Commission debates more housing vs controlled growth

By Mike Steely Senior Writer steelym@knoxfocus.com

Which is more important: the demand for more housing or the control of growth in Knox County? That was the focus of the zoning hearings held last week during the regular meeting of the Knox traffic, hillside protection, County Commission.

The debate followed a presentation by Hancen trail and sidewalks. Sale of the Knoxville Area Association of Realtors, who spoke about the increasing lack of affordable housing, the need for smaller housing units, and the need to house essential workers.

Committee did some catchup work last week when it met in Special Session. The annual contract with the county's outside auditor, Pugh and Associates, was supposed to be approved during the committee's first meeting this year.

Morrison called on Knox The Knox County Audit County Procurement Director Matt Myers who said the request for an extension of the contract with Pugh was "coming to you late" and said the matters need to be approved by the county, the state and Pugh and Associates.

The audit committee voted to approve the extension.

PAGE A2 The Knoxville FOCUS May 30, 2023 I Hope Commission Will Appreciate The Taxpayers, Too

From a distance

During my entire 30 years in Washington, I saw two things over and over: 1) The easiest thing in the world to do is to spend other peoples' money, and 2) It was impossible to satisfy the government's appetite for money – they always wanted more, more, more.

This nation is a mindboggling $31.5 trillion in debt and in a very vulnerable condition financially because for many years most Democrats and a few Republicans seemingly have had no qualms about spending money we do not have.

What we really need in this country is more elected officials with the courage to occasionally say no, stand up for the taxpayers, and insist that our government

- at all levels - live within tax of all. its means.

At the national level, Democrats are insisting that not only can nothing be cut, but that we must continue to increase spending on everything. Their solution is to print even more money and inflate our way out of any problem.

Throughout history and all over the world countries have tried this with disastrous results. Most African nations and other thirdworld countries have gone the inflation route.

Even many educated and once-prosperous nations have tried this, too. In the late 1980s, inflation got so bad in Argentina that they had to raise prices in the grocery stores every four hours. Inflation got so out of control in Germany in the 1920s that the economy completely shut down, and it gave rise to Hitler.

I am not one bit surprised that the Democrats in Washington are still demanding increased spending because they always have. But this will create even more inflation, and inflation has often been called the cruelest

I am very surprised, though, that a similar thing is happening at the local level with the Knox County Sheriff demanding a 30% pay raise for deputies. I don't believe I have ever heard of any government agency - federal, state, or local - asking for such a huge one-time raise.

I supported the sheriff in both of his elections and even did a TV ad for him. My late wife, who was confined to a wheelchair at the time, called everyone she knew - which was a very long list - to ask everyone to vote for the sheriff in his first campaign.

But if we gave every, or even most, government agencies and their employees immediate 30% pay increases, this nation, this state, and/or this country would be in very serious or even worse trouble.

I have not talked to Mayor Jacobs about this, but I assume he felt he was being very generous in recommending an 8% pay increase for deputies when all other county employees were being offered 3%.

When I was growing up, respect for law enforcement. During my 16 years as a lawyer and judge, I treated all policemen and deputies with great respect and made sure they were treated that way in my court.

Thus, I am still grateful that when I first ran for Congress in 1988 almost every member of the Knoxville City Police Department and the Knox County Sheriff's Office signed ads endorsing me.

I have spoken out many times about our law enforcement money being out of whack with some federal officers being paid too much and those who serve at the much more dangerous local level being paid too little.

I support the generous 8% pay raise recommended by Mayor Jacobs, and I have supported every raise our deputies have gotten over the years, but 30% is too much.

According to information from the mayor's office, if the 8% raise is accepted, then patrol officers would have received an increase my brother and sisters and of 25% since he came into I were taught to have great office a little over four years ago. Knox County deputies have also received $6,000 in cash bonuses since then. too.

> The mayor's proposal would mean that patrol officers would start at $48,399 ($63,303 when you include benefits), and experienced officers are paid much more. According to the Chamber of Commerce, the median income in Knox County is $41,200.

> I once read a Bible study that said if you were not grateful for your job, think how you would feel if you were fired that day.

> I like the sheriff personally, and I like and appreciate every Knox County deputy I have ever met. I am sure that most of them are very grateful for their jobs.

> I don't blame them one bit for trying to get the biggest raise they can. But I hope they will think about the fact that very few people in Knox County are getting 8% raises this year, and I know of none who are getting 30% raises.

I have driven by two schools recently that had signs out for Teacher Appreciation Days. I taught school many years ago. I have had many teachers in my family, and I am married to a teacher now. I am all for Teacher Appreciation Days, but I think we also need "taxpayer appreciation days."

I think an 8% pay raise for deputies shows appreciation for them in a significant, meaningful way.

