointed to sheriff's merit council

Chris Manning appointed as alternate

John Marshall has called out procedural problems as the non-voting alternate member of the Merit System Council. Last week the Knox County Commission chose him to become the council's third voting member, replacing exiting member Jim Jennings in that group.

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

The former alternate member of the Knox County Sheriff Office's Merit System Council was chosen from six applicants to be the new voting member of the three-person council. John Marshall replaces Jim Jennings whose term expired April 30. The Knox County Commission voted in their regular meeting last week and also selected

Christopher J. Manning as the new alternate member, filling the seat Marshall left. The two new members join Jim Wright Jr. and Gina Oster, who serves as chair for the three-person council. Oster is running for an at-large seat on the Knox County Commission and, if elected in August, must resign from the merit council. Marshall and Manning became the two top candidates after rounds of voting and Marshall got six votes from

Commissioners John Schoonmaker, Charles Busler, Richie Beeler, Carson Dailey and Larsen Jay. The other commissioners, except Dasha Lundy, voted for Manning. She voted for De'Ossie Dingus. Manning became the obvious choice for the alternate position, which does not vote in the merit council proceedings, and the commission ended up voting 10-1 for him with Lundy again voting for Dingus. Oster, Jennings and Wright have voted in lock step against the sheriff's office. Although Marshall had spoken up and called out the procedural violations of the voting members, his voice as a voting member on the council may not change the majority unless Oster wins her bid for election to the commission or she resigns. In a related action the commission took up a motion by Commissioners Busler and Dailey to adopt the "County Sheriff's Civil Service Law of 1974" which would make the merit council fully legal. Past commissions never adopted the required state law and the merit council has been serving without authority according to

GOP should not celebrate too soon

From a distance

By John J. Duncan Jr.
duncanj@knoxfocus.com

The Biden Administration has gone so far to the left that they have messed up about everything they have touched so far.

What a record: high gas prices, highest inflation in 47 years, illegal aliens flooding in at record levels, record murder rates and outbreaks of crime, gifts to Big Pharma and radical environmentalists.

People are fleeing the Democrat-run cities and states, trying desperately to get out just as fast as they can.

All the polls show that if the elections were held today, Republicans would make big gains and probably take control of both the House and Senate. But that is the biggest if in the world, because the elections are not until Nov. 8, some 6 1/2 months from now.

Don't misunderstand me. I am very pleased that the polls look so good for my party. However, I believe it would be a bad mistake to celebrate too soon.

I have always believed that candidates should always run scared and never take any voter or any election for granted.

I have seen, heard, and read about many elections that have turned and been won or lost in the last few days or weeks.

I will never forget the midterm elections in 1990. All the polls showed that Republicans were going to pick up 20 or 30 seats in the U.S. House.

Then, just a little over three weeks before the election, the first George Bush went back on his no new taxes pledge and supported a big tax increase.

Ed Rollins, the head of the National Republican

Congressional Committee, headed a panicky late-night meeting in the Cannon Caucus Room across the street from the Capitol. He told us that Republican candidates had dropped by 10 points overnight. That doesn't sound like much, but what it means if you were ahead 60-40, suddenly you are tied, and if you were ahead 55-45, suddenly you are behind by that much.

Instead of adding 20 or 30 seats like the polls had predicted, Republicans lost nine seats, going down from 175 to 166 members in the House. This was a swing of 30 to 40 seats in favor of the Democrats based on the earlier polls.

Rep. Dana Rohrabacher, who came to Congress when I did, won his primary in the last week when it came out that the woman who had been in the lead had falsified her college degree.

Rep. Steve Largent, the football star, lost a close race for governor in Oklahoma that polls showed he had been leading the entire time.

Rep. Eric Cantor, who was the second highest Republican in the House, lost his primary the day after his pollster had told him he was more than 30 points ahead.

I could give many more examples of this with probably the biggest upset in American History being Harry Truman's win over Thomas Dewey in 1948.

I am optimistic about Republican chances this fall because the great majority of the time polls even six months out are fairly accurate.

Also, Biden has to placate far left extremists like Elizabeth Warren, Bernie Sanders, and the so-called "Squad" who want him to go even further to the left.

Unfortunately, there are no conservative Democrats in Congress today. If the national media was honest and accurate, the Democratic Party would be called the Socialist Party.

The French election and the international revolt against the ruling 'élites'

The latest French election shows voter discontent with the establishment. The incumbent was primarily challenged by the same far right candidate that was soundly vanquished in the last election. However, this year, the election was closer than predicted with the ruling party garnering less than 50% of the vote dictating a second round runoff. The challenger's party was openly racist and pro-Nazi when it was founded with its sole issue being the massive immigration of Muslims into France. Today its rhetoric is softer. The party now speaks of

By Dr. Harold A. Black
blackh@knoxfocus.com

independence from the European Union, the removal of French forces from the command of NATO and amending the French constitution to limit immigration.

In last week's runoff, the opposition party ended up with less than 50 percent of the vote but the French discontent was still evident. It is almost identical to the discontent with the Biden Administration. The Wall Street Journal called the discontent a "cultural alienation from a progressive hegemony in the West's academic, media and artistic institutions" and "resistance to the new religion of universal climate change compliance with its costly implications for energy customers and seething fury with the little autocrats in government and health bureaucracies decreeing lockdowns, masks and vaccine mandates. ... "underlying it all, righteous indignation at the arrogance of unaccountable elites who dismiss opposition to their authority as the product of bigotry and ignorance and denounce anyone displaying it as a traitor or a domestic terrorist." Sound familiar?

The incumbent, Emmanuel Macron won but acknowledged that many voted for him as the lesser of two evils. A few on the American Left have said that if Macron could be re-elected with his low popularity, then there is hope for Biden. I am no expert on the sagacity of French leadership but Macron is no Joe Biden. Here our problems are compounded by the ineptitude of our leadership. We, too, must endure the left's obsession over climate change, open borders and Covid mandates. Add to that Afghanistan, gender identity, transgender athletes, Critical Race Theory, the woke military, inflation, shutting down pipelines, shackling oil and gas, the 'Build Back Better' fiasco, the surge in crime and the war on parents where the attorney general was investigating parents attending PTA meetings as domestic terrorists.

The difference between the French election and our forthcoming election is that the opposition is projected to win. If Republicans win both the House and the Senate, then Biden will try to enact his changes through edict – something that the progressives in Congress have been urging all along. No Biden budget would pass both Houses. No radical progressive would be confirmed by the Senate. Republicans would have the power to effectively shut down the Biden agenda and throttle back actions taken by those in the administration who think that climate change is the "existential crisis of our time." I find it remarkable that so much damage has been done to our economy and our national psyche in so short a time.

We are confronted with elected officials who want to severely curtail our freedoms, re-write the Constitution, pack the Supreme Court, eliminate the Electoral College, abolish the Senate, cancel our culture, muzzle free speech and annul the second amendment. We take to heart the words of Abraham Lincoln: "Our safety, our liberty, depends upon preserving the Constitution of the United States as our fathers made it inviolate. The people of the United States are the rightful masters of both Congress and the courts, not to overthrow the Constitution, but to overthrow the men who pervert the Constitution." Amen.

Deputy Law Director Mike Moyers told the Knox County Commission that one of the applicants for the merit council, Timothy Riddle, could not serve because he has a relative who works for the Knox County Sheriff's Office. Moyers corrected an opinion he gave at the recent commission work session meeting where seven applicants spoke and were interviewed.

John Marshall appointed to sheriff's merit council

The proposed ordinance would adopt several changes for the council and the first reading of adoption was postponed on a motion by Commissioner Courtney Durrett. She moved to delay a vote on the idea for one month, saying there hasn't been enough time to read the state law.

Dailey suggested a work session on adopting the ordinance and agreed with Durrett that a closer look of the proposal is needed. He suggested that the merit council's attorney, the law director's office and the commission meet in the work session to go over the proposal.

Deputy Law Director Michael Moyers said the proposal would legalize the merit council and keep its members and staff intact.

Tax and Spend Kincannon

For the better part of a year, I have been predicting Mayor Indya Kincannon would propose a property tax increase. Lo and behold, it has come to pass. Kincannon is proposing a 20% tax increase in the midst of the worst inflation since the Second World War. Kincannon and her fellow Democrats like to talk about spending tax dollars on the poor, yet seem never to think about working people and working families. She and her kind provide ample pay and benefits for bureaucrats while thinking nothing of the people whose mortgages and rents will go up so Kincannon can continue to spend money. Those same people working hard (and sometimes more than one job) are not paid as she and her husband are handsomely compensated by the University of Tennessee and the City of Knoxville; in short, by the very people whose taxes she is raising.

That same inflation has affected the housing market, which has, as a consequence, driven up the prices of homes substantially. Those same escalating prices are reflected in the property assessments that have just been sent out all across the county.

During last year's city council campaigns, some incumbents, most notably Tommy Smith, bragged about how the City's finances were superbly well managed. Of course, after the election, it came to light the City of Knoxville has been spending more money than it takes in, which doesn't seem to be very superbly well managed to anybody outside of government.

The same council members who loudly exclaimed the City is so very well managed will be among those who rubber-stamp Kincannon's tax increase.

Among those who sat and applauded as Kincannon made her announcement were most of those Democrats running for county offices this August. The last property tax increase in Knox County was more than 20 years ago; the last property tax increase in the City of Knoxville was five years ago and solely to pay for the defined benefit retirement packages of city employees.

County voters need to remember that when considering the general election campaign in Knox County next August.

This Tree Doesn't Fork

A week or so ago, Elaine Davis, vice chair of the Knox County Republican Party and candidate for the Tennessee House of Representatives, was escorted through the Cordell Hull Building, home to the members of the General Assembly, by Drew Loneragan. Readers are likely wondering at this point, who in the world is Drew Loneragan? Well, Drew is one of the four original partners in the notorious Angle Group; the other three were Justin Mash, Allie Jeffries and Daniel Herrera. Jeffries was the campaign manager of prospective candidate Christine Cruz, Randy Pace's hand-picked choice as chair of the Knox County Republican Party's Credentials Committee. Ms. Cruz, at the time selected by Pace, had lived in Knox County all of about ten minutes and had never voted in a Knox County

GOP primary. Cruz was also Pace's choice, along with Daniel Herrera, to challenge incumbent County Commissioner Larsen Jay. Mash and Jeffries later married and Herrera was a member of the wedding party. Loneragan is jack-of-all-trades apparently and peddles his wares as a political strategist. Apparently, the only candidate to avail himself of the yet-to-be-tested mettle of the Angle Group is Deno Cole, seeking a judgeship. Cole has paid a hefty fee to the Angle Group and the lawyer seems to be the only candidate in the state of Tennessee to have his campaign managed by the wonderkinds.

Herrera has told Scott Golden, chair of the Tennessee Republican Party, that he has divested himself of whatever interest he had in the Angle Group. To my knowledge, there has never been any proof provided that is the case; Herrera did tell the Knoxville News-Sentinel he accepted a payment of perhaps $2,000 or so from the Angle Group before divesting himself of his interest.

Davis having been escorted through the halls of the legislature by Drew Loneragan is likely no coincidence and her campaign manager is Erik Wiatr, who guided her to defeat against Representative Gloria Johnson two years ago. It seems pretty obvious the tree doesn't fork with these folks.

Washington Liberalism Comes To Knoxville

Debbie Helsley, a candidate for the Democrat nomination for Knox County Mayor, is trumpeting her endorsement by the Communications Workers of America. Of course, Helsley headed the local union of the CWA for years and their endorsement of her is something akin to a candidate being endorsed by her Mom, not much of a surprise.

Helsley was one of those in the audience clapping while Indya announced she intended to raise property taxes in the City of Knoxville. Helsley's campaign recently announced her "bold" climate change agenda for Knox County, which is just what folks were waiting for instead of worrying about gas prices and the extra money they are shelling out for food. Don't you know the streets and boulevards will be positively lined with people applauding when Greta Thunberg gets here to host a fundraising dance party for Debbie in a few weeks?

Missing Mikey

It is impossible to describe just how much his friends and family miss Michael "Mikey" Smith. A stalwart of the Eighth District Republican Club and other service organizations, Mikey was one of those folks who shunned the limelight but made up the backbone of any group in which he participated. Mikey worked hard, paid his taxes, and truly loved his family and friends; Mikey loved his country, his community, the Republican Party and his God.

Like so many others, Mikey was carried away by the COVID virus and he is missed so terribly by his many friends in East Knox County particularly.

Mikey's granddaughter Alexis is about to give birth at any moment to a baby boy, whom she intends to name for her grandfather. Nobody would have been more proud than Mikey. It is indeed a reminder of the circle of life and in that new precious life will be Mikey Smith's legacy of love living on still.

The Knoxville Focus family prays that the Lord will shower His blessings on the newest arrival in Mikey Smith's family with every good thing.

Knoxville City Council to begin review of Mayor Kincannon's budget Tuesday

Increased property appraisals, city taxes may squeeze homeowners

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

The operating budget for the city of Knoxville must be approved before the new fiscal year starts on July 1. On Tuesday the Knoxville City Council takes up the 2022-2023 budget presented by the mayor which calls for a 50¢ tax increase per $100 dollars in assessed value.

That may mean another increase in property taxes for Knoxville residents given the re-evaluation of home values by the Knox County Trustee's office.

While residents with a 40% or less increased value of their homes are told by the county they will not pay any more than this past year, city residents fall under that same appraised value.

That takes the new real estate tax to $2.9638 per $100 of assessed real estate value. Overall the budget could be approved at $546 million, an 8.7% increase, and would include increased salaries and a $15 starting hourly salary for new city employees.

So some city property owners may get hit twice if the council approves Mayor

Indya Kincannon's budget: one-half dollar for every $100 in appraised value plus an increased appraisal if the property increased in value by more than 40%.

While both the city and the county contend that all is well financially with both bodies, the increase will add even more money to their available budgets.

There appears to be some opposition within the council to the tax increase. Councilwoman Janet Testerman, who is seeking the Republican Primary selection to replace state Representative Eddie Mannis, has said she may oppose the increase.

The council is being asked, on first vote, to approve amending the current operating and Capital Budget, approve the 2023 budget, and approve the levy of taxes on all taxable properties, personal and mixed, within the city limits.

The first of two readings of the budget is generally a formality and the matter must be resolved in May or June.

Budget hearings are set for Friday, May 13 in what appears to be a full day of department requests, budget requests and discussions.

Also on the agenda for Tuesday's city council meeting, which also is the county's primary election day, is consideration of a grant from the Transportation Planning Organization for $79,562 for the I-275 Business Park Access improvements with a $15,918 city match.

Duracap Asphalt Paving Company may get a $72,454 boost in its contract in a request from the Department of Engineering, bringing the new agreement to $791,441. The council may also approve applying for $700,000 from the federal government for funding the police department's Forensic Unit for gun crime investigations and $150,000 to the police department to reduce injury, death, etc. for people with dementia and developmental disabilities.

The council may also approve several Weigel's Store applications for wine and beer sales and approve retirements for two city employees.

Three citizens are being recommended for appointments to the Knoxville City Golf Course Advisory Committee and $194,108 from Summer Opportunity Youth Program grants may go to eleven community organizations. The curb cut agreement with Design and Construction Services, Inc. agreement was approved for the curb cut project, upping the total agreement to $618,592.

Red Pill or Blue Pill

To have a good marriage is luck. To have a great marriage requires hard work.

Becky Venable Ferguson

Two are better than one... Though one may be overpowered, two can defend themselves.

A cord of three strands is not easily broken.

Ecclesiastes 4: 9, 12

I am trinitarian philosophically and spiritually. Often, two choices are not enough and four or more choices are too many. I have jokingly told my wife that if we ever appear on the Newlywed Game (it won't happen) always answer "three" for me.

I begin this essay quoting my lovely wife and scripture. These wise observations note that marriage is the best design for life, and a successful marriage requires communication and commitment.

learned two lessons: the secret of braiding hair, and that God's spirit wrapped around partners completes them and makes their marriage strong.

I like movies. One often hears the quip that the movie was not as good as the book. While that may be true in some cases, I would counter that sometimes the movie is better than the book. The two are just different ways of presenting a story. The same goes for reading scripture. If you read aloud to yourself the experience is quite different than hearing scripture. Last year I "reread" the Bible using an app that read scripture aloud to me. Interestingly, Saint Augustine often read scripture silently to himself. His colleagues were shocked to see his lips moving silently because it was customary at that time to have scripture read aloud.

As most of my readers know I am a fan of science-based fiction (aka science fiction). I'm not talking about Flash Gordon shtick or fantasy genres like Harry Potter. There are many genres of science fiction including apocalyptic stories like "The Road Warrior" or sci-fi horror like the movie "Alien," neither of which I like. And though I did not care for the dystopian fiction of the Hunger Games, I loved the book "Fahrenheit 451" by Ray Bradberry.

My recently published novel "MANTIS" is perhaps best classified as one of future history. However, "Mantis" is unique for science fiction because there is a strong spiritual message in my novels. The book is actually a story of revelation and redemption made possible through unique means of communication. It's quite a yarn, but you should not wait for me to be discovered by Hollywood and the movie version! Check out "Mantis" at Amazon or more reliably from my publisher, store. bookbaby.com.

Years ago, friends invited Becky and me to see the "cyberpunk" science fiction movie The Matrix. I'm not a fan of this genre, but I love my friends and Becky was a good sport. I didn't tell our friends that early in our marriage Becky and I came to an understanding regarding cinema. She hates going to the movies because she has difficulty sitting still for more than 15 minutes at a time. As a result, we watch movies together at home where she can roam and I don't have to secure her to a chair with duct tape.

Unfortunately, cinematic trouble ensued during the crucial moment of The Matrix film. When the protagonist is offered the red pill of truth and reality or the blue pill of contented ignorance, Becky turned to me and asked incredulously, "Do you really like this movie?"

Have you ever been in a crowded situation where you spoke up and everyone else all at once became silent? Becky's question rang like a gunshot in the dark and silent theater. Our friends have never invited us to a movie again.

Daily, Americans are confronted with choosing reality, even if it is painful, or remaining in contented ignorance. Metaphorically, it is the red pill or blue pill conundrum because in the current politic there does not seem to be a third choice.

The 19th century philosopher George Hegel developed a form of discourse that became known as the Hegelian dialectic. One party presents a thesis or idea and a second party presents a second idea or antithesis. The parties go back and forth and finally come to a synthesis (compromise) and consequently a new thesis. This conversation is only possible when both parties treat each other with respect and dignity. None of that currently exists in our body politic.

Jesus said that we should not judge or we will be subject to judgment ourselves. However, we make observations and choices daily. To deny what we see, reason or common sense is to swallow the blue pill.

To a certain extent, I can tolerate another person's lunacy, but I will not adopt their delusions. A simple example is the gender identity conundrum. A man is genetically XY and phenotypically a man. A woman is XX and female in form. Of course, there are variations, but I reject the notion that there are 100 genders. Numerous studies have shown that the number of LGBTQ persons is less than 5% of the population.

And in practical terms a man should not compete against a woman in sports because, even if he identifies as a woman, he has an unfair physical advantage. The current lunacy will destroy title nine and women's sports.

I have sympathy for people who have gender dysphoria, but I cannot adopt their nonrational, nonobjective delusion. Perhaps the only possible synthesis is that we agree to disagree. And that's fine. Everyone should be treated with respect and dignity, but I will not accept the tail wagging the dog.

Remembering the co-founder and director of the Knox County Museum of Education

A Celebration of Life Ceremony and reception are planned for Mrs. Benna van Vuuren, one of the co-founders and the only director of the Knox County Museum of Education.

Mrs. van Vuuren passed away on January 17, 2021. Benna was a teacher, principal and administrator for the school systems in Knox County.

In 2005, after realizing there was no single location to visit to obtain historical information about former as well as current schools, personnel and administrators in Knox County, she reached out to former coworkers and current school personnel at that time to garner information she envisioned for an education museum for Knox County. The wheels turned, a location was acquired and the museum first opened in the former board room at Historic Knoxville High School.

The museum has since moved to the former South High School, which is now the Sarah Simpson Professional Development Technology Center, 801 Tipton Avenue, next to Dogwood Elementary School in South Knoxville.

On Friday, May 13, 2022, from 3:00 p.m. until 6:00 p.m., KCME will have the Celebration of Life Ceremony in the library across the hall from the museum.

The ceremony will be brief but comprehensive with short speeches by David Huntsinger, the current board chairperson; Sue Boyer, Benna's longtime friend and co-worker for over 50 years; Roy Mullins, the former school superintendent who was instrumental in providing the original space for the museum; and Michael van Vuuren, Benna's son and former assistant director of KCME.