It is certainly understandable that the sheriff would play to his main audience - the deputies he works with every day and want to do as much as possible for them. But once he assumed office, he became obligated to also remember the 490,000plus Knox Countians who do not work for the sheriff's department, many of whom have a hard time paying all their taxes.

I know it will take courage for Knox County Commissioners to not vote for a 30% increase with a room full of deputies present. But I hope the commissioners will show appreciation for the taxpayers, too.

Commission debates

Jay said that fewer housing units mean a higher price per unit.

"I don't get it," Jay told his fellow commissioners, reminding them of their past statements about needing higher density.

Commissioner Gina Oster spoke about the narrowness of Fretz Road and Hill referred to the letter from Farragut. Dailey mentioned future plans to widen Fretz Road and added, "I don't get this commission, I'm very disappointed we can't come to a reasonable solution."

Attorney Mike Moyers called the issue

"debatable" noting the planning commission's recommendation but added the commission could take the Farragut letter into account.

King then withdrew the rezoning request.

The debate over the number of units per acre came up again during a request by Ben Mullins for 10 units per acre along Ball Camp Pike. Planning Director Jeff Welch noted Knoxville-Knox County Planning's approval for 32 units on the 3.9 acres.

Jay said the proposed location is on a "major artery" and is perfect for the area. He moved to permit 8.2 units per acre and the motion passed 8-3.

The NAACP's Travel Advisory

You can tell who the left fears by the hit pieces that suddenly appear in their newspapers, on their networks and their sycophants like Black Lives Matter, Move On and the NAACP. Make no doubt about it, the object mentioned as a presidenof their scorn (and fear) is the governor of Florida, Ron DeSantis. How else do you explain their labeling of his wife as Lady Macbeth while they put Hillary Clinton and Gisele Fetterman on a pedestal? Moreover, Fetterman's husband, who somehow was elected to the U.S. Senate by voters tial candidate! His clownish attire has been called "stylish" by those on the left. If Fetterman were a Republican, he would be ridiculed and satirized by Saturday Night Live and late-night comics.

But Fetterman is the type of politician that the left loves. It can control him DeSantis. They cannot con-state. trol him and he revels in that in Pennsylva- I first saw the travel advinia, is doted on sory, I wondered why the NAACP would do something this stupid. Are they saying that the 3 million black and 6 million Latino residents are in danger living in such a hostile environment? That is probably news to those Floridians of color. Are black tourists being attacked when they cross the state line? I go to Florida three or four times a year and have yet to be attacked by anything other than mosquitoes, black flies and love bugs. I have not been denied service, cursed at or treated with anything but respect. Maybe I should get the chairman of the NAACP who lives in Tampa to show me where he has suffered which explains why they fear from living in such a hostile Is Florida more dangerous to blacks than Chicago, New York or Los Angeles? Do blacks in Florida suffer more discrimination than in Democrat-controlled states? Florida's blacks have lower unemployment rates than in California and higher median incomes than blacks in Illinois. Are there more hate crimes against people of color in Florida? The data say otherwise. The advisory also said that DeSantis has tried to erase Black history and restrict diversity, equity, and inclusion programs in Florida schools. I've written on this before. What DeSantis did was to have the courage to not allow the AP course on black history to be part of the Florida curricula. That course was less about history than it was about Critical Race Theory, "queer" black history and the distortions of the 1619 Project. Florida does teach black history. DeSantis gives an award for the best essays on black history by public school students. The state's education department says that "Students shall develop an understanding of the ramifications of prejudice, racism, and stereotyping on individual freedoms." Indeed, the 1920 Ocoee massacre, in which blacks were killed by a mob, is a part of the state's curriculum. No, DeSantis is not trying to erase black history. He also has willingly incurred the ire of the left by taking over Florida's leftist New College and ending funding for diversity, equity and inclusion programs that tout segregation and pit races against each other. DeSantis called the travel advisory a stunt. It is not a stunt. It is worse than that. It is the NAACP being made a fool of by its bosses on the left. The NAACP has long since ceased to be a civil rights organization and has become another organ of the left. It claims to want to enhance black education, yet it strongly condemns school choice which has been able to improve the educational achievement of minorities. Not surprisingly, one of the major contributors to the organization is the teachers' unions. If the NAACP were serious about black progress, it would favor right-to-work laws, oppose increases in minimum wages and support school choice. But then, the NAACP is more interested in pleasing its funding sources than in advancing the wellbeing of black folks.

Ten Pounds Of Lard In A Five-Gallon Bucket

Realtors are being polled by their own association asking some questions that have raised eyebrows amongst homeowners. A few of those are:

"Do you support removing the special use requirement for duplexes and triplexes in the RN-2 and RN-3 zoning districts AND for townhomes and multifamily dwellings in the RN-3 and RN-4 zoning districts?"

"Generally speaking, do you support zoning amendments to make it easier for property owners to build Accessory Dwelling Units (ADUs) on their property? Examples include removing the owner occupancy requirement, amending gross square footage standards, and removing off-street parking requirements."

"Do you support eliminating (or substantially street parking requirements for new residential development in the City?"

The questionnaire also points out "only single-family homes are allowed by right in nearly 80% of residential land in the city (i.e. RN-1 and RN-2)." The questionnaire goes on to ask Realtors, "Generally speaking do you think having such a large percentage of residential land zoned this way is in the best interests of the city and its residents?"

This comes as Hancen Sale, a 25-year-old who is the Government Affairs and Policy Director for the Knoxville Association of REAL-TORS, is appearing before the Knox County Commission to give what has imperiously been referred to as the "State of Housing Report." Basically, Sale is the real estate industry's chief lobbyist, to put it simply. There was a time when lobbyists were not invited to lecture the commission as if they were experts.

Let me be clear that I have nothing but respect for the bulk of the hardworking people who comprise the core of Realtors in our community. I don't have the same kind of respect for those who are trying to pack 10 pounds of lard into a 5-gallon bucket. That seems to be the gist of what the questionnaire sent out under the guise of the Knoxville Association of goal seems to be to pack on Brooks, who is also a the City of Knoxville with another 50,000 or even 100,000 new residents. Of course, to accomplish that, many neighborhoods would have to be demolished and the process of building "up" would have to begin. The goal would be, as suggested in the questionnaire, to build multifamily housing throughout the city.

Much of what the city government likes to call "affordable" housing is actually subsidized housing. Nor is the blueprint being pushed by the real estate lobby good for the individual Realtors, who sell single-family homes. The blueprint, however, is very good for developers and landlords. Only empty-headed leftists actually believe those developments would be built for little or nothing. That's never going to happen. If they are built, they will cost a great deal of money, as would the demolition of neighborhoods. Unless the city government proposes the general taxpayers underwrite the rents, they will go at the market rate.

Politically speaking, the real estate lobby doesn't seem to be very bright. Last year the Realtor's political arm endorsed Stuart Hohl over Gina Oster for the county commission. Oster is a Realtor. This year, the real estate lobby is backing Councilwoman Realtor.

Nor does the real estate lobby acknowledge the effect on housing in local communities caused by the open border. With millions of illegal aliens coming into the country and being allowed to be parsed all across the nation, they must be housed somewhere. All of those people must be accommodated and it will drive up local tax rates as every aspect of local infrastructure will be affected. Schools will have to be enlarged, more teachers hired, or new buildings built. It will also increase the demand for housing and prices will rise accordingly.

Bernie's firm encompassed his partnership with the late Charles Susano Jr., who went on to be appointed to a seat on the Tennessee State Court of Appeals. Bernie Bernstein's legal career could very well serve as a road map to the growth and development of Knoxville and Knox County. Bernstein was the lawyer for Proffitt's Department Store, Clayton Homes and Whittle Communications.

Bernie's expertise as an attorney was not confined solely to business; he was equally adept at criminal matters and even what is politely referred to as "domestic relations." Bernie was a tiger in the courtroom and a formidable advocate on behalf of any client, whether it was a Fortune 500 company or a party to a divorce battle. For his oftentimes fierce fighting for his clients, Bernie was an able and experienced mediator and was able to resolve conflicts between adversaries.

Throughout his career, Bernie Bernstein was recognized by the members of his chosen profession and peers in just about every way possible. Bernie served as an adjunct professor at the University of Tennessee Law School and was one of the founders of the College of Law's Legal Clinic.

Bernie Bernstein was probably one of the most prominent members of Knoxville's Jewish community. Then-Governor Lamar Alexander appointed Bernstein to head Tennessee's Holocaust Commission.

Bernie was devoted to his family, religion, profession, friends and community. Bernie Bernstein's life was a monument to a life well lived. For those who knew Bernie Bernstein, we will truly miss him and continue to cherish the memory of his friendship. So, too, will our community miss someone who constantly gave of himself. While successful in every aspect of life and work, Bernie Bernstein gave back far more than he ever received.

You can teach an old dog new tricks, and I offer myself as an example. Since my retirement, I have added doing wash, vacuuming and cleaning toilets to my resume which has always included taking out the trash and busing the dinner dishes. However, Becky's fancy dishwasher scares me just like the furnace in the basement scared Kevin in "Home Alone."