Light refreshments will be provided. Former board members and volunteers who

A Talk with Tom

Amy walked into my office door and told me not to mark any appointments on Tuesday. When I asked why she explained that a friend had arranged a meeting with Sheriff Tom Spangler. The idea sounded solid since

By Joe Rector
joerector@comcast.net

We'd never met the man and wanted to find out what he thought on several issues before election day. We arrived on time, something that almost always occurs since my OCD requires me to be places early. We waited a few moments until Amy's friend could join us. Soon, we walked into the office of Knox County Sheriff Tom Spangler. To my surprise, he was dressed in a coat and tie instead of a uniform. For some reason, I liked the fact that this man took a professional approach to the job.

We sat and chatted for a bit until all were comfortable. Like a good journalist, or more accurately like an older person who might forget the questions he wanted to ask, I had my notebook and pen out and was ready to go. I learned that the sheriff is the brother of a person whom I admire: Bruce Spangler, CEO of Volunteer Ministry Center. After more small talk, the questions began. They revealed many positive things about the man in office.

Amy asked why anyone would want such a difficult job. Spangler laughed and told my wife that was a good question. Then he said that several factors have gone into the decision. First, he loves Knoxville and its people. A graduate of Carter High School, he is proud to have lived in the area for so many years. His next reason is about the department. Spangler oversees about one thousand employees, and he fights for them. That means he works to secure raises for officers and others so they and their families can afford the daily things of life. He defends his employees when they are in the right and works to correct things when they are in the wrong. His last reason is to continue to work on and complete some of the projects and programs he has introduced since taking office.

The sheriff sees the ever-growing population of Knoxville as an area of concern. Spangler says officers are working with a variety of problems and folks already, and an influx of new residents will only increase the heavy workload that they face. More men and women officers on the streets are needed, but the pool of qualified applicants has dwindled due to covid and salaries.

Believe it or not, the sheriff holds enormous respect for the news media. He knows they have jobs to do, but he says his priorities sometimes conflict with theirs. Spangler says that sometimes he can't share information because an investigation is still underway, and although journalists have deadlines, he can't reveal information that might hurt a case.

In his next term, Sheriff Spangler wants to re-introduce the DARE program to schools. He knows the effectiveness of it and believes it will prevent some future crime problems. He also says the homeless problem is increasing in the area and wants to work with agencies and other associations to find ways to work with individuals to prevent them from becoming entangled in the legal system.

He makes it clear that he isn't a politician. Most important to him is working every day with officers, staff, and the community to make Knox County a good place to raise a family. He enjoys meeting people and finding out what their needs and concerns are. He's learned much from working the polls and contacting people during the campaign.

I didn't know anything about Tom Spangler when I walked into his office. I left impressed. He didn't answer questions like politicians. Instead, he gave thoughtful, plain answers. He's reached the pinnacle of his career and wants another term to finish the plans he has put into action. Tom Spangler treated us with respect and a feeling that he really does care about our county and its safety. I later discovered that any citizen can meet with Sheriff Spangler as we did. His door is always open to citizens. I'm glad I went with my wife to meet the man who has earned my vote.

yet it is one of the most important roles God created. Motherhood.

Mothers often are called on to diversify their time and talents. Children sometimes need them to be a nurse or a seamstress. Many times, they are called on at the last minute to be a baker for a school event or a chauffeur for school activities. Their primary role is often viewed as one of nurturing; and mothers can strongly influence, encourage, and mold their children in ways that may impact them for the rest of their lives. To the single mothers, young mothers, elderly mothers, adoptive mothers, mothers of special needs children, and all mothers everywhere, God bless you for all you do in your role of mother. Because of mothers, our families, our communities, and our country are stronger. As we remember the mothers who have passed on and as we celebrate those mothers still with us, be blessed and have a Happy Mother's Day!

Common Law Marriage in Tennessee

The term "common law marriage" is one you may have heard of at some point. A common law marriage is where two people hold themselves out as married, consider the other

By Jedidiah McKeehan
jed@attorney-knoxville.com

person their spouse, and may even have taken the step of having the same last name. These people have never had a marriage ceremony or obtained a marriage certificate.

In Tennessee, you cannot create or establish a common law marriage. That means that even if you call someone your husband or wife if you only reside in Tennessee while doing so, I am sorry, you are not married to that person who you are calling your spouse.

Tennessee does recognize common law marriages. That means that a couple can establish or create a common law marriage in a state that allows such (Texas is one example), later move to Tennessee, and Tennessee will recognize the common law marriage that the couple started in Texas as a legal marriage.

So can a couple have a common law marriage in Tennessee? Yes, but it must be a marriage that started in a state that allows the creation of such and then that couple later moved to Tennessee after the common law marriage was created.

Tennessee’s Last Speaker

Joseph W. Byrns of Nashville

Pages from the Past

By Ray Hill
rayhill865@gmail.com

Tennessee has produced some remarkable leaders during the history of our country, as well as some rascals. Andrew Jackson, James K. Polk, and Andrew Johnson all served as presidents of our country; Howard Baker and Bill Frist served as Majority Leaders of the United States Senate. Kenneth McKellar was acknowledged to be the single most influential member of the United States Senate during much of the decade of the 1940s. Cordell Hull is the longest-serving Secretary of State in our history.

Only three Tennesseans have wielded the Speaker’s gavel in the House of Representatives. The first Tennessean ever to serve as Speaker of the House in Congress was John Bell, one of the most distinguished sons of the Volunteer State who held numerous public offices within the gift of the people. Bell served as Speaker from 1833 – 1835 and was followed into office by another Tennessean, albeit of a different political party, James K. Polk, who served from 1835 – 1839. The last Tennessean who occupied the Speaker’s chair in the United States House of Representatives was Joseph Wellington Byrns of Nashville.

Tennesseans fared better as the leaders of their political party in the House; Congressman James Daniel Richardson of Murfreesboro was among the earliest Minority Leaders of the U. S. House of Representatives, serving from 1899 – 1903. Finis Garrett, an eloquent West Tennessee congressman was the Minority Leader from 1923 – 1929. Garrett voluntarily left the House to challenge Senator K. D. McKellar for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate in 1928 unsuccessfully. Had Garrett chosen to remain in the House, he very likely would have been Speaker in 1931. A profoundly conservative Democrat, it is interesting to contemplate how things might have been different during Franklin Roosevelt’s New Deal had Finis Garrett sat in the Speaker’s chair.

Joseph W. Byrns had represented Nashville or Tennessee’s “Hermitage District” in Congress since his election in 1904. Byrns proved to be enduringly popular inside his district and he was routinely reelected, which gave him ever-growing seniority. In his own district, Byrns was known as a “non-vacation man”, meaning he worked steadily at his job with few or no hobbies to otherwise occupy his time. Dean of the Tennessee Congressional delegation, Byrns was well known for keeping his office open and when he was away from Washington, D. C., it was usually to speak inside the district of a fellow congressman or a Democratic candidate. Byrns maintained the same schedule when at his home office, seeing anyone who wished to see him and moving around the district constantly during the evenings. Jo Byrns was known for his friendliness as a person and welcomed all his callers with a pleasing informality that made his guests feel comfortable.

Just before he assumed office as the Speaker of the House, Jo Byrns was interviewed by Orland K. Armstrong for the Chattanooga Daily Times. Armstrong marveled Byrns had been reelected, largely without opposition, ever since he went to Congress in 1908. “How do you do it, Mr. Byrns?” Armstrong wondered.

Orland K. Armstrong wrote Byrns looked at him “quizzically” from beneath his “shaggy eyebrows”, shifted “one leg over the other” and ran a hand “over his thinning gray hair” and grinned “a wide, pleasant grin.” “Well, suh, I reckon I’m here because I’ve always tried to tend to business,” Byrns replied. “Never gone galavantin’ round the country on junkets. No, suh! I stay here when congress is in session, and when it ain’t, I get acquainted with the folks again, suh!” A simple, yet effective means for a congressman to represent his own district.

Jo Byrns also had a reputation for having a remarkable memory and the ability to remember names and faces, a God-send to most politicians.

When he first went to Congress, Jo Byrns met with the Speaker at the time, “Uncle Joe” Cannon, a Republican from Illinois. Byrns provided Speaker Cannon with a list of the important House committees he wished to serve upon. The assignment he got from the cantankerous Cannon was the Indian Affairs Committee. “I reckon Speaker Cannon figured since there wasn’t an Indian in the whole state of Tennessee, I could approach the problem with an unbiased attitude,” Byrns said wryly years later.

It was Speaker Champ Clark of Missouri, a Democrat, who gave the lanky Tennessean the committee assignment he hoped for: a seat on the House Appropriations Committee. As chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Byrns was constantly accosted by those wanting money. There were always unceasing cries of “We need this!” “We must have that!” Orland K. Armstrong wrote in his profile of Byrns. Congressman Byrns always said, “Yes, suh! I’ll see about it!” And see about it he did.

The shaggy eyebrows

FROM THE AUTHOR’S PERSONAL COLLECTION.

Joseph W. Byrns, the last Tennessean to serve as Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives.

that so delighted cartoonists came about because of a “joke” played upon Byrns when he was quite young. Evidently, Jo Byrns fell asleep in a barber’s chair and the barber proceeded to shave off his eyebrows. That incident, according to Joe, Jr. “marked him for life.”

When a fusionist movement was attempting a revival in Tennessee, Congressman Jo Byrns in introducing Postmaster General James A. Farley to an audience, cried, “General, you are hearing talk about a fusion movement in Tennessee against the regular Democratic nominees. Don’t let it disturb you. We’ll take these fusionists for a killing in the November election and bury them with their faces down.”

Byrns rose steadily through the ranks of his party, first as chair of the powerful House Appropriations Committee and then Majority Leader under Speaker Henry Rainey of Illinois. When Rainey died suddenly in August of 1934, Jo Byrns was elevated to the Speaker’s chair.

Tall (quite nearly 6’2), lanky with thinning white hair and a magnificently bushy set of black eyebrows, Jo Byrns was well regarded by his colleagues. After all, people skills are quite necessary for folks to rise to leadership positions inside any legislative body whether it be a County Commission, City Council or Congress. Like most congressmen, Joseph W. Byrns had hankered for a seat in the United States Senate. McKellar appeared to be too formidable to challenge, but a seat came open with the death of Lawrence D. Tyson. Cordell Hull almost instantly announced he would be a candidate in the Democratic primary and Byrns, although highly cautious, finally took the plunge. Byrns would have certainly had the backing of his own Davidson County and was encouraged to run by Edward Hull Crump, the leader of the Shelby County political organization. It would have been a nip and tuck race and Byrns had a fair chance of winning. Byrns gave the opening speech of his senatorial campaign and suffered a mild heart attack while making his talk. After a few days of rest, Byrns withdrew from the senatorial campaign and announced he would seek reelection to his seat in the House instead. That placed Jo Byrns on the trajectory to finally become Speaker of the House.