Becky remains the undisputed manager of our home and never ceases to surprise me. Years ago, as she was "driving Mr. Jim" she asked me to search for her sunglasses in her handbag. The contents of women's purses mystify me. I found her glasses as well as a 25-foot steel tape measure and a ball peen hammer! Her explanation was we were building our Becky is my "Handy Ma'am." She is the practical one allowing her bookish husband time for contemplation. However, I'm not a slug because I take care of the yard, garden, orchard and vineyard and help with household chores. Last week I was cleaning out the freezer ice bucket and came across an unusual item, a frozen paintbrush in a sandwich bag. When I showed this to Becky, she matter-of-factly told me that a paintbrush can be reused if it's wrapped properly and put in the freezer. Like me, Becky is conservative and frugal. her family live there. And I am aware because I peruse news sites other than the mainstream media. We are bombarded with liberal messaging. Tennessee is a more conservative state than those in New England and the "left coast." And yet, of the 80-plus news outlets in Tennessee, only three offer a conservative perspective like The Knoxville Focus. Perhaps my liberal friend does not get the full story from MSNBC's Rachael Maddow or The View. "You should read widely, consider carefully and sift everything through your conscience and common sense" (JVF).

As I read about Whoopi Goldberg doing a lap dance on a View co-host, I wonder what kind of person watches The View or MSNBC? Apparently, a lot do because there are a bunch of useful idiots who plan to again vote for the decrepit, demented and deceitful Democrat.

Those of us who consider perspectives other than the mainstream media's are aware of the biggest scandal in the history of our country. The mainstream media called the 5-year investigation and A liberal friend recent- Durham Report a "nothing burger." The media's talking heads all chirped the same phrase after years of squawking that the Mueller investigation would destroy President Trump. It didn't because Mueller's investigation, as well as the DOJ Inspector General's report and now Durham, found no evidence of Trump-Russia collusion/ conspiracy.

Now that Durham has traced the discredited and infamous Steele Dossier and the Russian collusion lies to Hillary Clinton, one wonders how the intelligence agencies were enlisted to promote the salacious lies to their media co-conspirators since Hillary did not have the power to do so. Enter Obama, who had the power, and both he and Biden knew about Hillary's ruse to distract from her unsecured private server use and the destruction of her unsecured communications with Obama. Apparently, the Democrat darling is nothing but a cheap politician like Biden and "crooked" Hillary. And the slavish mainstream media, Tech Lords and useful idiots followed right along with the slander and election tampering scheme.

Although I am retired from being responsible for people's care, I am often asked medical questions by friends and family. And I'm happy to oblige; it's what I can do. There is a huge difference between being responsible for someone's medical care, and just interpreting medicaleze or offering explanations of complex medical conditions.

We are born with roughly 100 billion nerve cells (neurons) in the brain - about the same number of stars in the Milky Way Galaxy. The brain weighs approximately one pound at birth and increases to three pounds as an adult. Most of the growth is in early life, with maturity occurring around 25 years.

For a long time, we have known that brain cells can form new connections with other brain cells. Think of learning to ride a bicycle where new connections are formed (learned). However, doctors once thought that adult brains couldn't generate any new brain cells. It is now thought that people have the capacity to develop new cells as well as learn new tasks. Stroke rehabilitation involves stimulating work-around pathways and perhaps the generation of new brain cells and connections.

If stroke victims can learn new pathways and grow new brain cells, perhaps liberals or even enslaved useful idiots can be enlightened and rescued from

So, in the spirit of enlightto hear the other side of the argument before making up their minds, consider the following "connections" which have come to light from investigative reporters like Andy McCarthy, the Durham report and others:

Obama knew about Hillary Clinton's non-secure and illegal email account; in fact, he communicated with her using an alias. (While Secretary of State, was Clinton selling access for donations to The Clinton Foundation?)

Obama (and Biden) knew that "crooked" Hillary paid for and promoted the scurrilous Russian Collusion hoax.

Obama must have authorized the intelligence agencies' cover-up because Crooked Hillary did not have the power to do so.

And did Obama authorize FBI Comey to exonerate Clinton to cover up Obama's unsecured communications with her?

We may never know. But unless we demand the truth and justice, We the People can never again trust the government or our leaders, and America is done.

The memorial is beautiful and so well deserved. It is a lasting tribute to Staff Sergeant Ryan Knauss, the last one of the thirteen American heroes killed

Flying proudly above the plaque is the American flag. Hair had to be above the ears, and no sideburns or beards were allowed, even though most of us couldn't grow a beard if our lives depended on doing so. Pants were banned for girls. They could wear skirts and blouses or dresses. That particular rule for females seemed ironic since the dress code

My first minor step toward being a rebel was growing sideburns. I didn't have enough facial hair for a whole beard, but the sideburns allowed me to thumb my nose at those in authority. Such an act seems so insignificant now, but back then, I was raging against "imagined" oppressors.

When I left for college, my looks changed even more. I grew my hair long and worked on a mustache and goatee. Contrary to this, I wore clothes that I thought would make me look stylish. Wide-collared shirts, flared slacks, and brown and white dress shoes (that hurt and blistered my feet) were everyday attire. A "cool" Bush jacket, complete with a belt, was in order on cold days. dope dealer, and although I wanted to be a rebel, I wanted no part of that stuff. My so-called rebel college years ended with my graduation and only two people I could call friends. Not even they lasted, and I haven't heard from them since that day that I walked across the stage to receive my diploma.