Byrns was sixty-four years old when he climbed atop the Speaker’s dais and took the gavel in hand. Politically secure inside his congressional district, like most every other Democrat in Tennessee, Congressman Byrns was an ardent supporter of President Franklin D. Roosevelt and virtually all of the New Deal. Every Speaker has his/her own style of trying to keep the members of his/her political party together and Byrns was not the sort to browbeat or threaten his brethren. Rather, Jo Byrns asked for help and usually got it. There were some who believed Byrns ought to have employed a more dictatorial style in his approach, but it simply wasn’t the Speaker’s nature. A kindly, thoughtful man, Jo Byrns accomplished his goals through attention to detail and hard work. Byrns had built up a following amongst his fellow Democrats through his chairmanship of the Democratic Campaign Committee for the House of Representatives. Through that committee, Byrns aided countless colleagues and aspiring congressmen in their campaigns and doled out contributions.

Tennesseans were enthused and elated at the notion one of their own would sit in the Speaker’s chair. While lamenting the passing of Speaker Henry T. Rainey, the Chattanooga Dailey Times published an editorial entitled “Byrns for Speaker.” Byrns had declared his candidacy following the passing of Henry Rainey. “My friends understand that I am going to make the race, because they feel and I feel that I am in line for it,” Byrns said. “There is not a shadow of doubt about my election.”

Yet there were others who coveted the exalted position on the Speaker’s dais, all of whom were congressmen from the Southland. Sam Rayburn of Texas - - - who was born in Tennessee - - - was anxious to serve as Speaker, as was William B. Bankhead of Alabama. The last prospective candidate was John E. Rankin of Mississippi, an unabashed racist who made a name for himself as an advocate for veterans. Rayburn, who would eventually become the longest-serving Speaker of the House of Representatives, was disadvantaged by the fact Vice President John Nance Garner, the presiding officer of the United States Senate, was also from Texas.

Byrns had sought to fill the Speaker’s chair when Garner, the previous Speaker, had been elevated to the vice presidency in 1933. It had been a three-way contest between Rainey, Byrns and John McDuffie of Alabama. It was considered a “Battle of the Giants” of the House of Representatives. Byrns had surprised quite nearly everybody when he suddenly withdrew as a candidate for Speaker and threw his support to Henry Rainey. Much of Byrns’s strategy had been the brainchild of Congressman Edward Hull Crump of Memphis. The leader of the Shelby County machine served four years in Congress from 1931 – 1935.

The formal announcement Joseph W. Byrns would run for Speaker of the House to replace the late Henry T. Rainey came on August 24, 1934. That announcement was made by Congressman

Sam D. McReynolds of Chattanooga, a very close friend of Byrns. McReynolds had been the campaign manager for Byrns in the Nashville congressman’s first bid to become Speaker of the House. McReynolds, like every campaign manager, proclaimed Byrns would be elected “by an overwhelming majority.”

“In a long-distance telephone conversation this morning with Representative Joseph W. Byrns at his home in Nashville,” Sam McReynolds told reporters, “he authorized me, as chairman of the Tennessee delegation, to say that he is a candidate for Speaker of the House in the 74th Congress, succeeding the late Speaker Henry T. Rainey.” McReynolds added Byrns was expected to return to the Capitol in a few days and might “have some further statement to make.” From Nashville, Byrns said he had done “absolutely nothing” in the way of campaigning to become Speaker, yet he insisted he was “exceedingly confident” of his election.

While campaigning in Gallatin, Tennessee, Senator K.D. McKellar said to his audience, “I’ll tell you confidentially that he [Byrns] will be the next speaker of the house.”

With the fall elections behind them and as Democrats prepared to return to Washington, D.C. and elect a Speaker, it was all but certain Joseph W. Byrns would achieve his cherished ambition to wield the Speaker’s gavel. When asked what he expected to accomplish as Speaker, Byrns thought for a moment, before saying, “I’ll try to keep the boys workin’ as hard as possible.”

On January 2, 1935, House Democrats met in caucus and selected Joseph W. Byrns of Nashville as their nominee for Speaker of the House. Students at the Stratton School in his district had fashioned a special gavel for the incoming Speaker, made of wood from Andrew Jackson’s Hermitage estate. On January 3, Byrns was formally elected as Speaker of the House, defeating GOP nominee Bertram Snell of New York.

Jo Byrns only served as Speaker for 17 months before dying suddenly on June 4, 1936. President Roosevelt praised the late Speaker as, “Fearless, incorruptible, unselfish, with a high sense of justice, wise in victory” and as one who “served his state and the nation with fidelity, honor and great usefulness.” Byrns is the last Tennessean to serve as Speaker of the U. S. House of Representatives.

Veterans buried in Smoky Mountains to be honored

By Mike Steely
Senior Writer
steelym@knoxfocus.com

No one lives in Cades Cove or much of the Great Smoky Mountains anymore. Scattered through the park are the sites of former homes, a few preserved, and several graveyards.

The Veterans Heritage Site Foundation wants to draw attention to those graves of veterans there and is planning an "Honor our Great Smoky Mountain Veterans Day" at the Heritage Center in Townsend.

The June 11th event starts at 11 a.m. and Blount County veterans' graves will be noted and honored.

"Two Revolutionary War Veterans, Henry Bohanan and William Hamb, will be recognized along with 12 Korean War veterans buried in the park with another 14 possible veteran graves," said Marilyn Childress, foundation president.

"We will also recognize the families of those veterans and have reached out to local Korean War veterans for special recognition," she said.

With the help of the Sons of the American Revolutionary War, the Appalachian DAR District, the American Legion Post 104, and other organizations, the Veterans Heritage Site Foundation Inc. will present information. Speakers are being finalized and more details will be announced later in the Great Smoky Mountain National Park Veterans project.

The foundation adopted Sharps Ridge Memorial Park, a Knoxville City Park, back in 2016 and helps maintain and clean the park which was renamed in the honor of veterans.

Marilyn Childress may be reached by calling (865)920-1989 or emailed at atmarilyn.childress@veteransheritagesite.org.

School board approves $591.5M budget for upcoming year

By Ken Lay

The Knox County Board of Education unanimously approved its budget for the upcoming fiscal year.

The budget, proposed by KCS Superintendent Bob Thomas and approved by the board Wednesday night, is for $591 million, and it's the largest budget in Knox County Schools history.

It proposes pay raises across the board for faculty and staff.

Teachers and staff will receive a 4% raise and the district's lowest paid employees will see their salaries go up eight percent.

The general purpose budget will include $25.5 million in raises and staff benefits with the lowest paid employees. Including clerical staff, custodians and teaching assistants receiving an eight percent raise.

Teachers, librarians, counselors and other specialists will receive a four percent raise. Eligible personnel will also receive step increases annually.

Thomas said that this was necessary and that the district must continue this trend as KCS continues to lose employees to surrounding school systems.

"We continue to see smaller surrounding districts with fewer vacancies come in and take our best, so we must continue to improve our salaries and benefits," Thomas said.

The proposed budget, which must be approved by the Knox County Commission as part of Mayor Glenn Jacobs' county budget, also allocates $6 million in funds for 42 new positions for student support. Those jobs include positions in special education, health services, English Language Learning and community family relations.

The budget allocates money for 18 counselors, social workers and culture professionals.

The district will also look to add 22 security positions and new software to help keep students and staff safe.

These changes stem from a community budget survey that received 4,500 responses, according to Thomas.

The board also approved the $28 million nutrition budget that would give food service workers a 15 percent raise.

It also approved a $48.1 million capital budget for facility improvements. That budget also includes funds to design a new elementary school in Farragut.

The capital budget also includes design work for an expansion of Sterchi

Elementary School in North Knoxville so the school can accommodate 250 more students.

The Knox County Commission will vote on the county budget in May.

The 2023 fiscal budget is 9% more than KCS's current budget.

The board also approved a plan to enroll new district classified employees to the Tennessee Consolidated Retirement System.

That would be implemented on July 1.

Current employees have the option of whether to join or remain with their current plans.

Human resources executive director Scott Bolton said that it would make things easier for the employees and the district. He added that Knox County is one of three districts not utilizing the TCRS.

Utility work to begin on new stadium site

By Ken Lay

The Knoxville/Knox County Sports Authority met Tuesday morning and discussed progress on the multi-use sports stadium, which will be located just east of the Old City.

The Sports Authority took no significant action last week and its finance team has halted meetings until the authority is ready move ahead with the bond issue that provides most of the funding for the sports and entertainment venue. The bond issue is for $65 million.

Work on the project continues to move forward on stadium plans. The venue was scheduled to be open in 2024, but that date has now been moved to April 2025 for baseball.

The venue may open sooner for concerts and other events.

That announcement was made early last month by Tennessee Smokies owner Randy Boyd.

The stadium will be home to East Tennessee's professional baseball team, which is a Class AA affiliate of the Chicago Cubs.

Doug Kirchhofer, CEO of Boyd Sports, said that the Smokies, the primary tenants of the stadium, are disappointed but he feels this is the best way to move forward.

"This is a good way to approach this moving forward," he said. "We don't really want our first pitch to be the first event at the new stadium."

"The likelihood is a fall or winter opening in 2024 or 2025."

He also noted that more detailed design drawings for the stadium should be completed and available this summer.

The opening of the stadium was postponed due to labor and supply chain issues, including the volatile construction market, however, Knoxville Utilities Board is set to begin the first phase of utility relocation, which includes water lines along Jackson, Patton, Willow and Florida today (May 2).

"The big news is we'll see activity on the site," said Sports Authority Chairman Alvin Nance.

KUB will spend more than $13 million to relocate or install utility lines, including gas, water and electrical and sewer.

KUB will directly install electrical lines while RR Land, Boyd's construction company, will have its contractors handle the installation of water and sewer lines.

Construction is expected to begin this fall.

Record book could take a hit in KIL meet this year

By Steve Williams

Seven boys records and one girls record could be challenged or broken in this year's Knoxville Interscholastic League Championships which get underway this afternoon at Hardin Valley Academy.

Knox County's finest track and field prep athletes will be in the spotlight, including teams from Division I and II high schools.

Competition starts today at 5 with the field events. The meet continues Tuesday at 5 with the running events.

Ethan Fulford of Christian Academy of Knoxville has a good shot at breaking the existing pole vault record of 14 feet as he comes into the meet having cleared the bar at that height already this season.