At the school where I taught, the principal, who happened to be the same man who had been my principal in high school, maintained the same kind of dress code as the earlier one. A fellow teacher and I decided to ignore it, and we put on our jeans. The principal called me to the office and asked about them. I told him two pairs of slacks had already been ruined by chin. My rebel life came to an end when students called me "Skunky" and Amy told me the hairy face had to go. Not long after that, I shaved the mustache as well. It had turned white and couldn't be seen. For most of my life, I've been an independent voter. In local politics, my votes have gone to Republicans. Nationally, I've favored Democratic candidates. That last statement alone makes me a rebel in these parts. Good-natured arguments with Republican friends are no longer possible in such a polarized country. The "either/or" mentality seems to have hit too many of us these days. I'm too old to waste energy on fighting and arguing about such things. I just want a government that works for all of us equally. After having read this piece, I sound more like a "wanna-be" than a rebel, at least in my early years. These days my wardrobe is usually a t-shirt and shorts or sweatpants, with an occasional pair of jeans if I want to dress up. I just want to live and let live and get along with everyone. I don't need anyone other than my wife telling me what I should do. Maybe I'm a wimp instead of a rebel.

The Educator in Politics Joseph Rosier of West Virginia

Pages from the Past

By Ray Hill rayhill865@gmail.com

Joseph Rosier was an unlikely United States senator and only reached that body because of his personal friendship with Matthew Neely. Matthew Mansfield Neely held sway for decades as both a perennial candidate for public office and unlike most perennial candidates, he was usually a perennial winner. Neely was also the most powerful individual and Democrat in West Virginia after the Mountain State had gone from being dominated by Republicans to becoming devoutly Democratic in its voting habits. The people of West Virginia had endured more than most during the hardships and sufferings inflicted upon the American people during the Great Depression. While there had always been a core of Democratic voters, the arrival of the Depression and Franklin Delano Roosevelt changed the political nature of the state.

Joseph Rosier was at the heart of a controversy that had to be decided by the United States Senate itself. While West Virginia had become a Democratic state, it had been seriously divided into two warring factions. Matt Neely headed the "federal" faction, which was heavily supported by organized labor, one of the ally headed by the governor. H. Guy Kump had been elected governor in 1932 and left office (West Virginia governors could not then seek a second consecutive term) highly regarded for his response to the Depression and was personally popular. Kump's successor was Homer Holt, who had been West Virginia's elected state attorney general. Both Kump and Holt were considered more conservative than Neely and his federal faction. Neely largely controlled the vast political patronage that flowed into the state through the New Deal. Likewise, Governors Kump and Holt controlled the substantial political jobs held by the state government. By 1940, Neely was openly seeking a candidate to support for the Democratic nomination for governor. Matthew Mansfield Neely enjoyed a remarkable political career and frequently lost one office, only to come back and win another in the next election cycle. Neely had served in Congress until being swept out of office in the 1920 GOP tidal wave. Two years later, Neely ousted GOP United States Senator Howard Sutherland. In 1928, Neely was beaten by Governor Henry D. Hatfield for reelection to the Senate. Two years later, Neely ran for and won

West Virginia's other seat in the United States Senate by the largest majority ever given to any candidate for the Senate in the Mountain State.

When the statehouse faction attempted to impose its own candidate in the 1934 Democratic primary for the U.S. Senate, Neely responded by backing his own candidate, Rush D. Holt, a twenty-nine-year-old state legislator who was almost entirely unknown. With Neely's support came the backing of the powerful United Mine Worker's Union. Holt won the nomination and defeated Senator Hatfield in the general election. Holt had to wait six months to take office, as he had not yet turned thirty, the minimum age required by the Constitution. Subsequently, Neely was easily reelected in 1936.

The friendship between Neely and his protégé quickly soured and was replaced by a bitter enmity between the two men. One of the nicerthings Neely said about as an education consulhis junior colleague was to refer to him as a "sewer rat." Senator Neely backed a local judge, Harley Kilgore, against Holt, while the statehouse faction strongly supported the candidacy of former governor Guy Kump for the Democratic nominamost important and potent tion for the Senate. Several consideration as the federal faction's backing to become governor and each was summarily rejected by the senator. Eventually, Neely announced he would run himself. Neely won the gubernatorial nomination of his party while Harley Kilgore won the senatorial nomination. Both were easy winners in the 1940 general election. That was when things got really interesting. Neely had to resign his seat in the United States Senate to become governor of West Virginia. Both the incoming and outgoing governors of the state-appointed men to serve the state in the U.S. Senate. Outgoing Governor Homer Holt appointed Clarence E. Martin, a prominent attorney and one-time president of the American Bar Association, a moment after midnight. Matthew Neely took the oath of office as governor three times in order to stake his own claim to the right to name his own successor in the Senate. Neely appointed Dr. Joseph Rosier. Rosier was a professional educator and lived in the same town of Fairmont as Matthew Neely. At the time of his appointment, Rosier was the president of the Fairmont State Teacher's College. In his chosen profession, Rosier