Fulford, who is better known for his talent in the hurdles, also could challenge the 110-meter high hurdles record of 15.20. The CAK senior has a season-best time of 15.13 seconds in that event.

If Knoxville Catholic freshman sensation Keegan Smith equals his state best time of 8:52.96 in the 3200 run, he will easily erase the current KIL record 9:18.69, which has been in the books since 2003. Smith also is capable of challenging the 1600 record (4:16.28). He posted a time of 4:17.4 last Tuesday in a meet at Catholic.

Hardin Valley's 4x800 relay team currently has the best time in the state with a 8:01.25 and another performance like that would break the KIL record 8:07.68.

The Hawks may have their eyes on the 4x200 record (1:28.85) too as they have been clocked in 1:27.19 this season.

HVA senior Austin Rome also could challenge the record in the 200 dash. Rome's top time this spring is 21.71. The record is 21.68.

On the girls' side, only one athlete appears to have a shot at setting a new KIL record and she's an eighth grader. That's Jazzlyn Garmer of Webb, who recently posted a time of 11:00.55 in the 3200 at the Eastern Relays. The KIL record is 10:55.90.

Another athlete fans will want to watch is Hardin Valley's Sidnee Stanton in the girls' triple jump event. The Lady Hawks' senior has the state's best mark at 37 feet, 9½ inches. She also has the top leap in the long jump locally at 18-4½.

Carter senior Asante Burton should attract attention in the boys' long jump and triple jump. He owns the top marks in both events on the local scene, with a 23-5.75 in the LJ and a 44-4.5 in the TJ.

In girls' track events, an exciting 400 dash event appears to be shaping up. Catholic's Mary Oakley Robertson comes in as the favorite based on her current best time of 58.10 seconds.

Brianna Baker of Grace Christian Academy is coming on strong as she posted her best time in the 100 hurdles last Thursday, winning in the Halls Classic in 15.11 seconds. The junior also has the top local time in the 300 hurdles (45.56).

Senior Night

By Ken Lay

As the 2022 high school boys soccer regular season enters the home stretch, many area teams honored their senior players and the district tournament brackets, which will be released soon, have taken shape.

Some notable matches on the pitch last week saw Bearden knock off Maryville to hand the Rebels their first loss of the 2022 campaign.

The Bulldogs made a visit to Blount County Tuesday night and with their victory, all but wrapped up the District 4-3A regular-season championship as Rudy Dardon (a transfer from Hardin Valley Academy), Ethan Ford and Lucas Nordin scored for Bearden.

The Bulldogs officially won the league title with their 9-0 victory over William Blount Thursday on Senior Night at Turner-Allender Field.

Bobcats nab Senior Night victory: Central picked up a 6-0 win over Campbell County Thursday night at Dan Y. Boring Stadium in Fountain City.

Taylor Aaron had a hat-trick for the Bobcats (9-5-1) and now has 20 markers this season.

Jose Lorenzo scored his third goal in as many games as Omar Bartolome and Luis Juan also tallied for the Bobcats.

Central honored its senior class, which includes Aaron, Bartolome, Juan, Max Buttram, Andrew Kercher and Chase Aiuto.

The senior class is arguably the most decorated class in Central soccer history.

"This senior class is very near and dear to me," CHS coach Chris Quinn said. "This group helped us make history and led us to our first sectional appearance."

"They're trying to become the first team (since the 1990s) to win 10-plus

Late rally lifts Admirals over Bearden

By Ken Lay

A six-run seventh inning propelled Farragut High School's baseball team to a comeback victory early last week.

But it wasn't a win that Farragut head coach Matt Buckner was all that happy about.

"We played really pitiful baseball for about six innings," Buckner said after the Admirals notched a 9-3 victory over Kingston Pike rival Bearden on Monday, April 25, at Phil Garner Ballpark. "We played very poorly, very poor at-bats, very questionable defense, not very good on the mound."

"About every possible thing that could be bad, we were bad at the game for about six innings."

Farragut pitcher Jaxon Pease delivers a pitch in the Admirals' 9-3 victory over rival Bearden last week. Pease and Farragut struggled. But the Admirals scored six runs in their final at-bat to win the game.

But things changed in the top of the seventh inning.

Lukas Buckner, the coach's son and Farragut sophomore shortstop led off the frame with an infield single. He would advance to third when the Bulldogs committed a two-base error on an errant pickoff throw.

Lukas, who went 3-for-5 in the game, came home when Brennan Seigler came up with an RBI double to help the Admirals break a 3-3 tie.

Then things came unraveled for the Bulldogs as Farragut's Garrett Brewer chipped in with another scoring single and Eli Evans clubbed a two-run home run to make it 7-3.

Jack Alley added the exclamation point to the victory with a two-run double to close the scoring.

Admirals' reliever Eli Miller slammed the door on the Bulldogs in the bottom of the frame and coach Buckner and Farragut could breathe a sigh of relief as they claimed the victory.

Coach Buckner was definitely relieved after the Admirals came back.

"To our credit, Lukas and Brennan got us the lead, and then Eli and Jack kind of finished it," coach Buckner said. "To their credit, they did a good job in the last inning, but we can't keep waiting around like that."

"It's really not a very good job focusing by our guys right there. We've had some lapses here and there and we're still young and learning, but that was not very good baseball for about six innings."

Farragut might have ultimately persevered and prevailed but the Bulldogs took the early lead in the bottom of the first as they scored two runs without the benefit of a hit.

Strickland, Ackermann sign National Letters of Intent

By Ken Lay

A pair of Farragut High School seniors finalized their college plans early Thursday morning.

Lady Admirals Avery "Ace" Strickland and Ellie Ackermann signed their National Letters of Intent to continue their academic pursuits and athletic careers in college.

Strickland will play basketball at the University of Pittsburgh while Ackermann will continue her volleyball career at Queen's College of Charlotte.

Strickland, a four-year varsity player for the Lady Admirals, helped Farragut reach the Class 3A State Championship Game for the first time in school history. They lost that game to Kingston Pike rival Bearden.

She originally committed to West Virginia before changing course late in the recruiting process.

"I just loved the coaches (at Pittsburgh) from Day One," Strickland said. "I liked the overall vibe of the campus."

She'll enter Pittsburgh as an undeclared major.

Ackermann, who was the District 4-3A Hitter of the Year, will be a little closer to home in Charlotte, where she will have a double major of International Business and Spanish.

She said she felt at home at Queen's College.

"The No. 1 thing was that I loved the campus," Ackermann said. "I loved the coaches."

Both Strickland and Ackermann are eagerly anticipating their coming challenges as they leave the Knoxville Area.

Farragut High School athletes Avery "Ace" Strickland and Ellie Ackermann signed their National Letters of Intent Thursday. Strickland will play basketball at Pittsburgh and Ackermann will play volleyball at Queen's College of Charlotte.

Strickland, however, has mixed emotions about leaving town.

"I'm looking forward to it and I'll have friends up there," she said. "But being away from my family and friends here will be hard."

Ackermann said she's ready to head to college but is happy to be close to home.

"I wanted to leave Knoxville," she said. "But I wanted to be kind of close to home," Ackermann said.

"I wanted to be close enough so I could go home on a weekend and so my family could come and see me play."

Unselfish move helped team and Brady, too

By Steve Williams

Garrett Brady was willing to make the move to center three years ago to help his team. Travis Mozingo, the head football coach at Christian Academy of Knoxville, has never forgotten that.

"The best example of Careacter that I can give you is putting others before yourself," said Mozingo. "Garrett Brady did just that."

According to the CAK coach, Brady switched positions three years ago to play center, became a 3-year starter and never missed a game.

"His coaches selected him as our 2021 Offensive MVP - a first in my 22 years of coaching that an offensive lineman received this honor."

Mozingo recalled that story when The Focus asked local head coaches to point out examples of "good careacter" their Careacter Star Athletes showed last season.

Brady's unselfish move didn't just end up helping the team. He flourished at his new position. In addition to being chosen the offense's MVP, the 5-7, 170-pounder also was selected the TSSAA Division II-AA East Region Line-man of the Year.

There's more to this story, too. Brady has an unusual highlight play posted online on MaxPreps that shows him getting knocked on his fanny in a game against rival Grace Christian. Why would he go with a highlight play like that? Perhaps he just thought it was funny.

"Yes," replied Coach Mozingo, "and he had a reputation for flopping. He would always tumble backward, lie on the ground and make everyone laugh, similar to a soccer player or NBA player flopping and it was quite comical."

After watching Brady's highlight clip online, this reporter felt it didn't appear to be a flop and it looked like the GCA player actually knocked Brady over.

"I'm pretty sure it was a flop," countered Mozingo, who had background knowledge to support his viewpoint. "Garrett also is the star performer in CAK's Musical Theater - so he's great at acting!"

Coach Mozingo said Garrett plans to go into the ministry and attend Samford University.

Three others from the list of 216 Careacter Star Athletes also received special praise from their head coach, including Halls junior linebacker Caden Earle.

Scott Cummings, who left Halls to take the Oak Ridge job when it came open after last season, said Earle is a "great" Careacter Star Athlete for the Red Devils.

"Caden is a current junior linebacker that was our emotional leader and voted a team captain," said Cummings last week. "His work ethic in the weight room is tremendous. Through adversity Caden always stands strong and supports his teammates while also leading them in a positive way."

Gibbs Coach Brad Turner showed senior running back and linebacker Tarice McKinney some love. "He is a great leader, great student and comes from a great family. He is everything you want in a football player, student and young man."

"Tarice is always willing to help others with school work and maintained a job during the season."

Matt Lowe at Powell couldn't overlook Carson Whitehead, an All-State defensive back on the Panthers' Class 5A state championship team.

In addition to football last fall, Whitehead was honored as an Eagle Scout and chosen the "Great Smoky Mountain Scout of the Year," proudly said Coach Lowe.

"His high willingness to help others and lead by example and attitude helps to make him someone who others naturally follow."

Dave Moore, founder of the Careacter Star Athlete program, said: "I'm very proud of all our honorees this school year. We can learn a lot from our young people when they are doing the right things in life."

Careacter Star Athletes in girls and boys basketball will be announced in the May 2 and May 9 issues of The Focus.

The announcement of the CSAs for sports in the 2021-22 school year was delayed due to "Covid still reeling," said Moore. "We plan to get back on track next year and release the football honorees in January and the girls' and boys' basketball honorees soon after the state tournaments."

In addition to Knoxville County, the Careacter Star program honors student-athletes in neighboring counties and other parts of East Tennessee.

‘After an extensive nationwide search...’

Sometimes, the best coaching search is no search.

By Tom Mattingly

Here are three prominent examples. Consider Dec. 3, 1976, a day Big Orange Country had breathlessly awaited. A Tennessee legend was coming home, 20 years after he had played his last game in an orange and white uniform. Knoxville Campus Chancellor Dr. Jack Reese’s remarks to approximately 100 media representatives at Stokely Center were understated but brilliant: “After an extensive nationwide search, I am pleased to welcome Coach Majors here.”

“Coach Majors” was John Terrill Majors, a 1956 All-American and Heisman Trophy runner-up, two-time SEC “Player of the Year,” and the first of three Majors brothers to play at Tennessee. He was overwhelmingly the “people’s choice.”

For his part, Majors had actually experienced this drill before. In 1954, after a 26-0 loss at Vanderbilt in John’s sophomore season, Bob Neyland had dismissed Harvey Robinson, his successor, calling it the “hardest thing I’ve ever had to do.”

Bowden Wyatt, the man with the movie star good looks, was the “people’s choice” of that era. He was captain of the 11-0 1938 team and one of the most popular players of his or any other time. He came on board on Jan. 8, 1955, saying, “I’m going back to the job I’ve always wanted.”

The thinking among the fan base was that Tennessee was “back,” among the elite of college football. There was no one else Vol fans wanted this time, either.

Wyatt had won titles in the Big Sky Conference at Wyoming and the Southwest Conference at Arkansas. Coming to Knoxville was the culmination of a coaching career that had begun at Mississippi State in 1939. During his time at Wyoming, Vanderbilt and Duke had tried to entice Wyatt to their campuses, but to no avail.

(No one knows what Wyatt’s teammate George Cafego might have said had Bowden gone to Vandy, but it wouldn’t have been pretty, given Cafego’s undisguised distaste for the Commodores.)

The 1963 coaching search, after Jim McDonald had been let go, was intriguing. Numerous names were mentioned in the media, e.g., Murray Warmath (Minnesota), Paul Davis (Mississippi State), Jim Owens (Washington), and Clay Stapleton (Iowa State). Warmath and Stapleton were former Vols, Davis was from Knoxville, and Owens had no apparent Tennessee connections. One News-Sentinel story suggested that Ole Miss head coach John Howard Vaught was in the running to head from Oxford to Knoxville.

Knoxville News-Sentinel sports editor Tom Siler wrote there was a lengthy meeting (calling it a “secret session”) with Athletics Board members and “key trustees.”

Athletic Director Bob Woodruff wanted Arkansas assistant Doug Dickey, his quarterback at Florida, who had been barely mentioned as a contender by media types. Tabbing Dickey as a steward of the Vol program was a surprise to most observers. That decision led to two Athletics Board members resigning, and a compromise ensuing, making McDonald an assistant athletic director.

“I knew a long time ago that I was going to lose Dickey to Tennessee,” said Arkansas head coach Frank Broyles. “Every time I saw Woodruff, he would ask me about Doug’s progress.”

In late 1969 and early 1970, there was another “search” after Dickey took the Florida job. Woodruff let it be known that assistants Doug Knotts, Jimmy Dunn, and Bill Battle were in the running, with Battle being considered the apparent “sleeper.”

Trustee Col. Tom Elam and president Dr. Andy Holt wanted Majors, then in his second year at Iowa State, but Elam, a firm believer in the chain of command, reluctantly convinced Holt to support Woodruff’s decision. Holt had told Elam “your vote is my vote,” but relented when Elam mentioned the organizational pitfalls of overriding his athletic director on such an important issue. Thus, Battle got the nod.

As Battle’s star faded in the mid-1970s, the public outcry was for Majors, who had the Pittsburgh program in full gear, headed toward a national championship in 1976.

When his alma mater beckoned, Majors

accepted, not without significant thought. “It was the most difficult decision I’ve had to make in my life,” he said. “I agonized over it. I had been away from Tennessee 17 years.”

He led Tennessee to three SEC titles and 12 bowl appearances during his time on the west sideline of Shields-Watkins Field.

Sometimes these “searches” are what they are advertised to be, sometimes not. Few observers remember what was said at the other Tennessee media conferences announcing coaching changes, but Jack Reese, an able and affable administrator, set a memorable standard. The peasants would have literally stormed the castle had any name other than John Majors been uttered that December day in 1976.

games in consecutive seasons. They went through a COVID year and missed a year of soccer and came back and had the best season in school history.”

Central will play Bearden Wednesday night at Dan Y. Boring Stadium and that’s a game Quinn always looks forward to.

“Bearden is like a big brother team to me and Ryan Radcliffe does a great job,” Quinn said. “I’m honored to call him a friend. He’s been around the game his whole life and his family has been around the game.”

“I’ve learned so much watching Ryan’s teams and the chance to play against Bearden is not only an honor. It’s humbling.”

Red Devils blank Clinton: Halls celebrated its Senior Night with a 6-0 victory over the Dragons.

The Red Devils received offensive production from six different players as Axel Galindo, Jacob Eubanks, Jake Roberts, Justin King Jr., Patrick McWilliams and Nathan Salem all tallied in the match.

Salem dished out a pair of assists in the game for Halls.

South-Doyle claims

second in District 4-2A:

The Cherokees picked up a road district win over Gibbs Thursday night as they prevailed 2-0 in Corryton.

With the victory, South-Doyle clinches second place in the district standings.

Austin-East is the district champ and Halls finishes third.

Ben Pensky returns briefly for Spartans: Webb School of Knoxville senior midfielder Ben Pensky has been sidelined all season after helping the Spartans win the Division II-A State Championship in 2021.

He suffered a knee injury while playing football in the fall. But he had the chance to play briefly Thursday afternoon on the pitch.

Webb coach Jared Zeigler and Knoxville Catholic coach Gordon Heins agreed to let Pensky start.

He left shortly after the opening kickoff and the Spartans would prevail 7-1 in the Division II-AA East Region match against the Irish.

Jaylon Green scored four times. Spencer Bernard scored two goals and had two assists. Otto Niendorff also scored for the Spartans.

By Mark Nagi

A few weeks ago, I was watching WrestleMania 38. I have a Peacock subscription, so it wasn’t like I was shelling out $50 for the pay-per-view.

Admittedly I’m not a big wrestling fan. I didn’t know much about the current stars, their rivalries, or the storylines. The show felt... sanitized.

The best part of WrestleMania 38 for me was the return of Stone Cold Steve Austin, one of the biggest names in the history of the sport. His appearances each night brought down the house and got the most buzz on social media.

Stone Cold was just one of a plethora of memorable stars in the WWE during what was called “The Attitude Era.”

Sports entertainment used to be good guys versus bad guys. That era gave us shades of gray, to the point when rooting for the bad guy was fashionable. Ted Turner’s WCW did it as well with Hulk Hogan’s heel turn and the establishment of the New World Order.

All these years later and you still see Stone Cold, NWO, Degeneration X and gear of other “bad boys” from that era at today’s pro wrestling events.

By now you might be asking why you’ve been reading 200 words about pro wrestling, and I thank you for your time. Here’s why. I get the same vibe watching Tony Vitello’s baseball team perform on the diamond and talk trash off of it as I did with the Attitude Era standouts.

The Vols entered last weekend ranked number one in the country. They had a ridiculous 38-3 record with a 17-1 mark in conference play. That gave them a five-game lead over Arkansas, their next highest competitor in the SEC. In the Eastern Division that lead was up to six games over Georgia.

It isn’t just that they are winning. They ooze swagger.

The Ole Miss series turned into a Lane Kiffin spectacle in Oxford, with the former Tennessee football coach throwing out the first “golf ball,” which came from the near riot at the end of last Fall’s game at Neyland Stadium.

Ole Miss was ranked number one at that time, and Tennessee swept them.

A fur coat has become the go-to celebration clothing.

In the Vanderbilt series, they were basically accused of using illegal bats and proceeded to sweep their in-state rivals.

When Vitello was suspended four games for bumping an umpire, he teamed up with a campus fraternity and sold “chest bumps” with proceeds going to Wounded Warriors.

Remember when Alabama snapped their 12-0 start in SEC play? The Vols took umbrage with the Crimson Tide post-game celebrations.

“We’re going to come out tomorrow hot, and they’re not going to have a chance, in my opinion,” said junior relief pitcher Will Mabrey to reporters. “They were also partying like they thought they’d won the World Series. We’ll let know how it tastes tomorrow.”

Tennessee won the next two games... by a score of 24-6.

I’ve covered Tennessee athletics for over 20 years, and I’ve never seen anything like this. There have been winners... but they haven’t won with this kind of attitude.

Admit it... it’s fun, isn’t it?

I’m a traditionalist at heart, but sports are supposed to be fun and hopefully interesting, and this team has those qualities in spades.

Will this eventually come crashing down? Maybe. The nation would like nothing more than to watch Tennessee baseball team put in its place. If they don’t make a deep run in the postseason, there will be howls from collegiate fans saying the Vols got what they deserved.

But enjoy the ride while you can because the good times don’t go on forever.

Tennessee is in their Attitude Era.

A big year for dance and cheer teams

By Steve Williams

Farragut Middle School's dance team won the National Championship for Pom and was first runner-up for Jazz at Walt Disney World in Orlando earlier this year.

"It has truly been such a wonderful experience working with the young ladies on the FMS team," said team sponsor Elizabeth Wilson, recently recalling the experience.

"As this was my first year as their sponsor, I had no idea what I was getting into, but it was all so worth it. Seeing their commitment and hard work payoff was incredibly gratifying. I am so proud of them and cannot wait to see where we go from here."

West Valley Middle School's dance team placed second in the nation in Pom and third in Jazz at the competition in Orlando.

The Powell Middle School cheerleaders got a taste of the Nationals back in the winter, too. PMS Cheer Coach Samantha Vermillion's team was the school's first to attend the UCA Nationals at Disney in February.

"Previous teams have attended the nationals when they were held in Atlanta but not Disney," said Vermillion. "Unfortunately, we didn't make it to Day 2, but having our small team of 10 girls make it that far was a win for us!"

On the high school scene, Bearden's dance team captured the UDA national title in the Large Varsity Game Day division and placed fourth in Medium Varsity Pom in Florida this year.

POWELL TO HOST SPECIAL OLYMPICS MEET THIS WEEK

Powell High School will host the Area 5 Special Olympic Track meet Wednesday and Thursday (May 4-5), said Tami Smith, Powell High Special Education, CDC teacher.