Throughout West Virginia's history, senatorial appointees had little luck staying in office. Yet just about nobody in West Virginia thought for a moment Joseph Rosier would be a candidate to succeed himself in the 1942 election. It was an open secret Matthew Neely intended to run for his old seat in the United States Senate after he had fired all of the old statehouse crowd and replaced them with his own followers. Rosier was to be a placeholder, a distinguished and credible one, but a placeholder nonetheless. First, Rosier had to win the pitched battle being fought inside the U.S. Senate to be seated. The Senate is the sole determiner of its own membership, and an intense fight was waged over whether Rosier or Clarence Martin was entitled to hold the seat. The Roosevelt administration quietly worked hard behind the scenes to push for Rosier to be seated, as the college president was known to be a strong supporter of the president and his policies. Likewise, the Roosevelt administration feared the seating of Clarence Martin, who was

Eventually, the Senate voted only narrowly to seat Rosier instead of Martin by a vote of 40-38. Rosier was given a leave of absence by the Fairmont State Teacher's College to serve in the United States Senate. Rosier took the oath of office from Vice President Henry A. Wallace, the governor's mansion in Charleston to the Senate to watch Rosier take the oath of office. Once seated by the Senate, Rosier was assigned to the committee where he could likely do the most good: the Education and Labor Committee. When George S. Benson, president of Harding College in Searcy, Arkansas, appeared before that committee to appeal for the abolition and dissolution of the Works Progress Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corps, it was Senator Rosier who promptly challenged his fellow college president's testimony. Rosier questioned Benson's "ethics" and snapped, "We have a right to challenge your motives!" Senator Rosier wondered why Benson would request funding from the National Youth Administration when he didn't believe in the program. Benson retorted he believed in the government providing aid to education but thought all available funds should be used to win the war. The twenty students attending Harding College who were part of the NYA had written to WPA Director Aubrey Williams they were willing to turn over funds to help with the war effort. Williams had said it was not possible.

Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah, chairman of the Senate's Education and Labor Committee, posed the question should the government have spent money to educate General Douglas MacArthur at West Point. Senator Rosier pointed out belong to the professional educational organization of member.

Benson said, "I know that with better than 60% of the cially wasteful. They are retaining a large number of bureaucrats needed in other fields. They contribute to the shortage of manpower by duplication of work offered in our regular school system."

the remainder of the term from the November election through January 3, 1943. Dr. Joseph Rosier declared his own candidacy to continue serving in the Senate seat to which he had been appointed by Governor Neely.

1942 was likely the darkest time of the Second World War for the Allies fighting against Germany, Japan and Italy, who comprised the Axis powers. The Allies reeled from defeat after disappointment. The war caused intense anxiety for just about everyone with the flower of America's youth and manhood fighting all over the world. Parents worried about their sons and daughters, while wives and children had their own anxiety about their husbands and fathers. At home, everything was dedicated to winning the war and sacrifices were made on the part of the public with rationing of goods and soon certain items became scarce; items ranging from silk hosiery to tires for automobiles became as rare as hen's teeth. Everything from gas to sugar was rationed and "meatless" meals were common.

The high tide of the Roosevelt administration was ebbing, and Republicans won stunning victories in both houses of Congress. Republicans picked up nine seats in the Senate and forty-seven in the House of Representatives. For the first time since the 1932 election, Republicans in West Virginia made substantial gains. Governor Matthew Neely was defeated by Republican Chapman Dr. George Benson did not Revercomb, 55% - 45%. Neely carried only eleven of West Virginia's fiftywhich he had long been a five counties. That was the same attitude held by the sponsor of the legislation to dissolve the CCC and NYA, Tennessee's senior United States Senator Kenneth McKellar. McKellar had been one of the New Deal's strongest supporters inside the Senate, but with the war raging globally, the Tennessean believed both organizations had served their purpose to help provide jobs and opportunities for young people during the Depression. With young men needed as soldiers, pilots and seamen and young women needed as factory workers and support personnel for numerous agencies and entities, the need for the NYA and the CCC was far less, McKellar reasoned.

Nobody was surprised when West Virginia Governor Matthew M. Neely announced in 1942 he was running to return to the United States Senate. There would be two elections for the same seat in the Senate; the first being for the full six-year term beginning January 3, 1943; and the short term, to fill

The Republicans offered former had Congressman Hugh Ike Shott of Bluefield as their candidate to serve out the remainder of the term. Interestingly, Dr. Joseph Rosier fared much better than Neely. Rosier won roughly 48% of the vote while losing to Hugh Ike Shott.