The high school meet will be Wednesday from 9:30 to 2 p.m., followed by the adult meet from 4:30 to 7. The elementary/middle school meet will be Thursday from 9:30 to 2.

Area 5 includes Knox and Anderson Counties and Powell will be hosting 500 Special Olympic athletes at this event. They will compete in the Unified 4x100 relay, softball throw, 100m race, 200m race, 50m race, 25m assisted and wheel chair races, 400m walk, running long jump and the standing long jump.

FIVE SIGN COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS FRIDAY AT CAK

Christian Academy of Knoxville's latest college signing ceremony definitely had a diverse touch as five student-athletes inked scholarship papers with five different schools in five different sports.

Ethan Fulford signed

Friday with East Tennessee State University in track and field. With his senior season still not finished, he already is a two-time TSSAA state champion in the 110 and 300-meter hurdles.

Lacrosse player Kara Halouma signed with Mars Hill University. She was a four-year member of CAK's lacrosse program and team captain this season.

Weston Parker will be continuing his education and playing soccer for Carson-Newman University. He also stood out in tennis and track during his prep career at L&N STEM Academy.

Baseball pitcher Simon Tesh signed with Belmont University.

Courtlyn Walsh, who signed with Maryville College, was an eight-year member of CAK's tennis program and a seven-year member of its cheerleading program.

TOURNEY TIME NEARS FOR SPRING SPORTS

The District 4-4A baseball tournament starts Friday, May 6. In the tourney openers, No. 5 seed Heritage plays at No. 4 seed William Blount and No. 6 seed Bearden goes to No. 3 seed Maryville.

The double-elimination tourney will continue Saturday morning with No. 1 seed Farragut hosting the Game 1 winner at 11 and No. 2 seed Hardin Valley entertaining the Game 2 winner at 1:30 p.m. The losers of Friday's games will play Saturday morning at Hardin Valley at 11.

SARAH FEKETE BAILEY HONORED BY LADY VOLS

Former Lady Vol softball player Sarah Fekete Bailey was recently honored with her college uniform retired by UT.

The Maryville High graduate was a two-time NFCA All-American and 2006 NCAA batting champion. The four-year starter helped lead the Lady Vols to their first two appearances at the Women's College World Series in 2005 and 2006.

Bailey, who had a .398 career batting average, becomes the second player in Tennessee softball history to have her jersey retired, joining former teammate Monica Abbott (2004-07) as the only Lady Vols to receive the prestigious recognition.

Bailey spent the first eight years of her professional career as a classroom teacher and administrator in the private sector at Knoxville Catholic High. She also was head coach for the Lady Irish softball team.

She now is in her fourth season as head coach at Alcoa High, as well as being an Assistant Principal.

Farragut High School Sports Hall of Fame welcomes new inductees

By Ken Lay

The Farragut High School Sports Hall of Fame officially welcomed its 2021 and 2022 inductees recently at a banquet in the school's commons.

The ceremony, held on Saturday, April 23, marked the first induction since 2020.

Last year's induction ceremony was canceled due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

The new hall-of-famers include: Curt Powell (baseball); Ralph Skinner (service award for his work with the school's baseball program); Mike Driver (a former girls basketball coach, head golf coach and assistant baseball coach); Chris Garman (boys basketball); Nicky Delmonico (baseball); Tony Delmonico (baseball); the late Ray Watson (service award for his contributions to the school's softball program); John Marsh (track and field, cross country) and Cara Gregg Bledsoe (a former volleyball player and assistant coach).

Other inductees included: Stephanie Harris (softball, basketball); Megan Harris Carr (softball); Alex Newby Keck (girls basketball, track and field) and Hayley Newby McRady (girls basketball).

Late rally lifts Admirals

Farragut starter Jaxon Pease struggled with his control throughout the contest as he walked Bearden leadoff man Brady Frederick and hit Brooks Wright (who was lifted for courtesy runner Case Simpson).

Frederick would score on a balk and Simpson would come home when Pease uncorked a wild pitch.

Coach Buckner said that Pease did not have his best outing.

"He wasn't great," coach Buckner said. "I tell him when he's great. I tell him when he's bad, and he was not very good."

"He's our guy and he's been great all year. He wasn't his best but he battled and gave us six innings."

Despite his struggles, Pease had a no-hitter through 4.2 innings.

The Admirals pulled the lead in the third as Lukas Buckner had an RBI single and Seigler chipped in with an RBI double.

The Bulldogs pulled even when Goins came up with an RBI single that plated Frederick, who singled earlier in the frame to break up Pease's no hitter.

Bearden coach Dave Pritchard was disappointed with the loss.

"It's hard man," he said. "We've been involved in a lot of district games like this and I like the direction we're headed."

"We played a good game and then we shoot ourselves in the foot in the end. We just have to file this one away and hope it makes us better and continue to go to work."

VOTE JUSTIN BIGGS FOR YOUR KNOX COUNTY TRUSTEE

ACCOUNTABILITY

The office of Trustee has many functions but none more important than collecting your tax dollars and investing them wisely.

BUDGET

I think it is important to focus on larger tax sales which equates to more tax dollars back into the general fund.

COMMUNITY INVOLVEMENT

"Toast with the Trustee", I will hold informal breakfast meetings in all quadrants of the County so you can come meet with me and my staff for questions pertinent to the Office of the Trustee.

EXPERIENCE

I have worked in the Trustee's office for the past 15 years. I'll be ready to serve you on day one.

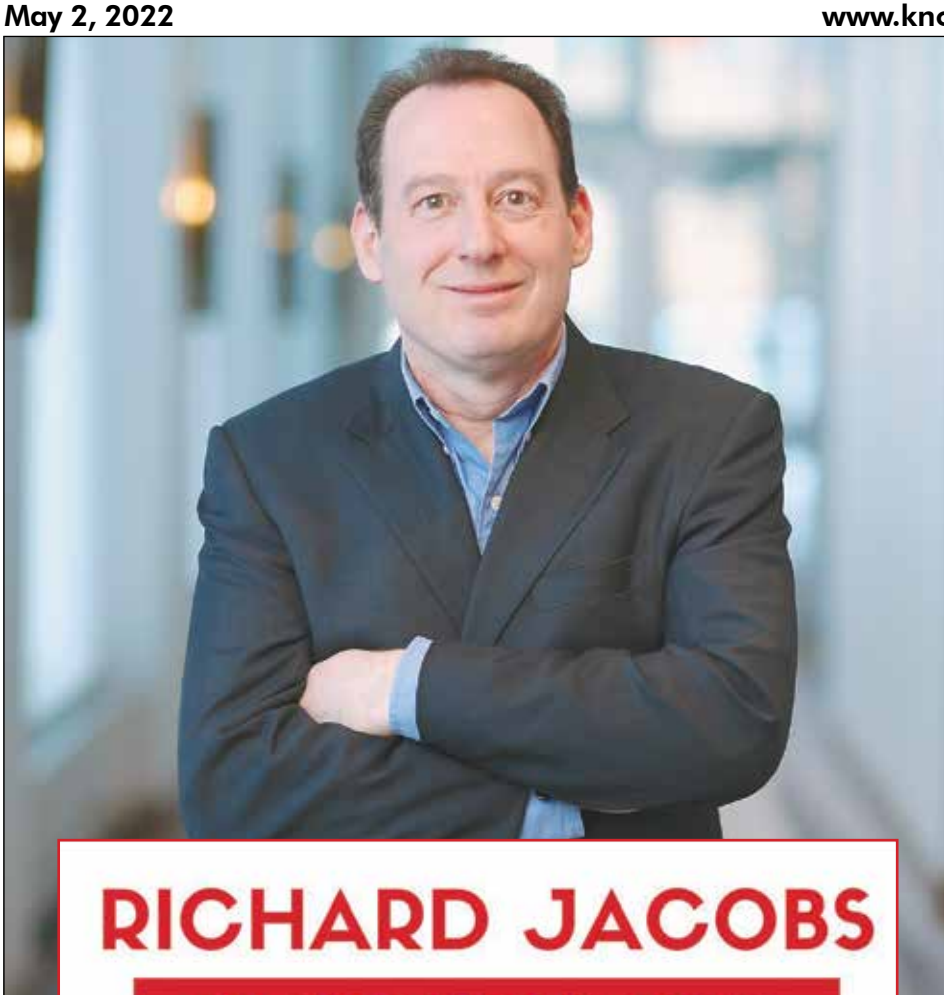

I would appreciate your vote and support.

RICHARD JACOBS

FOR KNOX COUNTY TRUSTEE

What makes Richard Jacobs the best candidate for Trustee?

Education including Engineering degree, MBA and executive education at Harvard, Columbia and UT Haslam, 32 years of private business experience managing large budgets up to $8 billion. As the fiduciary, I bring Financial Process Experience to assure our system works properly.

When elected I will insist on:

- Transparency: for all monies collected
 - Publish: Annual Trustee public report
 - Inform: Provide monthly online Trustee Public Reports
- Community Involvement: Focus on helping disabled veterans' and senior citizens' property taxes by setting up community meetings
- Accountability: Identifying the root cause of property delinquencies and finding solutions.

//The main role of Trustee is collecting and investing the county's tax dollars, hundreds of millions of dollars a year, so having someone with a business and financial background, like myself, makes sense."

Meditation and Repetition

I enjoy taking my kids to Washington, D.C., when they turn twelve to see the memorials and museums. One of those museums I make sure to take them to is the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Museum. The procurators of that museum show in a moving fashion the power of propaganda that the Nazis used to win the hearts and minds of the German people.

Adolf Hitler's autobiographical manifesto, "Mein Kampf," describes the process by which Hitler became antisemitic and outlines his ideology and future plans for Germany. This book convinced, with deceiving fashion, many people to buy into his lies and ideology. When you dehumanize people, anything is possible, even mass extermination. I kept asking myself, each time I journeyed through the museum, "How did this happen? This is insanity." But when you are told lies over and over, like the Aryan race is better than any other and some people are not fit to live and that this is just part of natural selection and survival of the fittest, you begin to believe it and then act on it.

You need to always ask yourself, "Is this true?" The reason is that we are so prone to believe whatever we are told as if it is truth, even if it is a lie. Repetition creates ruts and it is hard to convince ourselves otherwise. Satan knows he can get at us by repeating the same lies over and over. He knows the more often we think a thought, the more we will believe that thought. That lie then becomes a rut that we get stuck in. Satan knows that if he tells you a lie enough times, you will believe it.