After leaving the Senate, Joseph Rosier returned to his duties at Fairmont State Teacher's College. Rosier retired from his post in 1945 and ran for the West Virginia House of Delegates in 1946 and was elected. In January of 1947, Senator Harley Kilgore, a personal friend of Harry Truman, accompanied Dr. Rosier to the White House to pay a visit to the president. Kilgore explained it was purely a social call and had no political significance whatsoever. Rosier was the vice president of the National Education Association at the time.

Nor was Joseph Rosier the only former United States senator to serve in the West Virginia House of Delegates; Rush D. Holt was routinely reelected to serve his own home county.

Representing his county in West Virginia's state legislature was Dr. Joseph Rosier's last public service. The former senator's health began to fail and he died in 1951 at age eighty-one.

The official start of the 2023-24 high school basketball season is months away, but Aaron Large, Gibbs' new boys head coach, already is on the job and in the process of putting his staff together. One attribute Large brings to the program is leadership. He was a captain on the Gibbs football and basketball teams in 2006-07 and also a captain on the Carson-Newman football team in 2011.

Keegan Smith's strategy at last week's TSSAA State Track and Field Championships resulted in two victories.

The Knoxville Catholic High sophomore distance runner just wanted to win and began his 'kick' at the right times in the Division II Class AA 1600 and 3200-meter races at Dean A. Hayes Stadium on the MTSU campus in Murfreesboro.

Smith won the 1600 with a time of 4:17.18, just a little under two-tenths of a second ahead of Luke Thompson, a Brentwood Academy junior. Keegan overtook Thompson with a 56.625 split on the last lap, while Thompson finished with a 56.900 split.

Tennessee Athletics

Ascending

By Mark Nagi

Is this a good time to be a fan of athletics at the University of Tennessee? Yes, my friend, it most certainly is.

Following the firing of Phillip Fulmer as the Vols head coach in 2008, Tennessee was in the darkness for over a decade. Football was a mess, but there was ineptitude throughout the Athletics Department.

But things finally began to change with the hiring of Danny White as Tennessee's Athletics Director in January 2021. That was a big boy hire, and a sign that UT was finally ready to join the modern age of college sports. White's hiring of Josh Heupel was an unexpected success story. Under Heupel, the Vols are 18-8 over the last two years. Football drives the engine, but that is not the only team having success on The Hill. Tennessee has just won its second straight SEC All-Sports title as the Vols, and Lady Vols finished first in both the men's and women's standings for the first time. "I'm so proud of our student-athletes, coaches, staff and all the fans and donors who support us," said White. "This is a team accomplishment, and everyone plays an important role. We are just getting started on Rocky Top, but this early success gives us the confidence to keep building!" The Lady Vols softball team swept both the regular season and tournament titles. Teams like women's swimming and diving placed second in the conference, while men's tennis ended up tied for third. That's just a sampling. Pretty much across the board, Tennessee teams in just about every sport are in the mix for championships.

Last year it was the men's basketball team snapping a 43-year tournament title drought while the baseball team swept the regular season and tournament titles.

Folks, these are the good times.

Back to football. The Vols placed second in the Eastern Division this year. They snapped a 15-year losing streak to Alabama. They also beat rivals Florida and LSU, while winning 11 games, including the Orange Bowl. It was the first time the Vols won 10 or more games since 2001, and their first New Year's Six Bowl win since 2004. They also finished the 2022 season ranked 6th in the nation.

Warriors have short stay in Murfreesboro

By Ken Lay

After missing the 2022 Division II-A state baseball tournament in 2022, Christian Academy of Knoxville made a return trip to the Spring Fling this season.

The Warriors, however, had a short stay at the Midstate.

CAK, which has won multiple state titles since Tommy Pharr took the reins of the program in 2010 after a long and successful tenure at Farragut, finished the 2023 campaign with a 27-11 after dropping two consecutive games in the Division II-A State Tournament at Middle Tennessee Christian School.

The Warriors came up on the short end of a 12-3 decision against eventual state champion Northpoint Christian Tuesday.

CAK shortstop and leadoff hitter Wes Alig singled and scored twice against the Trojans, who hail from Southaven, Mississippi in the Memphis Metropolitan Area.

Bennett Rymer also had a hit and drove in two runs for the Warriors.

CAK was eliminated Wednesday with a 4-0 loss to Silverdale Academy.

The Warriors, who won state championships in 2014, 2017, 2018 and 2019, were held to just four hits against the Seahawks in their 2023 season finale.

Alig went 1-for-3 with a double. Simon Keener. Sam Cecil and Josh Pearson each also had hits for the Warriors.

regular-season series on their way to winning the league championship.

Farragut won the first of two games between the teams in the District 4-4A postseason team at Tennessee's Lindsey Nelson Stadium to force an if-necessary championship game won by the Hawks.

Farragut avoided the Hawks in the Region 2-4A Tournament as it won the region championship while the Hawks lost their first game at regionals, falling to Oak Ridge 10-6.

HVA had to come through the loser's bracket to post a runnerup finish.

The Hawks held the upper hand against the Admirals all season but Friday night on the big stage belonged to the Admirals, who swept three games to make the state title tilt.

Farragut wasted little time seizing control in the final high school game of the season. The Admirals scored three runs in the bottom of the first inning as Jett Johnston came up with a tworun single and Brennon Seigler, a University of Tennessee commitment, had a sacrifice fly.

Farragut, which pounded out 11 hits in the game, with every starter in the lineup getting a hit, scored another run in the second on an RBI double by Landis Davila, his second extrabase hit of the game.

The Admirals added single runs in the fifth and sixth frames. Seigler doubled home a run in the fifth and Davila had an RBI on a sacrifice fly one inning later. Davila was 2-for-3 with two doubles, a run scored and an RBI while Seigler went 1-for-2 and drove in a pair. Johnston drove in two runs and Jake Merrick came up with a pair of hits.

But perhaps the biggest hero for the Admirals was a sophomore pitcher, who was making his first career start.

Cole Draper tossed a threehit shutout as he hurled seven innings and struck out four and walked one.

Jacob Dillon, Austin Bolding and Henry Ferguson had hits for the Hawks, who after losing their tournament opener to Walker Valley (8-3) had to battle their way through the loser's bracket, posting a win over Centennial and sweeping a pair of wins over Collierville Thursday at Oakland High School.

Farragut, meanwhile, won three straight preliminary games at Siegel. The Admirals erased a 4-0 deficit in their tournament opener, bouncing back to beat Independence 7-4. Farragut edged Clarksville 1-0 on Wednesday and won over Stewarts Creek 6-4 on Thursday.

So, it should come as no surprise that Tennessee sold out its allotment of 70,500 season tickets for the upcoming season.

"Vol Nation continues to show the entire nation why they are the best fan base in college sports," said White. "To be sold out of season tickets for the 2023 season is a testament to their unbridled passion and support of Tennessee Football. We can't wait to see all our loyal fans on Rocky Top this fall!"

96% of season ticket holders renewed, and 9,000 more season tickets were sold this year. And while Georgia, Texas A&M and South Carolina will come to Knoxville, there won't be Alabama or Florida. That helps prove that fans are desperate to be a part of the excitement of football Saturdays at Neyland Stadium.

Every empire falls. Good times never last so enjoy them while they are here. for

Lexington 'slams' door on Gibbs' comeback charge

By Steve Williams

Gibbs High's softball team lost its first game in the TSSAA Class 3A state softball tournament in Murfreesboro last week, but almost dug itself out of the losers' bracket.

Hamilton 10-9 in their tourney opener Tuesday, the Lady Eagles responded with three straight wins, including a 7-3 win over East Hamilton, and were one victory away from making it to the finals.

Lexington slugger Mykenzi Duke, however, stopped Gibbs' comeback charge with a grand slam home run in the top of the seventh inning to break a 3-3 tie and the defending state champion Tigers held on to win 7-3 to claim the title berth against McNairy Central.

Gibbs senior Jordann Reagan, who bats in the No. 3 hole like Duke, had belted a three-run homer in the fifth inning to even the score at 3-all.

"I am extremely proud of the players," said Gibbs Coach Carol Mitchell Saturday. "After losing the first game, they could have quit. Instead, they battled to win three games and almost a fourth, which would have put us back in the championship game. Even though third place was not the goal the team had set at the beginning of the season, we are proud of our accomplishments this season."

The Lady Admirals lost their tourney opener to Arlington 6-3, and then defeated Coffee County 4-3 in their first game in the losers' bracket before suffering their second loss 8-6 to Henry County.

"We could have played a little bit better defensively and couldn't quite get the big hit with runners on base. We hit six home runs in three games, but they were all solo home runs, so that was a big thing."

Ben Sompayrac began the rally as he was hit by a pitch. Two outs later, Hudson Lutterman singled. Both Sompayrac and Lutterman advanced on a wild pitch sending Parris to the plate with first base open.

Parris, who pitched six innings for the Irish against the Lions, drew an intentional walk to load the bases, setting the stage for Hubbard's heroics and a massive celebration.

Parris, who was riddled by Moore, a 2001 Catholic injuries late in the season, had pitched sparingly. But he did what Moore and the Irish needed as he gave up three runs (two earned), six hits and five walks and had five strikeouts.

"I don't think he pitched first inning after the Lions as well as he wanted to but he kept us in it," Moore said. "And at this point in the tournament, that's what you need and it's the best you can hope for."

Jacob Camfield pitched the seventh and captured the win on the mound.

Moore lauded the Lions for their effort in the tournament.

"CPA is a great team and they're well-coached," he said. "I'm sure he'll have them back in the Final Four next year."