How can we overcome lies? How can we get out of old ruts? The answer is meditating on God's Word and then repeating the declarations of God's truth over and over. I wrote last week about the importance of reading the truth of God's Word and then making a declaration based on those truths. We need to constantly repeat these truths. We need to repeat the declaration so often that we create a trench of truth to get us out of a rut.

What if we all started our day in the morning thinking about and chewing on the truth of God's Word? I think that would affect our day in a profound way. Consider this verse: "This is the day the Lord has made. I will rejoice and be glad in it" (Psalm 118:24). If you repeated this verse each morning, do you think that might change the way you viewed your day ahead? I think so. Or you could begin your day this way: "Ugh. I do not want to get out of bed. This is going to be a horrible day." Guess what? It will likely be a horrible day and you should never have gotten out of bed.

Have you heard of a self-fulfilling prophecy? This means that something comes true that you expect to happen. You say, "My life stinks and this day is going to be disastrous." Well, your day is going to be filled with things that could be better that will likely ruin your mood and day. But someone else says, "Today is going to be a great day. Whatever challenges may come, God is bigger and stronger and we can handle it together." And guess what – challenges will come, as they always do, but you are prepared and equipped to meet them head on and be victorious. You are mentally and spiritually prepared to deal with whatever the enemy throws at you.

'Operation Overflight'

The Story of the U-2 Spy Incident that Rocked the World in 1960

By Christy Stephens Martin

Many of us remember well another era in our history when the threat of war with what was once referred to as the Soviet Union, now Russia, caused many to make bomb shelters and fear nuclear war with our opposing superpower. The Soviet Union loomed as a giant that threatened us with possible attack. There were no satellites to spy on the enemy and the United States relied on the brave pilots of the CIA spy planes that flew the skies with their cameras at speed records that even now remain unbroken.

The engineering aeronautical marvels of the U-2 spy plane and the SR-71 Blackbird have always been as mysterious as their flights. They came into service during the Cold War era and were specifically built to spy. The late Col. "Buddy" Brown of Knoxville was a wealth of information about the era and sometimes spoke to area organizations about his own experiences piloting those planes. He was one of a small group of amazing men who flew those altitudes and speeds and navigated by the stars. There was no GPS in the late 1950s and early 1960s to guide them, only the stars and their flight experience led them around the globe. Col. Brown was a friend and comrade of Francis Gary Powers whose U-2 was shot down over the Soviet Union in 1960.

Powers tells his story in a readable and interesting book called "Operation Overflight: The U-2 Spy Pilot Tells His Story for the First Time." First published in 1970 it is a compelling story. Our country doubted Powers's story for many years but in 2012 he was given the honor he deserved for heroically representing the best of those brave pilots who flew over dangerous targets and provided information during the Cold War.

In "Operation Overflight" Powers tells of his training, his flights, and his relationship with his wife. He documents in readable prose his last flight over the Soviet Union, the explosion that caused his bailout of that country, his capture, imprisonment, and his fight to tell the truth to United States officials that did not believe him and chose to use him as a scapegoat rather than admit the truth. Powers passed away tragically in 1977 in a helicopter crash while working for a California news outlet. Unfortunately, he died before the United States finally honored his heroism and acknowledged his bravery.

Several months ago, Powers' son visited Knoxville to talk about his father and tout his new book about his father, "Spy Pilot," and the nonprofit Smithsonian affiliate, The Cold War Museum, which he heads.

Powers' story was told in several movies, including "Francis Gary Powers: The True Story of the U-2 Spy Plane," and a more recent movie that documents his story, "Bridge of Spies." If you are interested in the background of what we are witnessing now, any of the books or videos is a good place to start. However, the best source for the history of this era and that incident is the book written by Francis Gary Powers himself and co-authored with Kurt Gentry. "Operation Overflight: The U-2 Spy Pilot Tells His Story for the First Time" is the best and original source for information about Powers' harrowing story. "Operation Overflight" should be available at local libraries and is available at most online book outlets and in book stores.

Revisiting Davy Crockett Birthplace State Park

Last year my wife and I discovered the Storybook Trail at Davy Crockett Birthplace State Park and, since we bought a new camper trailer, we decided to go again

A Day Away

By Mike Steely

to try out the campground, explore the rest of the park and take a side trip to downtown Greeneville, Tn. The campground seemed small and crowded but, planning ahead, we got a pull-through site with electricity, water and sewer. We discovered some minor trouble with the used camper during our visit but checking out the unit was part of our plans. Davy Crockett Birthplace State Park is located between Greeneville and Jonesboro just a few miles off Highway 321. It's on the junction of Limestone Creek and the Nolichucky River, where Crockett's writings indicated his family lived when he was born. The former cabin built for the park has been moved to near the entrance and a more plausible and smaller, cruder dwelling now stands where the original cabin may have been located along with several outbuildings in the rustic style.

The park still has a Storybook Trail but the "book" hadn't been changed since our first visit. The easy walking trail slopes gently and is great for young children learning to read or a family looking for an educational few minutes. There are other trails within the park including one along the waters of the river. There are also pavilions, picnic tables, a gift shop and museum, and a number of friendly and informative hosts and clerks. The next morning we drove into Greeneville and visited the Dickson-Williams Mansion, where Confederate General John Hunt Morgan was killed by Union troops. He was spending the night there on his way to attempt to recapture Knoxville. Built in 1821 by Greeneville's first postmaster, the large brick home was occupied by both Union and Confederate forces during the Civil War. Greeneville is also known as the home of President Andrew Johnson, who returned there after surviving an impeachment but losing a re-election bid. Johnson was elected to the U.S. Senate and his home, tailor shop, and a museum are tourist attractions in Greeneville. He's buried there atop a hill overlooking the city. The city also served for a period as the capital of the "Lost State of Franklin" — an attempt by John Sevier and others to pull territory from North Carolina. That building is on North College Street and is a replica of the original cabin. Within the city is the General Morgan Inn, the Greeneville Greene County History Museum, the Old Greene County Jail, the county courthouse where Johnson's funeral took place, the Babb Family Cabin and the Harmony Cemetery where many early settlers are buried including a cousin to Abraham Lincoln. The Doak House Museum, the home of the founder of Tusculum College, and the T. Elmer Cox Genealogical and Historical Library are also in Greeneville. Nearby is the Bible Family Covered Bridge which was built in 1923 and completely restored in 2004 by the county highway department thanks to a grant from the state. Unlike some East Tennessee cities, downtown Greeneville seems very alive and prospering. Greeneville claims to be our state's second-oldest town. Jonesboro, only a few miles to the east, is the oldest. Most of the historic buildings are well marked. If you're interested in Greeneville or the Andrew Johnson National Historic Site you can find it on the internet or call them at 423-638-3551. There's also a 90-minute walking tour that leaves the General Morgan Inn at 9:30 am. Mondays-Saturdays but it's limited to 12 people. You can call 423-787-0500 for information. On your way to Greeneville, you may want to take the Andrew Johnson Highway through Morristown and Bull's Gap. There is plenty to see going and coming. If you're interested in camping near Greeneville, check out Baileyton KOA, Old Mountain Campground, Paint Creek Campground, and the Lazy Llama Campground.

Re-enactor volunteer Fred Bloom shows his collection of Davy Crockett items including photographs of a coffin in Texas that may contain Crockett's remains along with other victims of the Alamo battle.

Famed Confederate raider John Hunt Morgan spent his last night in the Dickson-Williams Mansion in Greeneville. The mansion is available for tours and is just behind the General Morgan Inn.

Children’s Festival of Reading returns to World’s Fair Park on May 21

Knox County Public Library is pleased to announce the return of the Children’s Festival of Reading on May 21, 2022, to World’s Fair Park with extended hours: 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. In its 16th year, the Festival is partnering with the 40th Anniversary Celebration of the 1982 World’s Fair with world-class authors and illustrators, science demonstrations, arts and crafts, music, and more. Plus, kids can try their hand at building their own version of the Sunsphere out of books.

Attendees will have a chance to meet storybook characters from “The Very Hungry Caterpillar,” “Dragon Loves Tacos,” and “Rainbow Fish.” Kids of all ages will want to see Cookie Monster and Big Bird who be on hand at the East Tennessee PBS tent. Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs will lead the Parade of Books, which steps off at 2:00, and everyone is invited to join the procession. The event is free and open to the public.

The Festival kicks off a summer of reading and provides a chance to sign up for Mayor Jacobs’s Read City summer challenge: Dive In Deep. Mayor Jacobs created Read City USA to help encourage families to make reading a priority and to support the schools in elevating the third grade reading rate.

Headlining the day are:

- Erin Entrada Kelly, a 2018 Newbery Medalist and author of “Hello Universe” and “We Dream of Space”
- Kwame Mbalia, New York Times bestselling author of the “Tristan Strong” series and “Black Boy Joy”
- Tad Hills, author/illustrator known for his “Duck and Goose” series and “How Rocket Learned to Read” for which he won the Irma Simonton Black and James H Black Award for Excellence in Children’s Literature.
- Jeffrey Brown, New York Times bestselling cartoonist and author of the popular middle-grade “Jedi Academy” series. His humorous parodies include Star Wars adventures and Lucy and Andy Neanderthal series.
- Laurel Snyder is author of six novels for children including “Bigger than a Bread Box” and “Penny Dreadful”. Her picture books include “Charlie and Mouse”, “The Forever Garden”, “Swan, the Life and Dance of Anna Pavlova”, “Nosh, Schlep, Schluff”, and “The Longest Night.”
- Daniel Wiseman, a Knoxville-based illustrator with 16 books under his belt.

Musicians, storytellers, and all-day activities:

- WDVX’s Kid Stuff Live hosted by Sean McCollough
- Faye Wooden, storyteller
- Sparky and Rhonda Rucker, musical storytellers
- Miss Lynn, musician and storyteller
- Jodie Manross, musician
- Sarah Pirkle, musician
- Science demonstrations by Dr. Al Hazari
- Meet Storybook Characters
- Parade of Books led by Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs
- Miss Libby’s Arts & Crafts Tent
- Toddler Town – a preschool play area
- Circus in a Suitcase by One World Circus
- Build a Sunsphere out of books
- The Molar Express by East Tennessee Pediatric Dentistry
- Dozens of community groups and organizations with fun activities

“The Children’s Festival of Reading is a great way to kick off the summer,” commented Knox County Mayor Glenn Jacobs. “Our community is embracing reading, and that will make a huge difference in our children’s lives. We started the Read City initiative to help all children regardless of their socio-economic background, learn to read. This Festival is a great way to celebrate our achievements and to keep the momentum going.”
